WOMAN KILLS A MOOSE.

Mrs. Poindexter's Success In Her Hunting Trip In New Brunswick.

Reading, Pa., Oct. 10. - Reading friends are in receipt of a letter from Mrs. Martin Poindexter, who, with her husband, is on a hunting trip through Canada, announcing that she had killed the largest moose ever shot in New Brunswick.

Mrs. Poindexter is a plucky little woman and a true shot. The killing of the moose is best told in her letter, which says:

"We started on a moose hunt, and after we went two miles Mr. Poindexter was compelled to turn back. I continued with the guide, and soon we heard the moose coming. We crossed a swamp up to our knees, and lay down behind a big tree. The moose soon started for me. I didn't get the least bit excited, but instead leveled my gun and fired the first shot taking effect in the neck. I gave him two more pops to finish him. It took the combined efforts of five men to drag him back to camp. In honor of my luck the crowd asked me to name the camp and I named it Big Moose.'

The moose will be shipped to Reading this week. It weighs almost 2,000 tounds, has red horns, which are very rare, and they measure 5214 inches from tip to tip. Mrs. Poindexter declares that she will not return home until she has succeeded in shooting her first bear.

Bradstreet's summary of the state of trade says: Popular estimates of leading crop yields continue to enlarge. Corn has passed out of danger of serious frost damage in the West, and distribution, both at wholesale and retail, expands as cooler weather approaches.

While the buying of dry goods, hardware, groceries, shoes and clothing continues of good volume, particularly at the West, conservative influences find reflection in small but frequent orders, calculated to meet necessities.

There are some flaws in the situation which stamp this as an off year when compared with previous periods of great prosperity. Relatively most activity in current distribution, whether of dry goods, shoes, clothing, lumber, hardware or building material, exists in the West and Northwest. Colder weather is needed in the South to stimulate retail activity. In the East business is not active in some industrial centers, which have felt the pinch of the spring and summer depression in building or in textile industry. Price fluctuations of cotton are a damper on buying from first hands of cotton goods.

Vanderbilt Automobile Race,

An American, in a French made machine, George Heath, with a Panhard of 90-horse power, won the automobile race for the William K. Vanderbilt Jr., cup on Long Island Saturday, the first international race for motor cars ever run on American soil and the first big automobile road race seen in this country.

The 284.40 miles were covered by Heath and his giant square-nosed car in 5 hours, 26 minutes, 45 seconds, actual running time, and he won the hophy by traveling the distance in only 1 minute, 28 seconds' better time than did the young Frenchman, Albert Clement, who drove an 80-horse power Clement car from his father's factory.

Heath represented the Automobile ciub of France and M. Clement also rode under the tri-colors of the republic. Seven cars started, but owing to various mishaps only six went over the entire course.

In the struggle one man was killed and several injured. One of the injured was seriously hurt. The dead man was Carl Mousel, chauffeur for George Arents, Jr., of New York, and t was Arents himself who was most hurt. Latest reports say Mr. Arents will recover.
