> Engine Backed Down to Pick Up Work Car Crowded With Laborers Car Was Shot Along the Track and Crashed Into the Rear of a Grave

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 27 .- The by the collision of a work car crowded with Italian laborers on the railroad and a string of three heavily loaded gravel cars, in the upper end of the Cedarhill yards of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad,

The dead are: Peter Magono, Tom asso Soca, Dominick Distino, all Ital ian laborers.

The gravel cars were standing on side track coupled to an engine ready to start for the city. Thirty feet away was a work car crowded with Italian laborers, and still farther eason the same track was an engine fac ing east.

The latter engine backed down to pick up the work car and back it down to a gravel train to which it was to have been attached to bring the la borers here. The work car was shot along the track and crashed into the rear of the gravel train, the platforn of the work car being doubled back onto the body of the car.

The men attempted to escape by jumping and all but three managed to get away with their lives. Magono and Soca had the upper part of their the cars. Distino was jammed tight ly between the platform and the body of the work car, where his body hung left leg.

Washington, Nov. 27 .- The protestants practically closed their case yesterday except for the filing of additional briefs. In the afternoon Secretary Taft heard reports of commercial bodies and of corporations which have developed power from the waters of the Niagara river, who insisted that the grandeur of the falls had not been interfered with perceptibly, nor the volume of water depleted appreciably.

The Board of Trade of Buffalo and other cities in the vicinity of the falls were represented by W. Carvl Elv Francis Lynde Stetson of Buffalo and General Francis V. Greene represented the power companies. These speakers said they could see no rea son for prohibiting the granting of permits in accordance with the limita tion established by the act of congress passed last session. Mr. McFarland made a brief closing speech for the opponents to the granting of permits.

Secretary Taft said that today the gress can do," he said laughingly, "it applicants for permits would be heard. assuming, for purposes of argument, that the permits will be granted. The discussion will be on the subject of the distribution of the privileges to the various applicants.

PROTEST TO THE PRESIDENT.

Letter Carriers Think New Ruling of Postmaster General Too Severe.

New York, Nov. 27 .- President Taylor of the National Association of Letter Carriers at Sunday's meeting of the Central Federated union asked the C. F. U. to send letters to Postmaster General Cortelyou and President Roosevelt protesting against a recent ruling of the postmaster general to the effect that a letter carrier who was absent 90 days in a year should be called on to send in his resignation.

Formerly, he said, when a letter car lives of three men were almost in rier was incapacitated from illness for stantly crushed out and five others a long period of time, even if it was a were injured seriously late yesterday year, he was not paid during the time he was sick, but was restored to his place when he became well.

"Now a man might break his leg slipping on a pavement while delivering letters," he said, "and be laid up for more than 90 days. Some men who were dangerously ill, and have died recently, had, I have no doubt, their deaths hastened by learning of this ruling. I know one man who had been 28 years in the service, and who was dangerously ill. He was called on on April 5 to resign, unless he was at his post within 30 days, and he died on April 7, his death being hastened. I have no doubt, by this ruling."

He said that the ruling had an apparently mitigating clause which specifled that meritorious service would count, and be the cause of leniency on the part of the local postmasters This, however, was too indefinite. The request of President Taylor was granted.

He was tried and convicted last week, being found by the verdlet "strong, ablebodied, with no visible means of support and too lazy to work."

Senator Platt Didn't Say It.

New York, Nov. 27 .- United States Senator Thomas C. Platt said concerning an alleged interview with him published in this city in which he was quoted as saying that he would not resign his office as senator: "I have not said I would not resign. I saw no reporter in fact, nor have I said to anybody that I would not send in my esignation to Governor Higgins, I never said to any newspaper man that I would stay in Washington all winter. In fact, the whole interview about my refusal to resign is untrue. I have said nothing nor am I going to say anything row."

A Camera Fiend.

A well known criminal lawyer one day sauntered into a police court just as a case was called. It appeared that the defendant had no attorney, and the judge glanced about the room to see whom he might assign to the case. "I'll take it, judge," the late comer said, wishing to pass away the time. "By the way, what is the man charged with?" the attorney presently asked.

"He's a camera fiend of the worst sort, Mr. Brown," the judge said, with a slight smile. "I expect to send him to the workhouse for about three months."

"What?" the lawyer shouted indignantly. "Your honor must be joking Send a man to the rock pile for three months for a little harmless amuse ment like taking pletures?" "Well," the judge said mildly, "be

A Wonderful Escape.

Fieschi tried to assassinate King Louis Philippe of France in July, 1835. The king was riding along the lines of the national guard in the Boulevard du Temple. There came a crash and a rush of bullets. Louis Philippe's arm was grazed, his horse was shot in the neck, Marshal Mortler fell dead and about thirteen other people were killed and thirty wounded. Fieschi had taken the upper floors of a house several weeks before and there rigged up an oaken frame four feet by three feet six inches, supported on four posts of oak and itself supporting twenty-five gun barrels fixed in grooves at various angles so as to command an area of twenty-five feet in length and ten feet in height. When he fired the train of powder that let off his battery the king would have been killed if four barrels had not burst and two missed fire.

Ancient Locks.

Locks were used in the time of the pharaohs. At Karnak the visitor is shown the sculptured representation of a lock which is almost exactly like one kind of lock used in Egypt at the present day. Homer says that Penelope used a brass key to open her wardrobe. He adds that it was very crooked and had an ivory handle. A Greek writer who lived in the last half of the twelfth century explains that such keys were undoubtedly very ancient, although still to be seen in Constantinople and elsewhere. Roman locks, like the Egyptian, required a partial sliding of the key. They were, however, more intri-

Darwin and Books.

Of Darwin it is affirmed that he seemed unaware of the difference in the value of books and would treat a Zachnsdorf binding with the same scant courtesy that he exercised toward a penny pamphlet. Covers appeared to him a useless weight and decidedly in the way, and he often got rid of them by ripping them off. Sometimes the book was borrowed. It is said that in the end his friends used to give him any book which he wished to borrow, for they knew that, if it were ever returned, its usefulness as a book would be at an end.

No life amounts to much until it has a programme-something definite, something particular. Nothing else can take the place of it. Education cannot, talent cannot, genius cannot, hard work cannot. Until there is a definite aim the energies will run to waste, the ability be squandered. The faculties deteriorate when working without a definite nim.

With Lightning Rapidity. "Wonderful eye that boy of mine's got," said the proud father,

"That so?" mechanically replied the man who was trying to get away. "You never saw such a sense of proportion," cried the proud father, "Pass that boy the cake dish and he'll spot
