An identical note the text of which by authority of the president was made public at the White House by Secretary Loeb, has been forwarded to the governments of Russia and Japan by President Roosevelt. In the interest of humanity the president urges the warring nations to conclude peace. It is suggested by the president that the negotiations for peace be conducted "directly and exclusively" between the belligerent nations. The note indicates the president's belief that an intermediary may not be necessary to effect conclusive negotiations, but likewise expresses the president's willinguess to do all that he properly may do to promote the preliminary arrangements for a time and place of the meeting of the representatives of the Russian and Japanese governments.

The identical note was forwarded to the Russian and Japanese governments Thursday afternoon. It is rendered especially significant by the fact Alleged Detailed Peace Conditions. President Roosevelt's success in opening a way for peace negotiations between Russia and Japan is the absorbing theme in Paris, France has forgotten her own troubles with Germany over Morocco to join in enthusiastic approval of the American Initiative.

Portraits of President Roosevelt, Ambassador Meyer, Minister Takahira and Ambassador Cassini appear in all the journals, with the pictures of the White House as the scene of the historic origin of the peace movement. Without exception comment on President Roosevelt's action is favorable, with the expression of a slight sense of disappointment that France as the ally of Russla has not taken a more prominent part in effecting the preliminaries.

Norway Secedes From Union. "Norway from today is a fully independent and sovereign state."

This is the text of the editorials in the Norwegian newspapers and it reflects the spirit with which the people of Norway accept the action of the storthing when it proclaimed King Oscar no longer King of Norway. The storthing will if necessary defend the step taken by force of arms. It is understood that an extraor dinary session of the Swedish riksdag will be called June 26, if not earlier, as the result of the action of the storthing.

Says Separation Was Inevitable. Dr. Fridtiof Nansen, the Arctic explorer, in a telegram to a London paper, says what happened in Norway could be no longer avoided. "The crown," he says, "was compelled to veto the consular bill or else it would have lost Sweden. We understand this without bitterness, as there is now no way back. Our hope is that the Swedish people will also understand that this was the best solution of the difficulty, for the continuation of the guarrel between the two countries would be a perpetual danger and weakness." Burbank's Fast Growing Walnut. Luther Burbank of Santa Rosa, Cal. has, by crossing different varieties of walnuts, produced a tree which makes the fastest growth of any tree known He regards this achievement as of immense importance commercially, for it will vastly extend the use of the walnut in the manufacture of furniture and even permit of its use as cordwood for stove or grate fires. His success was attained by crossing the common English and the native black California walnut and also crossing two varieties of native black California walnuts. At present walnut wood for manufacturing purposes costs $250 to $500 per 1,000 feet. When the new varieties are grown in sufficient quantities the price will be very greatly reduced. Auto Plunged Into River.

INDEPENDENT NORWAY Complete Demoralization Followed Sinking of Their Flagship. Will Soon Send a Special Envoy to the Powers.

Mr. Loevland Said That Dissolution of Union Was Wholly on Constitutional Grounds-Difference With Sweden Is of an Economic Character-Says Action of Storthing Is Irrevocable.

Christiania, June 13 .- Mr. Loevland former president of the section of the Norwegian council of state at Stock holm, who will be inducted into his rely only on the signals of the flagnew office of foreign minister of Nor way in June 15, in an interview sale that a special envoy would within a few weeks be dispatched to the great powers to seek the recognition of the diplomatic and consular representatives of Norway. Regarding the probable difficulties to be encountered Mr. Loevland de clined to express an opinion, but he said that the envoy would convey the best wishes of Norway to the powers and would go to them with the high est hope for the successful result of his mission. "When our case is presented to the powers," said Mr. Loevland, "it will be seen that it is not one of antagon ism to the principle of monarchies not to a single monarchy. Norway has been a kingdom for many centuries and is proud of that fact. The dissolution of the union was purely on constitutional grounds. Our constitu tion existed prior to the union with Sweden and when there came a con flict between the two peoples Norway chose to retain her constitution.

"Our difference with Sweden is in the first place of an economic character. Our commercial interests, our tariffs and our entire economic policy differ from those of Sweden, While the diplomatic and consular services were based on the ideas governing the union of the two countries they worked to the profit of Sweden rather than to that of Norway,

"Norway's merchant marine now ranks fourth among the nations and Norway no longer can afford to negotiate with foreign powers through Stockholm. The union, however, was dissolved only when the conflict became a question of our sovereignty. "We hope the powers will make no mistake regarding our action. We have never tried to create danger for Sweden and will never seek to make difficulties for our sister country. We are acting for the benefit of the #### FIGHT FOR $60,000,000.

Mrs. Jones-Wister Wants Part of Weightman's Fortune For Her Daughters.

Philadelphia, June 12 .-- With the filing of specific charges against Mrs. Anne M. Weightman Walker, daughter of the late multi-millionaire chemist, William Weightman, Mrs. Jones-Wister, the dead man's daughter-in-law, began her battle for her six daughters' share of the $60,000,000 left absolutely to Mrs. Walker.

Insane jealousy and the influence of Mrs. Walker are set forth as the two chief reasons why William Weightman disinherited his grandchildren. Mr Weightman is pictured as weakened mentally, physically and morally at the time he drew up his last will.

It is further charged that the late chemist was made to believe that his widowed daughter-in-law's marriage to Jones-Wister was not from reasons of affection, but "from baser and highly improper and immoral motives," and that this fact and the fact that he had been rejected as a sultor by Mrs. Wister, led to his disinheriting her, six children.

His jealousy is called both insane and unnatural. Mrs. Jones-Wister claims in her petition that a codicil did exist to the will which left every cent of the $60,000,000 to Mrs. Walker and the contestants and lawyers point out that upon the very day Mr. Weightman made the will disinheriting his grandchildren, he had them all at his house for an exhibition of fireworks and that he showed great affection for them. They intimate that Mrs. Walker suppressed this codicil, Mrs. Walker is pictured as constantly intriguing against the children of Mr. Weightman's son. The petition points out that shortly after Mrs. Walker took charge of Mr. Weightman's household after Mrs. Wister's marriage, Mr. Weightman made a codicil to his old will by the terms of which his bequests to his grandchildren were cut down to trust funds during their life.

This, the contestant's lawyer asserts, shows the results of Mrs. Walker's undue influence which they allege resulted a little later in the destruction of the first will and the writing, under Mrs. Walker's influence, of the second will.

Judge Ashman ordered a citation against Mrs. Walker to show cause why the will already probated should not be set aside and why the questions brought up by the contestants regarding Mr. Weightman's condition and Mrs. Walker's influence should not be put to trial.

CAUSE OF RUSSIAN DISASTER. SHORTER NEWS ITEMS.

interviews with naval officers who survived the battle of the Sea of Japan has developed a most sensational story of the causes of the Russian disaster first of all, and the complete demoralization which followed the sinking of the flagship Kalaz Souvaroff and the wounding of Admiral Rojestvensky.

It is explained that not a single officer of the fleet knew the commander-in-chief's plans. The admirals in command of divisions knew no more than the sub-lieutenants and had to ship

Admiral Nebogatoff, on whom the sommand devolved, had seen Rojestvensky only once after the juncture of their squadrons and then only for 15 minutes.

All the stories of extensive target practice in Madagascar, It seems, were false. During the entire voyage there was practically no training in gunnery worthy the name and the big gun practice was confined to three shots per vessel.

Ugly stories are told of the happenings at Madagascar. Some of the crews certainly were untrained in gunnery, and, exhausted by the eight months voyage under trying moral and physical conditions, were no match for the veteran Japanese, whose marksmanship was wonderful. They concentrated their fire on one ship until she was placed out of action and then on another, thus successively sinking the Oslabya, Alexander III and Kniaz Souvaroff. Some ships developed deplorable structural defects. The Oslabya sank without having a single hole below the water line. Heavy seas entered the vessel above the water line and the water tight compartments, which were changed several times during the voyage, did not stand the strain they had been calculated to stand and burst, flooding and heeling the vessel over until she turned turtle.

The lack of homogenity among the ships made it impossible to maneuver in harmony. The Viadimir Mononacj, Admiral Oushakoff and Admiral Seniavin had to lag behind on this account. becoming easy victims.

Finally the ammunition was exhausted after the first day's fight. Even the very morning of the bat tle, while the buzzing of the wireless instruments on the Russian ships showed that the Japanese scouts were communicating his dispositions to Admiral Togo, Admiral Rojestvensky continued his ceaseless maneuvering, and when the Japanese actually ap-

The people of Tokio have calmly received the news of American intervention and prospective peace. The absence of assurance that Russia will accept President Roosevelt's proposal and the knowledge that the final consummation of peace involves the adjustment of a series of questions of paramount importance, requiring the most careful diplomacy extending over weeks of negotiations, coupled perhaps with the recollection of a previous experience in the thorny path of the world's politics, seem to create a disposition to await final results. There is nevertheless the keenest satisfaction over the preliminary step and a feeling of deep gratefulness over peared the Russians were caught in an impossible formation and were attacked on three fronts.

Rojestvensky's position was cramped and his transports were badly placed and caused confusion, while the Japanese were raining projectiles even from the machine guns on the Russian ships. The latter were huddled together, blanketing each other's fire. Only the leaders of the columns could bring their guns to bear and even on those the untrained gunners fired wildly. To render matters worse the mines and floating torpedoes sown in the paths of the Russian divisions added to the confusion. The Borodino, Admiral Nakhimoff and Navarin fell victims of these obstructions.

It is a heartrending narrative that Russia and the world should know. The sailors and officers were not altogether to blame. The main fault lies elsewhere. There were many heroes among the Russians. Captain Berkh of the Oslabya committed suicide on her bridge as the ship sank rather than save himself. There were thousands of other heroes whose names the world will never know.

Fined For Obstructing Fire Escapes

New York, June 13 .- Forty-two wo men, most of them carrying children in their arms when they appeared in police court, were fined $3 each for obstructing the fire escapes in the tenements where they live.
