Stakes have been set for the widening, straightening and macadamizing of the public road between Tylersburg and Leeper, covering something over a mile in distance. Every Republican should see to it that he is registered on or before Sept. 7 in order that he may vote at the fall election. The 7th is the last day for registration. All taxes should be paid on or before the 7th day of October. Every citizen, and especially every Republican, should take interest enough to see to it that he is registered properly and that his taxes are paid.

Dr. H. E. Kirschner, medical director of the Grand View Institution for the care and treatment of consumptives, at Oil City, spent last Friday in Tionesta and vicinity in the interest of the work. He reports good progress in the effort to raise the endowment fund of $5,000, only a few hundred dollars being lacking. It is a worthy cause and the institution is deserving of assistance in its efforts to stamp out the great white plague.

Sneak thieves entered the home of George W. Campbell, of Warren, Pa., on Thursday night and secured jewelry to the value of $1,500. The family was temporarily absent and it is believed that the theft was committed by some one familiar with their movements and habits. There seems to be a great deal of this sort of thievery going on of late in surrounding neighborhoods, and as the nefarious business appears to run in epidemics, it might be well for our citizens to have a little extra care at this particular time.

His physician, Dr. Siggins, found it necessary to amputate the left leg of George Reedy, Jr., at the Oil City hospital, and the operation was performed on Saturday last. He is the unfortunate victim whose ankle was so badly crushed at Fox Creek, this county, several weeks ago, and who was taken to the hospital two weeks ago in the hope of saving his leg. The amputation was made below the knee.

The 32d annual great Grangers' Picnic Exhibition will be held at Williams Grove, August 28 to September 2, 1905. This is undoubtedly the largest and finest display of farm machinery held in the east. The beauty of the exhibit is that so much of it is running. Saw mills, shingle mills, threshing machinery, traction engines and ensilage cutters galore are all shown in operation. A splendid stock exhibit is promised.

Mrs. Rachel Noble is at the point of death at the home of her daughter in New Castle, where she has been for a number of months. Her son John of this place received word yesterday that she could live but a few hours, but since then has been unable to get any telephonic communication from there. Mrs. Noble has been ill for more than a year with what physicians diagnosed as cancer of the stomach. She is aged 75 years, and is one of Tionesta's oldest residents, having spent nearly all of her life in this community.

A. M. Albaugh, of Whig Hill, sends us a copy of the Ulster County (N. Y.) Gazette, which is a relic of rare curiosity. It is dated Jan. 4, 1800, which is upward of 105 years ago. This edition contains the account of Washington's death and burial at Mt. Vernon, Va., and the inside pages are dressed in mourning over the sad national calamity. It also contains many quaint advertisements, for advertising in the newspapers was quite a feature even in those early days. One man, John Schoonmaker, Jun., offers "for sale the one half of a Saw Mill" in the town of Rochester. And also "a stout, healthy, active negro wench." The paper is made up of four pages, four columns to the page, and is issued by Samuel Freer and Son. It is a valuable relic, and Mr. Albaugh prizes it highly as such.

The suggestion that the "Indian god" rock, located a few miles below that town, and which is so familiar to the lumbermen of the Allegheny river for the past hundred years, be brought to Franklin to participate in the centennial and "old home week" festivities, has elicited endorsement in some quarters. Which moves the Franklin correspondent of the Derrick to remark that "some who think they can by guess approximate the 'heft' of that rock think that it would require the power of the Indian god and his whole bunch of braves to hoist it from its bed and tote it up to Franklin. It might be floated here on a raft, provided a dam were stopped up and the river slackwatered from a point below the god's resting place. But the date of our happy time is rather too close for carrying out that project in a proper and workmanlike manner."

The following card, sent out by a Detroit commercial club, is worth reading and pasting in your hat: "If there is any chance to boom business, boom it. Don't pull a long face and look as though you had a sour stomach. Hold up your head, smile and look for better things. Hide your little hammer and try to speak well of others, no matter how small you know yourself to be. When a stranger drops in jolly him, tell him it is the greatest town on earth. Don't discourage him by speaking ill of your neighbors. Lead him to believe that he has at last struck a place where white people live. Don't knock. Help yourself along by becoming popular and push your friends with you. Be a good fellow and soon you will have a procession of followers. No man ever got rich by trying to make others believe he was wealthy man in town who knew anything. You can't climb the ladder of success by treading on other people's corns."

Abner Kelly, son of Oliver Kelly of South Franklin street, whose violent death of Cleveland, Oklahoma, was reported briefly in the Herald of yesterday morning, was murdered. The Cleveland Triangle of Aug. 18 contains an account of the tragedy. It states that Kelly was shot to death by George Simpson as the result of trouble over Simpson's wife. It is alleged that Kelly and Mrs. Simpson had been out walking together and that Simpson awaited their return with a .22 calibre rifle. He fired at Kelly, striking him in the throat. Death was instantaneous. The shooting took place at the boarding house of Mrs. Simpson, mother of Kelly's slayer. The Oil City Derrick's correspondent in the Cleveland field gives a very different version of the story. He states that Simpson was abusing his wife when Kelly appeared and interfered. He claims that the shooting was the result of a quarrel which followed. Simpson stated that he was glad for what he had done. He made no attempt to escape. Tionesta Herald. The Herald also states that besides his widow and aged parents the deceased is survived by several brothers and sisters, among whom are Mrs. Eugene Carson and Mrs. Walter Cooper, of Forest county.

BIG FIRE AT EAGLE ROCK.

The Extensive Sawmill at That Place Goes Up in Smoke.

The sawmill, and warehouse adjoining, at Eagle Rock, owned by Hyde & Douth, of Ridgway, were destroyed by fire on Monday afternoon. The loss is about $50,000 and the insurance $15,000. That the loss was not much greater is due to the prompt response of Mayor A. L. Conner, of Oil City, for a steamer and force of fire fighters and the courtesy of Superintendent G. W. Beale, of the P. R. R., who furnished rapid transit for the steamer, a company of 30 men and 300 feet of hose. An hour or two later a force of 75 men, with steamer and hose, arrived from Warren.

The Derrick's account of the big blaze follows:

Some time ago the lumber on the extensive estate of the late E. E. Clapp was purchased by the Grandin Lumber Company, who built a railroad through the property and erected an overhead trolley line, over which the logs were brought to the Eagle Rock side of the river. The company then gave a contract to Hyde & Douth to manufacture the logs into lumber. The contractors erected one of the finest mills in all of this section, with a capacity of 50,000 feet of lumber per day, and employed a force of about 50 men. The mill was lighted by electricity and equipped with every known labor saving device. The lumber was delivered at one part of the mill, the slabs at another and the sawdust went near the boilers, where it was used as fuel. About 12:30 o'clock on Monday afternoon, when all of the mill force was at dinner, fire was discovered which it is supposed originated in the sawdust piles from the boilers. By the time the employees reached the mill they realized that it could not be saved by their efforts. Mr. Grandin was at the seashore and Mr. Bucklin in Jamestown, N. Y. The Grandin Company's superintendent got a telephone communication with Mr. Bucklin at the Humphrey house at Jamestown and was notified by Mr. Bucklin to wire to Warren and Oil City for fire fighting assistance. Mr. Bucklin also sent a personal message to Superintendent Beale at Oil City asking for a special train and arrived here on the Duquesne flyer, making a close connection for Eagle Rock. Under the terms of the contract from the time the logs were delivered into the mill until they had been fashioned into lumber they were the property of Hyde & Douth and after that the risk of fire was all with the Grandin Company. The Grandin Company had more than 5,000,000 feet of lumber piled up in the yards and there were about 20 houses occupied by mill employees, together with a general store, all in close proximity to the burning mill. The Oil City volunteers, with Captain Daniel Fisher as fireman of the steamer, left here at 1:30 p. m. and arrived at Eagle Rock at 1:55. In the meantime the employees of the mill and yards, together with all of the able-bodied residents of the vicinity, had been engaged in carrying out the household goods from the company houses and had covered the general store, roof and sides, with drenched blankets. There was a heavy wind blowing away from the store, the residences and the piles of lumber, which undoubtedly prevented the loss of the mill and yards from being a total one. Another fortunate circumstance was that the wreck train had been sent from here to put new trucks under a crippled car loaded with lumber. When the fire broke out the engine was uncoupled from the wreck train and used in removing some 20 or more cars from the siding near the mill. Only one car was destroyed. It contained slabs and was destroyed. It contained slabs and was destroyed. It contained slabs and was destroyed.

At 3 o'clock the special relief train from Warren arrived and by 4 o'clock the danger to the surrounding buildings and lumber was over. The ruins of the mill and the mountains of sawdust were smouldering, however, and there was danger that a change of wind would cause the fire to break out afresh and the two steamers and hose were kept on the scene until after 9 o'clock when the special trains were sent back to Warren and Oil City, but not until a bountiful supper had been served to the tired firemen. The mill will be rebuilt at once and it is not thought that the fire will cause the men to be out of employment more than two or three weeks.

Our town was blessed with a temperance lecture several nights last week. We hope much good will result therefrom. While a law—the result of the late lecturer—abolishing all saloons in the United States, might work much good, yet the writer thinks a people so civilized and christianized as to never taste, touch, nor handle the damnable intoxicants would be much better, as an unenforced law is only a menace to any people. It is the opinion of the writer that it will require something more than a statute law to abolish the drink evil. We have laws against profanity, yet profanity continues. When we can get our people raised to that standard of morality as to look upon this evil in its true light, we believe it will cease then, and only then, as it is a great evil, insolent in character, selfish in desires and damning in its touch.

Runaway Smash-Up.

Sabbath afternoon last W. A. Grove figured in a runaway accident that might have cost him his life. In company with his wife and her sister, Miss Nettie Hunter, he started up the river road for a drive behind his handsome and spirited team of sorrels, the vehicle being a practically new surrey. Near the watering trough some distance above Tubbs run an automobile, coming in the opposite direction, had stopped by the side of the road. Realizing the danger of attempting to pass the huge car, the two ladies took the precaution to alight from the surrey, and Albert started to drive by, taking the left of the road next the hill. In passing the horses reared frantically and one of them, being crowded against the bank fell, the surrey was upset and Mr. Grove thrown out. He held to the lines and was dragged several rods, but was obliged to loosen his hold, and the frightened team started up the road at a breakneck speed. They were caught above the county home, a distance of about two miles from the starting point, having freed themselves from the vehicle, which was strewn along the road almost the entire distance, a total wreck.

Mr. Grove was severely bruised in several places, but gathered himself up and with his ladies was brought home in the motor car, where his wounds were dressed. With the exception of feeling pretty sore in body and considerable chagrin at the loss of his handsome surrey, he is getting along first rate. The automobile was occupied by the owner, Mr. George H. Hyde, of Ridgway, who was accompanied by his wife and two lady friends, Miss Mame Hamilton, of Bellefonte, Pa., and Miss Maude Carroll, of Bay City, Mich. They were en route from Ridgway to Eagle Rock, where Mr. Hyde is engaged in the manufacture of lumber for the Grandin Company, and where the party expects to enjoy an outing. Mr. Hyde had taken every precaution possible to avoid trouble when the rig approached, having quieted the machine completely so that no noise or steam whatever was escaping. He naturally felt very sorry at the unhappy turn of affairs, and did everything possible to make matters right, and offering to replace the ruined vehicle with a new one.
