AMERICAN SOCIALISTS

Arrested at St. Petersburg With Four Finns.

Battleship Target Scores—Failure of Copper Corner—Carnegie Hero Awards—Governor Hughes Not a Candidate—Trans-Atlantic Wireless Service—Swift Canadian Justice.
William English Walling of Indianapolis, Ind., his wife and his sister-in-law, Miss Rose Strenski, were arrested in St. Petersburg Sunday night by gendarmes because of their association with several members of the Finnish Progressive party. They were held at the gendarmarie headquarters all night. A representative of the American embassy appeared at the headquarters in their behalf, but he could take no action until morning.
Kellogg Durland, another American and a friend of Mr. Walling, who has been in St. Petersburg gathering material for a series of lectures, was also taken into custody but later was released. No evidence upon which to hold Mr. Durland was found.
Mr. Walling is a wealthy Socialist. He is a grandson of the late William H. English, who was vice presidential candidate in 1880, when General Hancock ran for the American presidency. For several years past he has taken an active interest in the Russian struggle, and this is the third time he has visited Russia.
The Finns with whom the Wallings have been associating also were arrested. In this party are three men and one woman. The woman is the wife of Professor Malmberg of Helsinki university. The Finns have been in St. Petersburg several days. They have been under close police surveillance all the time. Saturday and Sunday the Finns, Mr. and Mrs. Walling and Miss Starnsky dined together and at night the entire party was taken into custody.
The arrest took place at the Hotel de France, one of the leading hotels of the city. The rooms of the Walling party and the Finns were thoroughly searched by a colonel of gendarmes and several assistants. This search lasted several hours. All the baggage and effects of the Walling party and the four Finns were opened, and the gendarmes took possession of a large quantity of books and documentary material.

Battleship Target Scores.

The navy department made public a synopsis of the report of the target practice by the battleships of the Atlantic fleet which was had under battle conditions.
The results were the best ever attained in the navy under similar conditions and it is announced that they have greatly encouraged the officers who directed the firing. They spent months of hard work preparing for this battle practice. The statement follows:
"All 12-inch and 13-inch guns averaged 30.7 per cent. of hits, 8-inch guns averaged 27 per cent., and 6-inch, 6-inch and 7-inch averaged 16 per cent. Out of 12 battleships firing, but three made low scores, less than 15 per cent., with 12-inch and 13-inch guns; the remaining nine ships made from 25 to 67 per cent. of hits. With 8-inch guns three ships made from 6 to 16 per cent., the remainder making from 27 to 57 per cent.
"The small guns—6-inch—were fired at the same range as the heavy guns and the results showed that these guns are of practically no use as battle weapons at such ranges.
"The target used was a rectangular piece of canvas 30 feet high by 60 feet wide. Had the target been as large as the profile of a battleship, it is estimated that at least twice as many hits would have been made."

Carnegie Hero Awards.

The regular fall meeting of the Carnegie hero commission was held Friday in Pittsburgh. F. M. Wilmot, the secretary, announced that 24 persons had received awards for bravery.
The number is the largest in the history of the commission. With the latest awards 126 persons have benefited by the hero fund, and 1,121 persons have been refused either money or medals. For the first time since the beginning of the hero fund, a negro received an award.
The largest award was a gold medal and $5,600 to Andrew J. Hodger of Santa Fe, Kan. Mr. Hodger is county superintendent of schools. Two men, Joseph King and William Nunn, were caught by a cave-in of sand while at the bottom of a deep well at Pierceville, Kan. Nunn was suffocated and King was slowly dying. Notwithstanding another cave-in seemed certain within a short time, Mr. Hodger had himself lowered into the well and saved King and recovered Nunn's corpse. The night after the rescue there was another fall of a ton or more of sand into the well.

Failure of Copper Corner.

Sensations followed each other in rapid succession in the financial district of New York as the result of the collapse of the projected corner in United Copper and the suspension of a prominent brokerage firm.
The firm of Otto Heinze & Co. was suspended on the Stock Exchange; F. Augustus Heinze, the Butte, Mont., copper magnate, resigned the presidency of the Mercantile National Bank of New York; the Amalgamated Copper company at its directors' meeting cut its quarterly dividend from 2 to 1 per cent.; the directors of the Boston and Montana Copper company declared a quarterly dividend of $5 against a former dividend of $12; the failure of Haller, Soebie & Co., prominent bankers in Hamburg, Germany, with liabilities that may reach $7,500,000, was announced; the State Savings bank of Butte, Mont., of which the Heinzes are the principal stockholders, suspended.

SOUTHERN WELCOME.

Union and Confederate Veterans Escorted the President.

Was Introduced at the Court House Square by Congressman John Sharp Williams—President Referred to Jefferson Davis as Favorite Son of Mississippi and the South.
Vicksburg, Miss., Oct. 22.—After a fortnight spent in the cane brakes, President Roosevelt, bronzed and vigorous, paid a flying visit to Vicksburg and made a speech yesterday afternoon.
The president arrived at Delta, just across the Mississippi river, at 1 o'clock. He was met by the steamboat Belle of the Bends, having a reception committee of 100 citizens on board. The president immediately embarked and followed by a dozen boats and yachts came over to the city. The bluffs overlooking the river were lined with people, who gave the chief executive a hearty and noisy welcome.
President Roosevelt entered a carriage at the pier, and with Mayor B. W. Griffith and General Stephen D. Lee headed a parade along the principal streets to the National cemetery.
The president was received with enthusiastic acclaim. The streets were packed with people, who cheered him at every opportunity.
At Cherry and Clay streets the procession was halted and General Lee, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, told the president that several hundred Union and Confederate veterans stood before him. The president arose and cordially shook hands with the old soldiers.
On arriving at the National cemetery the party drove slowly through the grounds, the president evincing a lively interest in the historic place. From the cemetery the party drove to the Court House square, where an immense crowd had gathered to hear the speechmaking. President Roosevelt was introduced by Congressman John Sharp Williams, who elicited great applause when he said:
"You cannot in the history of any country, ancient or modern, find a succession of 25 kings, emperors, or even prime ministers, the equals in intelligence, culture, courage or character of the 25 presidents of this great republic, from Washington to Roosevelt, inclusive."
"Of these I, a Southern Bourbon Democrat, have an American pride and pleasure in saying that 'The last is by no means' least."
"It is an honor for you and me, fellow Mississippians, to meet and entertain with an old-time, fulfilled Southern hospitality the Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, an honor flowing at once from his official dignity and from his many excellent traits of private character."
"He is our chief magistrate, America's chief magistrate, the reunited Dixieland and Yankeealand, never so firmly cemented in blood, opinion and sentiment as they are today."
Immediately after closing his address President Roosevelt and party were rapidly driven to the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley railway station, where a special train stood in waiting. At 5:30 o'clock the train pulled out for Memphis, where the president arrived shortly after midnight. The train was immediately transferred to the Louisville & Nashville railroad and started for Nashville.
In his Vicksburg speech the president said:
"It is indeed an honor for me to be today the guest of Vicksburg and of Mississippi, and I was inexpressibly touched by the greeting over the great arch of cotton bales which said 'Mississippi Greets the President.' I should not be fit to be president at all if I did not with all my might and main, with all my heart and brain, seek to be in the full sense the president of Mississippi, the president of every state in this Union. I am glad to be here in this historic city, this city forever memorable of the conflicts in which victor and vanquished alike showed such splendid courage, such splendid fealty to the light as it was given to each. Even before the Civil war Mississippi's sons had shown that they knew how to fight."
"It was from Vicksburg that a company of that famous Mississippi regiment which won undying renown in the Mexican war under the gallant leadership of its colonel, who afterward became the favorite son not only of Mississippi but of all the South, Jefferson Davis, came. Think how fortunate we are as a nation that it is possible for the president of the nation to come here today to be conducted through your National park by the surviving lieutenant general of the Confederate army and to feel that every instance of heroism recorded by the monuments, alike to the Union and to the Confederate dead on that battlefield, is a subject for just pride to every citizen of this nation, no matter where he lives."

Cunarders' Pay For Carrying Mails.

By reason of their speed, the new Cunarders, the Lusitania and Mauretania, will receive from the United States from $4,000 to $6,000 every time they leave New York, for carrying first-class mail destined to Europe. The Lusitania took her first consignment of mail on her last sailing. No contract to this effect is necessary because the rate to be paid—35 cents a pound—is fixed by international arrangement between the postal authorities of America and Europe. The only contract this government has for carrying the mails to Europe is with the American line, to which is paid a subsidy amounting to $4 a mile on the outgoing voyage, no matter what amount of mail is carried.

Trans-Atlantic Wireless Service.

The Marconi wireless stations at Glace Bay, N. S., and at Clifden, Ireland were opened for the transmission of trans-Atlantic business Thursday. The first day was occupied chiefly in the handling of press messages. These consisted in a great part of congratulatory messages exchanged between the press of New York and London and London and Montreal.
The first message eastward was from Sir Wilfred Laurier, premier of the Dominion of Canada, who felicitated the English people upon this new means of communication between Great Britain and Canada. The first westward message was a press dispatch to New York.

Agricultural Conference.

The condition of agriculture in New York state will be discussed at a three-days conference to be held at Syracuse Oct. 23, 24 and 25. The conference was called by the Syracuse Chamber of Commerce. Among the speakers will be James Wilson, secretary of agriculture; F. H. Godfrey, master of the New York State Grange, and many others. A letter from President Roosevelt giving his view at length on the question of farm conditions will be read at the convention.

Proposed Change in Panama Canal.

Lieutenant H. H. Rosseau, civil engineer in the navy and member of the Isthmian canal commission, has arrived at Washington from Panama and laid before Secretary Metcalf a proposition to increase the projected width of the Panama canal which is now planned at 100 feet in the locks. The recommendation is based upon the rapid increase of beam in naval construction since the canal plans were formed. Secretary Metcalf will take up the matter with the president as soon as possible.

The U. S. signal corps balloon No. 10, in which Aeronauts J. C. McCoy and Captain Charles Def. Chandler of the United States Signal corps ascended at St. Louis Thursday evening, passed over Illinois and Indiana and across Ohio and Friday night it landed in the vicinity of Point Pleasant, W. Va.

In Prison an Hour After Arrest.

The swiftness of Canadian justice is proverbial, but a case in the criminal court at Toronto Thursday probably holds the record even for Canadian courts. Horace Mountain, a mail clerk employed in gathering letters from street boxes, was arrested at 10:45 a. m., charged with robbing the mails. At 11:10 he was arraigned and pleaded guilty and within an hour from the time of his arrest being served a term of four years imprisonment.

Kruger's Grave Desecrated.

A sensation has been caused by the discovery that the grave of President Kruger, who died in Switzerland July 14, 1904, and whose body was interred at Pretoria, has been desecrated. The marble bust of the ex-president has been torn from its base and badly chipped. The desecration is believed to be the work of thieves who expected that a reward would be offered for the bust, but which they found too heavy to carry off.
