AT the end of ten days the Reading company reversed its order largely advancing the long-established rate to commuters. If the company wants any more exercise it will seek the country air and fight hornets.

Interesting Letter From India.

Nearly three years ago Miss Ida Swab. niece of Prothonotary Geist of Tionesta, left her home at Butler, Pa., to take up mission work in India. From a letter written to Mr. Geist, dated Pathankot,

I wish I could have been taught as a child to look forward to something like this as my life's work, how many wasted than I did, but whoever dreamed that I would ever come to India. However I'm glad the Lord called me and sent me and here I am; a surprise to myself. I don't by local applications, as they cannot ladies who were also coming to India for the first time. We crossed the Atlantic on a Germen vessel going to Hamburg. I couldn't understand a word of the Gerfare and pronounce them in my "Pennsylvania Dutch." We had good things to

We landed in Dover and went overland to London where we staid four days, and spent nearly every minute of that time sightseeing. A friend of mine, Rev. T. M. Chalmers, who was studying in Europe, knew all the most interesting places and acted as our guide while we were restaurant now and is in splendid condirestaurant now and is in splendid condition. I thought if America had that they would not it to some better use. We Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diardidn't see Buckingham Palace which I rhoes Remedy for bowel complaints.

It rained Chamberiain's Pain Balm (an antiseptic nearly all the time we were there and we limiment) for cuts, bruises, burns, sprains had the proverbial "London fog." The next night we were in the Bay of Biscay and that was as bad as the Channel, and for four days I didn't get on deck and I assure you I didn't want much to eat those days, I wasn't the only one either that was seasick. I think there was only one man that was able to be on deck every day. I was more or less so all the way out. We stopped in Gibraltar for a few hours but did not get off the ship. In Marseilles we went shopping at the French shops which was a pleasant experience. Then we spent a day in Port Said where we had our first glimpse of Oriental life. We changed boats at Aden and didn't get off changed boats at Aden and didn't get off again until we landed in Bombay. The passage through the Suez Canal was very interesting the Mediterranean Sea and Red Sea brought to our minds Paul's journeys and the Children of Israel's wanderings. We saw one of the wells that Jacob is said to have dug. We land-ed in Bombay on New Years morning. It was all so new and strange and inter-esting too, the people were the most so, their dress struck me very forcibly, the gorgeousness of it in some instances and the absence of it in others. Some one, it may be Kipling, describes the people as "clothed in the atmosphere." There were beggars of all descriptions, "blind and halt and lame." old and young. It gave one a very uncanny feeling to have a stump of an arm reaching towards you, whose hand had been eaten off by leprosy. My first year was rather trying for various reasons. Herberts death was such a shock reasons. Herberts death was such a shock to me, but our Father helped me to bear it and I know he sent it all in love, "He doeth all things well." You doubtless know that I am in school work in the United Presbyterian Mission. I'll give you a little description of Pathankot: If you will find Lahore on the map and look 100 miles northeast you will see where we should be 100 miles to reason the most beautiful. should be. It's one of the most beautiful places in India, and doesn't get quite as hot as some other places do, but it gets preity warm though. It's at the foot hills of the mountains and we get occasional showers that other people do not get. We have beautiful views of the snow covered mountains the "Everlasting Snow,s" We also have much more vegetation here than is other places. There is a large than in other places. There is a large canal near here and there's a very good system of irrigation which helps the country greatly. The R. With great care Gov. Stuart has chopped $20,000,000 out of the $71,000,000 appropriations left him by the legislature. In his use of the pruning knife he has endeavorable for the great state of the pruning knife he has endeavorable for the great state of the great ored to cut where it would do the least harm. Every promise made to the people has been kept. le has been kept.

To preserve the increased appropriation city, and we take the primary department of the boarding school into the city To preserve the increased appropriation of $4,000,000 to public schools was one of Goy. Stuart's ambitions. He was able to do this and for the next two years $15,-000,000 instead of $11,000,000 will be distributed for this system of education. He has also allowed to stand untouched the respective appropriation to the state and you can imagine what a poiss thay make the state and the propagation school into the city and they recite with the nonchristians. My work is all in the primary department this year and very interesting. Last year I had some of the higher classes. I enjoyed them too, but had to study a good bit myself. The girls sit on the floor and sometimes they all study their lessons aloud at the same time, and you can imagine what a poiss thay make generous appropriation to the state and semi-state institutions, including the insane hospitals, the asylums for the feebleminded and the penitentiaries.

The governor vetoed the road supervisors' bill carrying an appropriation of $3,000,000 to be given to those townships which would abolish the work tax. This bill does not affect any time to the second supervisors. bill does not effect any township in Forest county and the veto is therefore of no interest here. The bill appropriating $3,000,000 for macadamized roads was cut calamity befalls it. There was a woman in this morning who wanted to know how often I ate and what I ate. She was available for "good roads" so that the work much pleased when I told her some work already begun will not be much of the things were the same as they eat. They often send us some of their food and its really very good. They can't undertions were greatly reduced and many were stand why we're not married. They say, veloed entirely because of the governor's great desire to keep the total appropriations within the limit of the revenues. The legislature was far too lavish with the state's funds, and it required the marry for love, but they look so sad as it was war the most nitiable objects. A great many of the men have several wives and they all live together, and you can imagine how they would not be very happy. Way up north, near Thibet, women are so expensive that sometimes one will have five husbands or a family of brothers will have one among them. I met a missionary not long ago who works up there and written to Mr. Geist, dated Pathankot, Punjab, India, May 5, 1967, we are permitted to take the following extracts, which will no doubt interest many of our readows:
