THEY HAD NOT MET.

Which Seemed Rather Surprising Under the Circumstances.

When P. T. Barnum was at the head of his "great moral show" it was his rule to send complimentary tickets to clergymen, and the custom is continued to this day. Not long after the Reverend Doctor Walker succeeded to the pastorate of the Reverend Doctor Hawkes in Hartford, there came to the parsonage, addressed to Doctor Hawkes, tickets for the circus, with the compliments of the famous showman. Doctor Walker studied the tickets for a moment, and then remarked: "Doctor Hawkes is dead, and Mr. Barnum is dead; evidently they have not met."

THE CHERUB RECELLED.

What a Visitor Overheard When Morh er Made Haste.

His mother had a caller down stairs, and with true maternal interest she could not let her go until she had gone up to get her young hopeful to bring him down for display. Not waiting for the nurse to get the child ready, she snatched a towel from the rack and resorted to a method which all mothers at some time or other indulge in,

Even then, it might never have leaked out if she had not in her mad haste left the nursery door ajar. But. as it was, the woman waiting below heard these flute-like baby tones float down the stairway:

"I say no, mamma." Mother's low voice was heard in remonstrance. "I don't tare, Tompany or no tompany, I won't have my face washed wif splt!"-Washington Post.

Escaped Punishment.

A Philadelphia schoolmistress was giving her pupils instruction in the elements of physiology, and among other things told them that whenever they moved an arm or leg it was in response to a message from the brain. The brain always sends a message to your arm or your leg whenever you wish to move that particular member," she explained.

At last a mischievous boy aroused her anger by his apparent inattention to the lesson. "Hold out your hand!" she exclaimed. The boy did not move.

"Why don't you hold hand " said the teacher. "I'm waiting for the message from my brain," said the lad .- Philadelphia Ledger.

What the Hog Was Doing,

Peter McArthur was telling of traveling down South when he sprung this one. He said that his train had stopped at a railroad station in North Carolina, and a red-complexioned hog was seen rubbing himself on a telegraph pole. "That llog seems to be troubled with fleas or the mange," observed Mr. McArthur to a native. "Mange nothing," replied the native to whom the remark was addressed. That hawg is a razorback an' he's stroppin' hisself."
