—Charles O. Thomas, the man who stole Amos Shotts' fine team of horses last September, was convicted of the crime in the Clarion courts last week. He was also convicted of the theft of several sets of harness from the Iseman Bros' store some time prior to the horse stealing. His pal, Eugene Tallman, indicted for the same offenses, is still in the Erie jail, and will be tried later. Thomas, being an old offender, will doubtless get a salty sentence, and will not likely steal any more horses for some time to come. There is a rumor, which can not be confirmed, that he was sentenced to twelve years in the penitentiary.

—The Pennsylvania has revived an old order about hauling intoxicated persons on its passenger trains. The order was issued several years ago and was to the effect that any person found to be under the influence of liquor should not be allowed to enter a train. Whether the order had gradually been forgotten or whether some accident occurred to make its reissue necessary is not known, but it has recently been reissued. Intoxicated men are often boisterous and the railroad officers fear that not only will annoyance be caused to the conductor and trainmen by the person insisting on going from coach to coach, but that there is annoyance to other passengers and there is danger of such a man being thrown from the platform or stepping from it at a station and then attempting to board the train after it has started.

—This is indeed an age of scheming, and he is a wise guy who can determine whether he is being used as a promoter of some enterprise or not. "If you wish to do your Christmas shopping successfully," said a clever woman, "take a good-looking young man with you. The handsome he is, the better. The way the salesladies will fly around to wait on you will be a revelation to you. I learned this secret by accident. My brother happened to be with me the other day when I had an errand in one of the big shops, and I never had such assiduous attention before in my life." All of which causes the Oil City Blizzard to remark: "Thus it is seen that a new field of usefulness has been opened for handsome men. It is greatly to be regretted that the duties of newspaper men in general are such as to demand their undivided attention at this particular season."

—It is said that during the hunting season recently closed seventy-four persons were accidentally killed and seventy wounded in the United States, either through carelessness or recklessness. Michigan had the largest number of dead, fifteen, while Wisconsin, with thirteen, was second, and Pennsylvania must have been a mighty close third. Where the statistics come from, or as to their accuracy we do not know, but if correct it shows that about one out of a million lose their lives during the hunting season. The percentage does not seem large, but since the killings are largely the result of recklessness or ignorance in the handling of firearms, it would seem that the rate might be very much reduced by prohibiting fools from carrying the deadly weapons.

—The Commissioners of Venango county are preparing for the holding of winter primaries under the new law in the cities of Franklin and Oil City, but advise that all townships and boroughs make their nominations for the February elections in the manner usually followed by the several party organizations, provision in the new law allowing this to be done at the winter primaries. This seems to be the sensible course, and the one which the Commissioners of Forest county believe should prevail in this county. The new law is both cumbersome and vague, and for townships and boroughs is a nuisance so far as the holding of primaries for the nomination of candidates for the February election is concerned, and we are of the opinion no considerable number of voters will care to have it adopted for that purpose. At the spring primaries, when candidates for the general election are to be nominated, the system, being less complex and less expensive, will doubtless prove quite satisfactory to the voters.

Father of Mrs. K. L. Haugh Meets Violent Death.

Mr. and Mrs. K. L. Haugh, of Nebraska, this county, were appraised late Friday evening of the death by accident of Mrs. Haugh's father, William H. McAninch, in a flouring mill at New Bethlehem, Clarion county. He was a resident of Brookville, and a dispatch from that place to the daily Spirit, at Painesville, Saturday morning, gives the following particulars of the sad affair:

"Death in frightful form came to William H. McAninch, a prominent resident of this place and a retired flouring mill man, when he fell down an elevator shaft in the mill of George L. Reed, at New Bethlehem, shortly after five o'clock last evening. Just how the accident happened no person seems to know, for none saw him fall and those in the mill were only aware of the accident when his lifeless form was found at the bottom of the shaft. Mr. McAninch, although having retired from the flouring business some time ago, had consented to go to the New Bethlehem mill and help during a rush of work. Something went wrong with the elevator in the mill yesterday afternoon and the unfortunate man went to the third floor to make some repairs. Later his body was found at the bottom of the shaft, a distance of twenty-nine feet. Physicians who examined the body claim that death must have resulted instantly, as the head was crushed, and it is thought that the neck was broken."

The deceased was a brother of the late Rev. J. V. McAninch, with whom, and his daughter at Nebraska, he had often been a visitor, and had formed a number of favorable acquaintanceships both in Tionesta and Nebraska. Mr. and Mrs. Haugh left for Brookville Saturday morning and were present at the funeral on Sunday, which was conducted by Rev. J. T. Adams. The deceased was about 63 years old, an active member of the United Presbyterian church, and a very highly esteemed citizen in the community in which he had made his home for many years. Besides his wife and Mrs. Haugh, he is survived by two sons, Jay and Lewis. He is also survived by his aged mother, who resides with her daughter, Mrs. Mary Kribbs, Sunset, Mo., two brothers, Dr. McAninch, of Lamartine, Pa., and Glenn McAninch, of Manhattan, Kansas.

Big Sawmill for Sheffield.

The Observer gives the following account of the contemplated erection of an extensive lumbering plant in the town of Sheffield:

"During the past week a corps of surveyors have been running lines and grades for the location of a large saw mill to be built at this place the coming summer by the Central Pennsylvania Lumber Company. The plot of ground containing over one hundred acres on which the mill park is located has been secured for the mill plant, and will be cleared of brush and a railroad built to it as soon as possible. From the officials of the company we learn that the plans include the building of a double band mill, with sawing, having a capacity of about fifty million feet of lumber per year. The building is to be of concrete and as near fire-proof as it is possible to make it. The machinery will be of the latest design and the power will be electricity, each machine having an individual or independent dynamo. It will be the best built and equipped mill in Pennsylvania. The mill will give employment to at least a hundred men, and the plans include the building of houses for their accommodation. The company owns large tracts of timber lands in this vicinity—enough it is estimated to supply the proposed mill with logs for fifteen or twenty years. The company also owns the T. V. Ry., and the logs will be brought to the mill by rail. Since this company was formed and took over the timber interests of the tanning companies it has been known that a large mill for Sheffield was contemplated, and now we are told that this town is to have the best saw mill plant in the state, and as soon as it can be conveniently built.

—Albert H. Young, formerly of Green township, Forest county, but now a resident of Pittsburgh, and Miss Laura Elizabeth Dunkle, of Clarion, Forest county, were united in marriage on December 5, 1906, at Brookville, Pa., Rev. E. Hesse officiating. There is a pretty touch of romance about this affair which will interest the friends of the happy couple. Mr. Young, who is a son of ex-County Commissioner Peter Young, was taken ill with typhoid fever at Tylersburg early in the summer, and Miss Dunkle, who is a graduate nurse of the Oil City hospital, was sent to take care of him, and so faithfully did she perform her duties that, while nursing him back to health she captivated his heart also, with the result that they are now happily married. Both have many friends and acquaintances in this county who will wish them every joy and prosperity in life. They are spending part of their honeymoon with Mr. Young's sisters, Mrs. Willis Kerr and Mrs. Chas. McCloskey, of Tylersburg.

A Mighty Good Idea.

A number of residents of Mansfield are looking into the matter of organizing an insurance company in town for the purpose of insuring village property. It is said $10,000 are paid out each year in Mansfield for insurance, and the losses for the past twenty years have not exceeded what it costs the residents in premiums for one year. The existing rates are altogether too high in this borough, the water protection considered. The idea is to organize on a plan similar to that of the Grange Fire Insurance Company. There is no doubt that a company along the lines suggested would be very successful and save the people hundreds of dollars a year. As the matter now stands, you pay whether there are any losses by fire or not. With the proposed new company in operation, you would pay only when some member sustains a loss, and your protection would be fully as adequate as it now is at the hands of the old line companies. The cost of organization would be small, and there would be no heavily salaried president or other officers.—Mansfield (Pa.) Advertiser.

To send a card asking for our catalog, setting forth the advantages enjoyed by the students who attend The State Normal at Indiana, and it may be the turning point in the life of your son or daughter. An education obtained in a good normal school fits for life and business, as do other schools, but its diploma has a peculiar legal value that should not be overlooked; it makes its possessor a legally qualified teacher in the State for life. None of us can look very far into the future. Your daughter may not need to teach now, and may lay her normal diploma away, never intending to use it. But some disaster later in life may make it necessary for her to earn her living, and that diploma would prove her most valuable possession. Is it not best to be educated in a school whose diploma has such value? The Indiana State Normal was founded by the General Assembly in 1871: it is one of the best known schools of its kind in the land, and the expense of attending it is as low as can be found in any first-class institution of learning.

Clarion State Normal.—Winter Session Opens January 1st.

For young people who have time in the winter months to take up a course of study, the Clarion State Normal offers some unusual advantages. Here you can train for business, or for a professional career. Classes in the common English branches will be organized during the winter term, and special classes in Book-keeping, Business Arithmetic, Commercial Law and Business Correspondence will be conducted. Any who desire may take Stenography and Typewriting. The Music course offers exceptional advantages.

The cost is very low and the advantages superior. To prospective teachers over seventeen years of age the expense amounts to less than $3.50 per week. This includes board, washing, and lighted, heated and furnished room. Write for catalogue and circulars, or inquire of any one who has ever attended the school and convince yourself that it is one of the best schools in the country. Address the Principal, J. George Becht, Clarion, Pa., for particulars.

SPREAD OF DISEASES.

Germes Often Carried in Milk Bottles. Necessity of Cleanliness.

The householder should work hand in hand with the milk man to prevent his bottles and cans from becoming infected with the germes of typhoid fever and other communicable diseases and thus spreading the infection. State Health Commissioner Samuel G. Dixon insists upon this precaution in speaking of general methods of combatting disease.

The commissioner states that the department finds frequent examples of the spread of typhoid fever and other diseases through carelessness in the handling of milk containers.

"For instance," says Dr. Dixon, "there will be handed out from a house infected with typhoid fever, diphtheria, or scarlet fever an empty milk bottle in which lurk the deadly germs. The milk man places this in his crate which he afterwards uses for his next day's supply. Indeed, the mere handling of the bottle from the infected house makes it exceedingly probable that the milk man will spread the germes of disease to the rest of his bottles and cans.

"It is therefore the duty of the person in whose home there is a case of communicable disease to see to it that before the individual milk bottle is returned to the milk man to thoroughly clean it. This can be done by first rinsing it with cold water and afterwards scalding.

"The milk man on his part should never refill a bottle until he has passed it through his cleansing apparatus at his establishment. When milk is delivered from a large can into pitchers or other vessels handed out from a house, the milk man should not handle such vessel, but should pour the milk out of his can without permitting it to touch the customer's container, and without touching it with his hands or his measure.

"These seem like very simple precautions and they are, but only those who make a constant study of the causes of epidemics realize how essential the observation of these cautionary measures are for the protection of the public health. Just a very little care often prevents a very great amount of sickness and death."
