Guy Hilliard, Jr., of Endeavor, a brakeman on the Hickory Valley Railroad, had the middle finger of the left hand so badly mangled between the bumpers last Thursday that amputation at the first joint was necessary. He came to Tionesta and Dr. Dunn fixed him up.

Ex-Treasurer George C. Priestley, of Warren county, well known to many of our citizens, has cast his lot with the eastern hucksters in the Indian Territory oil field, and is moving to Bartlesville, I. T., which he will make his future home, and where we hope he may amass a big fortune.

The corner stone of the new Methodist Episcopal church, at Greenwood, Barnett township, this county, will be laid on Sunday, Aug. 13, at 2 o'clock p. m., by Rev. A. R. Rich, D. D., assisted by Rev. M. B. Riley. Addresses will be delivered and appropriate services conducted. All are cordially invited to attend.

And now after the recent hard rains, supervisors should go over their roads, pick off the loose stones, and turn the little water ways from the roads into the ditches, says a neighboring exchange. And that's what should happen in this latitude. Some of the roads are in badly dilapidated condition largely through neglect.

W. A. Eklis, of Barnett township, passed through Tionesta last Friday on his way to attend the funeral of his brother, Jacob Eklis, who died at his home near Rousseville on the 21st. The deceased was aged 77 years, and is survived by his wife, one son and a daughter. He was a man of sterling worth, highly respected by all who knew him.

The word "foel" as used in dispatches from New Orleans regarding yellow fever means center of the disease. It is the plural of the Latin word "focus." There may be one or more cases in a focus. Of late the dispatches have given only the number of cases and not the number of foel. The lower foel reported the better the indications are that the disease is under control.

While watching a ball game at Marienville last Thursday afternoon, Lewis Mensch, one of the prominent young business men of that place, was seriously injured by being hit in the face by the ball. The cheek bone was entirely crushed in, making a very painful and dangerous wound. At last accounts he was getting along quite well and it is thought he will recover without further difficulty or dangerous complications.

A private letter from W. H. Morgan, father of Walter J. Morgan, whose death we chronicled last week, states that, while Mrs. Morgan and their two sons were visiting Pietro Rocks, near Williamsport, Walter was seized with a sudden attack of appendicitis. He was removed to the hospital where an operation was performed on the 11th of July, and two days later he died.

The Free Methodist campmeeting at Pleasantville attracted an immense crowd of participants and visitors Sunday, the grounds being literally alive with people and rigs all day, and the services are said to have been very interesting. Many from Tionesta and vicinity attended, and between this and the Whig Hill meeting the draft upon our people well nigh depopulated the town for the day.

George Roedy Jr., whose serious accident at Foxcreek was reported in these columns last week, was taken to the Oil City hospital yesterday, where more regular attention can be given him. His left ankle was very badly crushed, but he has been doing quite well up to this time, and it is expected the hospital treatment, where the injury can be dressed daily, will serve to hasten his recovery.

It has always been a mystery, says an exchange, why many subscribers become offended on receiving a notice of arrears on subscription. Any house with whom the editor has any dealings sends him a note, every thirty days, of the amount due, even if it is only ten cents; besides, his employees expect their pay every Saturday evening. The daily city papers demand payment in advance before a man's name is placed on the subscription list, yet the same subscriber will become offended in case the publisher of a county paper notifies him that his subscription is due and that he is in need of the money.

Glenn, the 12-year-old son of Robert P. Bender, of West Hickory, had a narrow escape from fatal injury on Tuesday last week. He had gone with his uncle for a load of hay up on Fleming Hill, and on the return trip was acting as the teamster. When a steep place in the road was reached the lead fell from the road beneath the horses' feet and in some manner his lower jaw was fractured in two places. Dr. W. G. Morrow was called and dressed the boy's injuries and performed the delicate operation of reducing the fractures. At last accounts the little fellow was doing nicely, although kicking somewhat on having his jaws so tightly bound up.

J. M. Critchlow, of Beaver, has just concluded the purchase of E. T. Roberts' interest in the large stock farms in Cherrytree township three and one-half miles south of the city. The two gentlemen had owned the property in partnership for more than twenty years. There are about 400 acres of good farm land, on which are substantial and commodious buildings. The property is managed by H. J. Rowe of this city. Mr. Critchlow is a minister of the Free Methodist church and is at present attending the open air campmeeting at Pleasantville. Formerly the farms were devoted almost exclusively to rearing fancy horses and cattle but lately have been used for general agricultural purposes.—Titusville Herald.

Harry Watson, superintendent of the lumbering plant at Golizza, was severely injured in jumping off a train of lumber cars at that place a week ago today. Near the mill is quite a steep grade, up which the locomotive was attempting to haul some cars, but the track being wet the entire train began slipping backward and got beyond control of the crew. All on board jumped, and none escaped injury, but Harry was the worst used up. He was thrown violently to the ground, striking on his head, and for a time he was unconscious. A physician was summoned who found a number of cuts and severe bruises about the face and head. Harry is getting along all right now. Three of the cars in the train were badly wrecked having left the rails and crashed into a stump by the roadside.

Rev. Dr. Stockton Dead.

Many people in Tionesta and vicinity will learn with sorrow of the death of Rev. Dr. John V. Stockton, which occurred Saturday, Aug. 5, 1905, at Pacific Grove, California, whither he had gone some time ago hoping to be restored to health by the climate of that section. Dr. Stockton's memory will be revered by all in Tionesta and Endeavor with whom he had become acquainted while acting as pastor of the Presbyterian churches of these places during the illness and after the death of Rev. J. V. McAninch. He was not only an able minister, but a man of very lovable nature, and greatly endeared himself to his congregations during his pastorate here. Dr. Stockton was a native of Ohio, a graduate of the University of Wooster and the Western Theological seminary. He filled pastorates at Van Wert, O., Fort Wayne, Ind., and Mercer, occupying the latter pulpit for 18 years, until obliged to relinquish it on account of ill health. He was at one time moderator of the Presbyterian Synod of Pennsylvania. He leaves a wife, formerly Miss Mary Robinson, of Ashland, Ohio; three sons, W. H., of Allegheny; J. R., of Billingsham, Wash., and F. E., and one daughter, Helen.

Shocking Fatality at Kellettsville.

The people of Kellettsville were shocked by an accident on Saturday afternoon last by which Frank Watson, son of John Watson, was instantly killed. He was in the employ of the Salmon Creek Lumber Co., and was acting as brakeman on a logging train. The train crew had completed their labors for the day and were shifting some cars in the Kellettsville yards. The young man had stepped between two cars that were moving to make a coupling, when his foot slipped and was caught by the wheels of one of the cars. The motion of the car forced his body lengthwise of the rail, and the trucks passed over his entire length, mangle his body into an almost unrecognizable mass. The body was at once removed to the home of his parents, and as it was an accident, pure and simple, no one being blameable, an inquest was not deemed necessary. The funeral was held on Sunday morning, Rev. F. M. Small officiating, and the interment took place in the Zuendel cemetery, German Hill. A very large concourse followed the remains to their last resting place. This shocking death was one of the saddest that has occurred in the village of Kellettsville for a number of years, the young man having a host of friends in the community. He was aged about 25 years and unmarried.

1837—JOHN WILSON MORROW, M. D.—1905

A Good Man Gone.

DIED—At his home in Tionesta, Pa., Aug. 5, 1905, at 10:00 o'clock a. m., John W. Morrow, M. D., in the 68th year of his age.

In speaking of the life of this excellent man we could employ no truer language or better thoughts than those expressed by Rev. Dr. Paul J. Sionaker at the funeral on Monday afternoon, as all who knew Doctor Morrow best will amply testify:

We are gathered here to-day for the last service of benediction over the body of our family physician, our distinguished citizen, our kindly neighbor, and our beloved friend, brother and Christian gentleman, Doctor John Wilson Morrow. None knew him but to love him; none spoke of him but to praise. He was a kind and gracious father, and a loving and true husband. God grant that we who are here as mourners may receive some portion of the mantle of this departed hero. As I thought of this home, this service, this hour and the words that I should speak concerning our friend and brother, a portion of the 112th Psalm came to me as singularly appropriate, "The righteous shall be in everlasting remembrance." It is not the time nor the place for extended eulogy or praise; but I cannot refrain from a few words of commendation upon the exemplary life and character of Doctor Morrow. Not that he needs it; he is with Jesus and the angels. Having met them and received their approval, he does not need our praise. It is far more important that he should think well of us. But who is worthy of more honor than the one sent into the world to relieve the sufferings of his brother man. To this high calling our noble departed friend gave all the strength and enthusiasm of his life and of his mind and of his soul. There is a monument of marble on the bridge that crosses the river at Prague, in Germany, which excites an interest above all the works of art around. It is that of the "Beloved Physician." About it every day may be seen mothers with their little children, strong men that have been healed, the blind and the deaf, standing with a new born hope, as if there were hovering above them the True Physician, at whose word there comes the full glow of health. Of all the callings of life there is none more noble than that of the true, self-sacrificing physician. At his best he stands as a true messenger of God. Doctor Morrow stood at his best; he was a man of God; he will be remembered by hundreds and hundreds who have felt the healing of his touch, the tenderness of his sympathy and have been made better because of his presence.

I want at the very outset to emphasize this: After all it is what a man is that counts—that he is and what he does. If he is good he will do good. Doctor Morrow was a good man, genuinely good; that is, his character was of the true, the good, according to the supreme standard of morality. He believed in God as the moral governor of the universe. He professed allegiance to Him. He prayed with sincere earnestness: "Teach me thy will, O God." He deliberately made that will the law of his life; he walked steadfastly, resolutely in the good and right way, as shown him by God's word, which he used as a lamp unto his feet and a light unto his path. His Bible was ever his sweetest solace. "Whatever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are of good report, if there be any virtue and if there be any praise" he thought on these things and "as a man thinketh in his heart so is he." I stand here to speak to you of a good, and therefore a great man; great because he was good; a quiet, home loving, church going man. I never heard his goodness questioned; no one ever doubted his sincerity. He was known as a man who was loyal to conscience; he maintained a lofty standard of Christian character; he was a regular attendant in the Lord's house on the Lord's Day and the confession of his lips was confirmed and illustrated by his daily life. What he was in church on Sunday he was found to be in the world during the week. What a splendid testimony this concerning a member of the church of Jesus Christ. To Him he looked as his example; to be like Jesus, the great physician, was his highest aspiration, the great ambition of his soul. His noble Christian valor no disease could break or shake. He stood serene, calm, brave, a good soldier of Jesus Christ, who fought the good fight and endured hardship, upheld and strengthened by grace sufficient to his need; it was this that kept his hope sunny and joyous; it was this that gave him good cheer to the last and lighted the kind smile upon his face just before passing over to the other side. Death is sweet as flowers are. To be death called is to be God called; and to be God called is to be Christ found; and to be Christ found is hope, home and heaven. "Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my father's house are many mansions: if it were not so I would have told you, I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am there ye may be also."

Personally, I speak with very tender feeling concerning this brother. I have lost a friend, and a good one. I never met Doctor Morrow that he did not have a cheery, pleasant smile, an encouraging word, and a hearty hand clasp. I honor him, but not less did I love him, and I shall love and honor his memory. "The righteous shall be in everlasting remembrance." His memory shall live, his virtues survive and I shall ever think of him as a living manifestation of the kind of character that human judgment accepts, the kind of character that divine requirement calls for, which divine grace produces, which divine approval crowns and which divine glory eternally rewards, for it is to such that the King says: "Well done, good and faithful servant."

"The good that men do lives after them." All that Doctor Morrow has done will survive him. "Blessed are the dead, for they rest from their labors and their works shall follow them." I am confident that I speak the thoughts of the friends that have assembled here to-day, when I say that we give our sympathies to the bereaved one of this house, in whom his heart trusted, and to the other dear ones of the household. May you, the children of the household, honor your father by obeying your mother. "The Lord bless you and keep you; the Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon you and give you peace." How pure and sweet and beautiful and happy should be your lives. Let it be your ambition so to live that you shall appear "A whole family in heaven." Be submissive to the divine will. "All things work together for good." Look to God for comfort. He has a dwelling place for all His children. Anticipate reunion. His promise is "I will be with thee in trouble." To honor Doctor Morrow best is to live so that people will honor us as they loved and honored him.

John Wilson Morrow was a son of William and Martha Hutchison Morrow, and was born near Rural Valley, Pa., June 2, 1837. He was educated in the public and private schools near his home and in the Dayton Union Academy. For many years he taught with marked success in the public schools of Armstrong and Indiana counties and as principal of the Freedmen's Mission, Vicksburg, Miss. In 1873 he graduated from the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia. From 1873 to 1881 he practiced his profession in Armstrong county, when he removed to Tionesta, where he has since resided. Dr. Morrow served one year in the Civil War as a member of the Fifth Pennsylvania Heavy Artillery and his only brother, the late Rev. James Hutchison Morrow, served as a member of the Second Pennsylvania Cavalry from '61 to '65. On Feb. 3, 1883, he was united in marriage to Rebecca Malinda, daughter of John and Nancy Harrison McFarland, who died in 1885. In 1887 he was again married, to Miss Martha Unepaper, of Indiana county, who survives him. Of ten children born to Dr. Morrow, five remain: Dr. W. G. Morrow, of West Hickory, James D. and Misses Martha, Nannie and Sarah at home. The doctor was a life long member of the United Presbyterian church and a member for many years of the Venango County Medical Soc. ety and of the American Medical Association. He was a member of Capt. Geo. Stov Post, G. A. R. For a number of years he was a member of the Tionesta school board. At the time of his death he was serving his sixth consecutive term as Coroner of Forest county, was the health officer for the county, and a member of the county board of pension examiners.

There was a large attendance of neighbors and friends of the family present at the funeral services, and a larger attendance of comrades of the civil war than has attended the obsequies of a deceased veteran for many years in this place. All alike honored and respected Dr. Morrow.

To facilitate a more accurate handling of the mail by rural free delivery carriers, the postoffice department is arranging for the numbering of rural boxes. The delivery of ordinary mail matter of all classes addressed to boxes by number alone will be authorized the same as is now permitted in the case of postoffice boxes, so long as an improper and unlawful business is not conducted.
