-Our townsman A. T. Brookhouses writes the following interesting story to the Franklin Herald: "Although not the oldest inhabitant, I can rise and tell you when we had a more spring and summerlike passing of the old year and ushering in of the New Year than the one we have just had. That was on the 31st day of December, 1875, and Jan. 1, 1876. At that time I lived in Edinboro, Erie county, and the Edinboro band boys were on the streets playing the old year out and the new year in, and they were out in their shirt sleeves, or without costs on, and the frogs were singing their spring songs on the shores of the lake, and the small boys were out in their bare feet to help make a noise. But the fine weather, like that of this year, did not last long, as there was a foot of snow on the ground ere the close March. Another thing I wish to note or call your attention to is that we had a snow storm on the 20th day of May, 1876, when over an inch of snow lay on the ground for 24 hours, These records I copy from my day book of those dates."

Post and Corps Installation.

Last Wednesday evening in Boyard's Hall occurred the annual joint installation of officers and banquet of Capt. Geo. Stow Post and the Woman's Relief Corps, Bristow the supper put up was something fine as all who were fortunate enough to receive an invitation will testify. This social function is becoming more popular every year and welf it may for the ladies ion an enjoyable one for the veterans, and they always succeed, Following is the list of officers installed in the Post: Commander, S. During the evening the audience was rendering a vocal solo which was much appreciated by her audience. Miss Marie Dunn contributed much to the entertainment by the rendition of an appropriate recitation in a pleasing manner. A fine piano solo was also rendered by Miss Olive Lanson. Then followed the banquet and the feast of good things, thus ending another of the pleasurable functions of these noble orders.

A Pure Young Life Goes Out.

Effie, second daughter of Eugene A. and Jennie Yetter, was born March 11th, 1890, and died at her home in Marienville. Jan. 5th, 1905, after an illness extending over a period of seven months, her ailment being of a tubercular nature. There s eyer a sadness in the passing away of a young being in the morning of life, when all the aspirations are noble, pure and holy, and in this case it seems doubly so, not alone for those of kin to the sweet young girl, but to the neighbors, friends and acquaintances as well, to all of whom she seemed so amiable and fair; a lovely flower just blooming into beautiful young woman. Edil we from childbood one of those sweet, loveable girls who endeared herself to all those with whom she came in contact, spreading sunshine and wherever she went, "None knew her but to love," and when the beautiful young life went out a pang of sorrow was left in the hearts of those about her that will never be fully assuaged. She was conscious to the last moment, and while one who had gone before, "dear mama," she said, "is waiting for me," Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon in the M. E. church, with which she had united soon after passing ber fourteenth birthday, Rev. Mr. Adams, her pastor, preached a beautiful admoni tory sermon, full of consolation to the bereaved friends, and as the remains sweetly reposed in the white casket, bedecked with fragrant flowers and wreathes of smilax, the large concourse of friends which had gathered at the church filed past and took a last longing look at the pure young tenement of clay which had for a brief span been the abode of a purer, papa and those near and dear to her, the sweeter sonl. To the father, four sisters and brother surviving, this dispensation comes with great sorrow, but upon the father especially does the blow fall with crushing sadness, coming as it does while another, the four-year-old babe, is lying at the point of death with cerebro-spinal meningitis, Surely Mr. Yetter's cup of sorrow is running over, while the sympathy of the community, heartfelt and sincere as it is, can but partially lighten the gloom of this sad hour.

Health.

It appears that many persons do not realize the danger arising from scarlet fever, called also scarletina, scarlet-rash, canker-rash and rash-fever, and do no stop to think that the most malignant form of the disease may be communicated by the mildest form. All the following marked in quotation is taken from circulars issued by the State Board of Health:

"Those recovering from scarlet fever are often left with great physical detects such as blindness, deafness, paralysis, and impaired minds, Scarlet fever and diphtheria have been justly dreaded as the most terrible disease of childhood," "Whenever children have sore throat, or eruption of the skin, even of a mild character, they should be separated from the rest of the family, (except those necessary to attend them), until a physician is called, or the symptoms have disappeared." Scarlet fever is very contageous

It has been reported that some have even made the expression, "my children have it and I don't care how many others get it." We hope this report is false. If it is true the law would require such a family to be immediately strictly quaran-
