He did not mean, he said, that the planet was to be destroyed, but that all the more of the species be planted in the streets. The reason for this action, it was claimed, was because of the damage done by the roots of the trees which spread to a great distance, entering sewers and causing much material damage. Gov. Rev. Richards, the circular published this week. "The re- Evangelical minister, who succeeds himsuit of the campaign of 1907 in this state self for another year, also preached his McCalmont. The gentleman is quite right in his conclusions regarding the probable outcome of the present campaign. There is not now and never has been the slightest reason to believe otherwise. Mr. Sheatz was as good as elected on the day that he was nominated, says the Titusville Herald.

THE following from the Punxsutawstay. ney Spirit will meet with quite general approbation: Senator Knox puts the case in a nutshell when he says that "Republican success in Pennsylvania this fall involves nothing beyond the indorsement of Republican policies and the call-ing of a well-tried and tested public ser-vant to higher honors and graver respon-sibilities for which honors he is eminent-ly qualified." The question is not one of rebuking capitol grafters. All good men, irrespective of party, are unanimous in their condemnation of peculation in multicoffunc and all are agreed that (its). ment of Republican policies and the calltheir condemnation of peculation in affliction. public office, and all are agreed that the place to try and condemn criminals is in the courts. Dishonesty is not a political issue. Mr. Sheatz was nominated in response to a demand for a candidate who could in no way be identified with machine politics or questionable methods. and there is no good reason why every man who believes in Republican principles should not vote for him.

It is bighly essential that every Republican should be prepared to fall in line on November 5th and vote the full Republican ticket. The fact that it is an off year and that little interest seems to be taken in the campaign should not deter any one or render any voter neglectful. It is every man's duty to go to the polls the first Tuesday in November and express his preference for state and county officials. While there is every indication of a sweeping Republican victory this fail, it will not be won by the stay-athome voters. The only hope of the Democrats lies in there being enough of this class of Republicans who will remain away from the polls and allow the election to go against them through indifference and lack of interest in the result. But every carnest Republican must take an interest in politics this year and through the election of its splendid ticket prove to the country that Pennsylvania remains steadfast and will be on hand with an old-fashioned Republican majority for the Presidential year. The election occurs in less than three weeks, and it behooves ticket.
