

THE FOREST REPUBLICAN.

J. E. WENK, EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 20, 1904.

Republican Ticket.

NATIONAL. THEODORE ROOSEVELT, of New York. Vice President, CHARLES W. FAIRBANKS, of Indiana. STATE. JOHN P. ELKIN, of Indiana County. COUNTY. JOSEPH C. SIRLEY, of Venango County. Assembly—JOHN H. ROBERTSON, of Tionesta. Associate Judge—FRANK X. KREITLER, of Green Twp. Treasurer—WM. H. HARRISON, of Green Twp.

It is a safe proposition that Parker and Davis will not get 6,000,000 votes.

Almost every party has a matchless candidate, but it remained for the untried to hunt out a "speechless" one.

If Wm. J. Bryan would not "stand for a gold plank," how can he stand for a candidate who comes out flat-footed for gold?

It will take Parker and the people some time to get together. That's what comes from not seeing anything beforehand.

UNCLE ADLAI STEVENSON has not yet forwarded his congratulations to Grandfather Davis in the matter of the vice presidential nomination.

From the sublime to the ridiculous is but a step. Four years ago they couldn't keep Bryan's yawp shut, now they can't pry Parker's jaws open with a crowbar.

In order to be regular, a Democrat must support the telegrams that passed between Parker and the convention after the platform was unanimously adopted.

For the first time a convention holds that an issue that threatened to disrupt the party becomes nonexistent when omitted from the platform for policy's sake.

GEN. MILES received three votes in the Democratic convention, all of them from localities where he fought Indians, and none from localities where he fought rebels.

COL. BRYAN announces that he has a choice collection of principles, theories, declarations and miscellaneous platform materials which he will be glad to dispose of at a sacrifice.

THE money question will not be permitted to take a vacation this summer. It is the one question upon which all the politicians are well informed, and can not be eliminated from the campaign.

THE Democratic platform on the subject of plutocracy is illustrated by a vice presidential candidate with $30,000,000 and over 81 years old. Perhaps he is expected to leave his money to the party.

HOBSON is a windy fellow. He let himself loose at the St. Louis convention. The effect was much like a weather bureau balloon filled with gas, sent up to explore the upper currents of the air. It came down flat and nothing was discovered.

New ideas begin to come in from Europe to America. At Belfast new Atlantic steamships are being built, which will be fitted with restaurants where meals can be ordered when wished for, passengers paying separately for their passage and meals.

THERE was a time when Kansas was supposed to be in the semi-arid zone. But times change, and the hot weather changes also. Now poor Kansas is in the flood zone; the Kaw river continues to swell and ravage; and rations have to be issued to the sufferers.

THE American of Baltimore announces that as a result of the St. Louis convention Maryland can now be regarded as a sure ground state for the Republican column and Roosevelt. There is much dissatisfaction, even among Democrats, at the peculiar methods of Senator Gorman.

A BISHOP's wife wearing fifty thousand dollars worth of jewels may not be a very poor representative of the drift of the times, but she is quite a curiosity in high ecclesiastical circles. The wife of Bishop Potter of New York had this amount invested in trinkets, but, unfortunately perhaps, she has been robbed of the whole outfit.

IT cost the people of England the pretty penny of two millions of dollars to put their present king and queen on the throne, when there was no opposition. Exactly what it costs to elect a President of the United States no fellow knows. The Democrats have sized it up pretty well by nominating a vice president 81 years old worth 30 million.

SAID Senator Dubois, before the receipt of that celebrated telegram from Judge Parker: "Why should silence on the money plank cause us to lose votes? Doesn't Wall street have sense enough to know that if we did elect the President and the House we could not change the gold standard law?" Judge Parker and Senator Dubois should back together.

OM PAUL KRUEGER, President of the Transvaal republic when England made her raid on the Boers, is dead. Driven from home and banished from a country which his own great mind and childlike benevolence had brought into existence and which the industrious Boers had made to blossom as the rose, he died, broken-hearted and alone, in the village of Clarens, Switzerland. It is said the English papers all have spoken well of him since his death. Why not? What had this good Christian man ever done to England?

In nominating Parker for President Mr. Littleton said: "If you ask me why he has been silent I answer because he has not attempted to be the master of his party, but is content to be its servant." Within the next twenty-four hours Parker played the party dictator, but not until he had obtained the nomination. It would appear that Mr. Littleton is entitled to another think.

The English government professes to be very glad that Secretary Hay has asked it what its intentions are regarding Tibet. The reply is, it has no intentions; only just a little murdering expedition to please viceroy Curzon, who fancies he was snubbed recently by some Tibetan commissioners. Meanwhile Col. Younghusband continues to penetrate, destroy villages, burn houses, and kill the inhabitants. It is thought that Hay will speak again.

It has been decided by the appellate division of the New York Supreme court that a man may not refuse to give the court needed facts on the ground that he is bound by a lodge oath not to give them. In this country a man's first duty as a citizen is to be loyal, and to both uphold and obey the laws. The very gist of the charge against the Mormons is that they must obey their church rather than to be loyal to the Constitution of the United States, if the pinch should come. Whether this is so the congressional investigation committee is trying to discover.

The nomination of Judge Parker for the Presidency was particularly gratifying to the Wall Street stock jobbers. They would have preferred Grover Cleveland, because they felt sure they could manage him, having done it before, and they feel that Judge Parker will be easy to manipulate through his friend Grover. The Democratic nominee for Vice President is worth over thirty millions. Being an old man, eighty years of age, and having such extensive financial interests to look after, he will be asking too much to expect him to act as pre-iding officer of the Senate.—Punxy, Spirit.

About Juvenile Court Act.

We were shown by the District Attorney, some papers he had received from the authorities, consisting of blank forms and instructions for the commitment of neglected, incorrigible, depraved, disobedient and delinquent children and youths to the Pennsylvania Reformatory School, situate at Morgantown, Washington county, Pa., under the late act of May 29, 1901. This act states that children and youths of this character should be guarded from association and contact with crime and criminals, which endanger the whole future of the child, and that experience has shown that children lacking proper parental care and guardianship, are led into courses of life which may render them liable to the pains and penalty of the criminal law of the State, and that it is to the interest of the same not to be incarcerated in penitentiaries and jails as members of the criminal class, but to be subject to a wise care, and control, that their evil tendencies may be checked, and their better instincts may be strengthened. Such cases are under the jurisdiction of Courts of Quarter Sessions, and is called the "Juvenile Court," which has charge of all classes named in the act.

From Section I of the act we read the following description of the classes, or definition of the same: "Dependent child" and "neglected child" means any child who is destitute, homeless, abandoned or dependent upon the public for support, or who has not proper parental care or guardianship. The word "incorrigible" shall mean one charged by its parents with being unmanageable. The word "delinquent" shall mean any child mentioned as "incorrigible," who may be charged with the violation of any law of the Commonwealth, or violation of any ordinance of any city, borough or township. A separate Juvenile Docket is to be kept. Nothing in the act prevents trial of minors for high crimes and felonies in the Court of Oyer and Terminer. These are some of the features of the Juvenile Court Act. Other points are: 1st. Courts take cognizance of a case on petition of a citizen resident of the county that child is neglected or delinquent and in need of care and protection. 2d. When a child is arrested for an indictable offense, and the magistrate shall certify that the good of the child and interests of the State do not require a prosecution on indictment. 3rd. When, after a return made by a magistrate for a delinquent for an indictable offense, the District Attorney, either before or after indictment, shall certify that in his opinion the good of the child and interests of the State do not require a prosecution upon an indictment under the criminal laws of the Commonwealth. A probation system is also provided and set forth in the act, and other regulations under the supplement of April 3, 1903.

—There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Ten Years of Suffering. "I wish to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mrs. Mattie Burge, of Martinsville, Va. "I suffered from chronic diarrhoea for ten years and during that time tried various medicines without obtaining any permanent relief. Last summer one of my children was taken with cholera morbus, and I procured a bottle of this remedy. Only two doses were required to give her entire relief. I then decided to try the medicine myself, and did not use all of one bottle before I was well and I have never since been troubled with that complaint. One cannot say too much in favor of that wonderful medicine." This remedy is for sale by Dr. J. C. Dunn.

STORIES OF STETSON.

His Warning to Webster and a Sign That Was Changed. "That reminds me," said a well known actor. "Your story of the manager who, when he was advised to book 'The Corsican Brothers' as a strong attraction, asked 'What kind of a turn can they do?' recalls to my mind an incident in the career of John Stetson, the famous Boston theatrical manager. John had not had the advantages of a college course, but no one got the better of him in a business deal.

"John had a fellow named Webster, who used to paint a little scenery and do odd jobs about the theater. One day a dispute arose between the stage director and one of the actors as to the pronunciation of a word which occurred in the play. "Stetson entered while they were arguing and asked what the matter was. "Why," said the stage director, turning over the pages of the dictionary, "I contend that this word is pronounced thus, and my contention is backed by Webster."

"Oh, pronounce the word as you please, and you, Webster," said Stetson, looking up into the flies, where his man of all work was busily engaged. "You tend to your paint frames and leave questions of pronouncing words to me."

"Gus Sharp was the resident manager of the Boston house. He got along with Stetson first rate usually, but once he was caught signing house notices with his own name. "It was like this: Stetson was walking up and down at the back of the theater one night, and he noticed that lots of persons came late, after the curtain had been raised.

"He sought out Sharp and asked him to place a notice in the lobby stating the time a curtain would be raised. Sharp accordingly had a sign made and hung in front of the house. It read, 'Curtain goes up at 8:15 sharp.' "A couple of days after this Stetson came along and passed in front of the sign. He seemed to grow more excited with each moment that he viewed it. Finally he entered the business office in a great rage and said to Sharp: "I want that sign changed to 'Curtain goes up at 8:15 Stetson,' and don't forget that I'm manager of this house."

Spanish Children. With the exception of the Japanese the Spanish children are perhaps the most polite in the world. Their training in this respect is exquisite. The education of the girls in the little elegantes of life is even more careful than that of the small boys. The well bred Nina, though her summers may be counted on one hand, asks in the morning after your health and expresses her gratification on learning that you have enjoyed good rest. If you admire the rosebud in her hair she promptly answers, "It is at your disposal," and slips it into your belt. If you both are thirsty and there is but one glass of iced water she insists that you shall drink it. If there is a doorway to be passed no excitement or sleepy eyed weariness can induce her to enter before you. If you offer her a choice in presents she will only say, "What you are most pleased to give me will be what I shall like best."

Her games, too, are full of coquetry and courtesy.—Exchange.

Horrors and Crowds. "One of those things that are past the finding out," said a hint of observation, "is what impels people to rush off frantically to some place where a blood curdling sight may be seen. I was attracted recently by a crowd of people, black and white, old and young, and mostly females, in a street in a close group about something which I was told was a negro woman whose husband had slashed her terribly with a razor and who was then thrown into a gutter by the brute, only to be thrown violently back, all bloody and bruised, where she had crawled out. I heard all this, for I do not see why I should borrow my feelings by unnecessarily viewing horrors and having remembrance of them give me bad dreams. But, as a rule, the greater the display of blood and bruises and broken bones the greater the anxiety on the part of the people to push and crowd until their morbid curiosity is gratified."

Safe-guarded Children. Notwithstanding all that is done by boards of health and charitably inclined persons, the death rate among small children is very high during the hot weather of the summer months in large cities. There is not probably one case of bowel complaint in a hundred, however, that could not be cured by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. For sale by J. C. Dunn.
