Ir is said Governor Douglas of Massachusetts will not run again. Possibly too hard on shoe leather.

It may be several generations before somebody works out a cipher to prove that we have buried John Smith instead of John Paul Jones,

GOVERROR CARTER, of Hawaii, cites as one of the signs of progress in the island the fact that the Stars and Stripes fly over every school house in the territory. He is a tar-seeing Governor, and the President is to be congratulated upon having persuaded him to stick to his job.

An examining physician at Spring Lake pronounced a candidate for the life saving service physically fit. Then the man fell over dead. The doctors are very wise gentlemen, and that applicant and glad of it. should have had better manners, yet, nevertheless, we cannot advise any one to strike a bargain with an undertaker as just half price. You know them. Get

GOVERNOR PENNYPACKER has appointed Robert McAfee, of Pittsburg, secretary of the commonwealth, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Frank M. Fuller. Mr. McAfee now holds the position of commissioner of banking, and John A. Berkey, of Somerset county has been designated by the governor to take novels and plays about. the place made vacant by the transfer of Mr. McAfee.

Now it has been discovered that a considerable slice of Vermont, with about 4500 inhabitants, really belongs to Canada. So sensible has public sentiment become that the transfer will probably be made without any grumbling, except on the part of the Yankees who thus are pass Hickory at 9:54 and Tionesta 10:06 a. gas for heat and light. But they'll probably s'll their land for twice its value, and move back across the border again.

AFTER a man goes into a caucus contest he is in honor bound to support the That is the only ethics of the matter. Were it otherwise caucuses would be useless. Those who feel that lets. For sale by Dunn & Fulton. if they cannot conscientiously vote for the man who is nominated should keep aloof different sort of world this would be! from caucuses and primary elections, for after having become committed to the there is nothing to do but stand up .-Punxsutawney Spirit. Especially is this true of the man who has been a candidate before the people and been fairly defeated. He of all others should be the last to turn tail on the ticket.

THE post-mortem humor which is to be found in many wills seems funny to the disinterested beholder, but it is generally rather serious business for the parties most directly concerned. The Pittsburg woman who left half a million dollars to an old sweetheart, on condition that he divorce the wife to whom he is happily married, caps all the ridiculous wills that have gone before. The public looks upon the story as a joke; but it was no joke for the poor perpetrator of it, and it might have disrupted a home. These absurd or harassing conditions that are frequently affixed to wills shed a not requently affixed to wills shed a not imperied hearing, and when it is entire-very rosy light over human nature. It does seem as if some persons, having been as cantankerous as possible in life, try to outdo themselves by making still try to outdo themselves by making still more trouble after they are dead.

Among English comments relative to the consideration shown to the remains of John Paul Jones, the London Chronicle says': "What! Paul Jones, the pirate?" must have been the shocked reflection of many an honest Briton on hearing that the United States was about to pay belated honors to the famous "renegade." He himself, by the way, neatly countered an English government's denunciation of him as a pirate. He replied that he had looked in the dictionary and found a pirate defined as an "enemy of mankind," and "as England | Do not use any substitute, but give the was then at war with the whole of America, the greater part of Europe and much of Asia, not to speak of a bit of Africa, she in point of fact came as near being an enemy of mankind as could well be conceived, and that England was therefore the pirate, and not Paul Jones."

In view of late developments, it would seem like good advice to tell a young man to keep his money and invest it first indication of any bowel trouble aphimself, instead of turning it over to the insurance sharks. While the sentiment, which prompts a young man to devote a considerable portion of his carnings to providing for those dependent on him, is certainly commendable, it is a question if he would not display more wisdom by Investing his money in some legitimate to the high salaried sharks in the insur-

MAJOR ISAAC B. BROWN, who is holding the office of secretary of internal af-fairs for the state, has written an open fairs for the state, has written an open letter to the Harrisburg Telegraph intimating that he will not try to secure a renomination text year. His explanation of his hesitancy to hold on to its position conveys the impression that he is convinced of the hopelessness of such an undertaking under present conditions. He alleges that his cousal to fill places in his department to the satisfaction of organization leaders occasioned their hostility to him. In his call for a new deal, there is him. In his call for a new deal, there is an intimation that he will not dodge a re-nomination should a new polical condition arise which would give him an open-ing.—Kane Republican.

After more than a quarter century of continuous grasp on the public teat, and realizing that it would be a hazardous undertaking for the party organization to again foist him upon the ticket next year, it is not wonderful that the Major should have visions of trouble, and want to get next to any sort of political move that might land him again in the band wagon. Strange that in his long service in public office he should have discovered nothing to criticise up to this time, or until it became evident that in his case there might possibly be a "new deal," one that would give some other deserving Republican a chance. Major Brown seems anxious to place himself in an attitude where politi cal lightning might stike him for about the fortieth time, and as the particular place doesn't appear to be within the organization be thinks it high time to put himself in the way of any "new deal" that might be flosting around loose. The Major's astute decernment of coming events is equalled only by his sublime ability to hang onto a good job when be
