Honesty in Carpet Selling

As in Everything Else, Must Prevail in the End.

Does it pay to offer for sale a common Tapestry Brussels, masquerading as a Five-Frame Body Brussels, or a Cotton Chain Ingrain as a Park Mills All-Wool Extra Super? Will it profit in the end to advertise in bold face type such and such a quality of this or that make at an interestingly low price when in reality long metre profits are demanded when the customer swallows the bait and asks to see the goods advertised? We think not. At least we prefer not to do business that way. We'll sell goods just as they are, or not at all. A Tapestry Brussels here will always be called a plain "Tap," and the balance of the carpet family must stand on their own merits.

We've good reasons for sacrificing prices on our carpet stock. As stated in former "ads" we have decided to take half of the space now devoted to this department and use for other purposes. We've great improvements in store for next season—hence these prices:

40c and 45c Union Ingrains, a heavy, stocky, serviceable carpet—we should judge about one-third wool and two-thirds cotton. Our entire assortment at 29c a yard.

Best All-Wool Extra Supers—mind you, not cotton chains, or inferior quality, but our best makes, all of them. Our entire assortment at 49c a yard.

Eight-Wire Tapestry Brussels, such well-known makes as Smith's and Sanford's, splendid patterns. Our entire assortment at 50c a yard.

Ten-Wire Tapestry Brussels, the best of makes, all of them, Sanford's, Roxbury's and the like. An assortment of carpets we can recommend for wear. Our entire line of patterns at 79c a yard.

And so it runs right through the entire stock of Carpets, Linoleums, Matings and Rugs. These prices will serve to illustrate the way we are selling. If you've a carpet purchase in anticipation, don't neglect this chance.

Pennsylvania Railroad.
Bulletin.
THE NEW UNION STATION AT WASHINGTON.

All the passenger trains of the Pennsylvania Railroad will enter and depart from the new Union Station at Washington on November 17, 1907, and on the same date the present station at Sixth and B Streets will be closed to traffic.

The date is singularly fitting. In 1807 both wings of the Capitol were completed, and now a century later a building even larger is opened for a great public utility, which did not exist at that time.

The railroad terminal facilities at Washington have been inadequate for years, particularly at inauguration periods and on the assemblage of other large gatherings at the Capital. Their improvement was imperative and so it has come about that, by the combined efforts of the railroads and the United States Government, one of the largest and unquestionably the handsomest railroad station in the world is now provided not only for the convenience of the citizens of the United States, but as a notable architectural addition to the great public buildings of the Capital City. It is a monumental edifice and a worthy type of the future structures, which will make Washington the municipal beauty spot of the world.

The station including the Concourse is longer than the Capitol and nearly as wide. The waiting room is larger than the hall of the House of Representatives. The concourse, which is the train lobby, is longer than the interior of the Capitol building, if it were one continuous hall, and half as wide. It is the largest building ever constructed for a like purpose.

Within this great structure there is every convenience the traveler can desire, so grouped about the central hall as to serve his purpose to the best advantage.

The lofty arched entrances face a plaza as large as an ordinary city park, which will be laid out as a plaza and adorned with shrubbery and fountains.

The trackage is sufficient for all demands upon it and the entrance to and exit from the trains are separated, the confusion and jostling of hurrying crowds moving in opposite directions will be obviated.

The bigness of the station is impressive; its utilities obvious.

Explanation of Mikado's Message.
Washington, Nov. 12.—The Japanese ambassador expressed regret that a passage in an imperial rescript on education, issued on Oct. 30, 1890, and read every year on certain festival occasions, admonishing subjects of Japan to offer themselves to the state in cases of emergency, had been interpreted in published reports from Honolulu as a special message from the emperor relative to the celebration of his birthday. The ambassador said that it is not the emperor's practice to issue a message on his birthday and that the passage quoted in the reports, "should emergency arise, offer yourselves courageously to the state," is simply an excerpt from the 17-year-old rescript addressed by the Emperor to Japanese students through the minister of education.

EVIDENCE POINTS TO MURDER
Indications of Desperate Struggle For Money Victim is Said to Have Carried.
Johnstown, Pa., Nov. 12.—Badly mutilated and showing evidences of having been shot repeatedly and terribly beaten, the body of William Cline of Bolivar, Westmoreland county, was found a short distance from that town in a field. He had been murdered and robbed of a large sum of money.
Two weeks ago Cline sold a large sawmill he operated about three miles from Bolivar, obtaining the price in cash. He started at once to walk to the residence of relatives in Bolivar, with the cash in his pockets, and that was the last seen of him alive. Although a vigorous search had been prosecuted for the man it was unsuccessful, notwithstanding that the remains lay in a field near a public highway during that time.
When found Sunday last the condition of the ground gave signs of a terrible struggle. The earth was torn up over a space of a quarter of an acre and the doomed man had evidently made a terrific struggle for his life. It is not known what sum Cline received for his sawmill, but it doubtless was large, and someone who knew that the transaction would be closed that day lay in wait for the man, murdered him and made off with the coin. Cline was quite well-to-do and was a prominent citizen of Bolivar. There is no clew to the murderer.

Brothers Fight For Girl.
Washington, Pa., Nov. 12.—At a party given at the home of Daniel Stickle's in Hartley township, Greene county, Thomas Rice, aged 32, and Martin Keener, aged 22, half brothers, quarreled over the former's alleged attentions to Keener's sweetheart. Keener, it is alleged, plunged a knife into his brother's back and then slashed upward as he withdrew it. Rice's liver and right lung were cut and Dr. Harry Scott of Waynesburg, who attended him, says there is not the slightest hope of recovery. Rice refused to make an information against Keener, who escaped.

Found Dying Girl In Vacant Lot.
Beaver Falls, Pa., Nov. 12.—A forerunner passing through a vacant lot in 15th street at 4:30 o'clock Sunday morning found Miss Anna Brickner, aged 22, lying unconscious and with mouth and throat burned by carbolic acid. The girl was carried to her home nearby, where she died in the afternoon, without regaining consciousness. She was seen Saturday night in a drug store, where she purchased carbolic acid, saying it was for a friend with a sore foot. Later she was seen with two men in New Brighton.

It Pays to Advertise.
New Kensington, Pa., Nov. 12.—At a raffle conducted by the Elks here last July, A. C. Tomer, a telephone lineman, won a diamond ring, but he left town before his luck was known. One hundred and thirty letters were written to various parts of the country and advertisements were placed in 50 papers in the effort to locate him. He has finally been located in Bergen, N. J., and the ring will be forwarded to him.

England's Historic Miser.
John Camden Neild, whose magnificent bequest to Queen Victoria supplied the funds out of which the prince consort built the present Balmoral castle, deserves a place among the great misers and was as remarkable a man as any of them. He was educated at Eton and Trinity college, Cambridge, and was a barrister at Lincoln's Inn. At the age of thirty-four his father's death placed him in possession of a fortune of £250,000, and from that moment he became a confirmed miser. Neild lived at 5 Cheyne walk, Chelsea. His big house was so meekly furnished that it did not even boast of a bed. Two old women, who did his chores, and a black cat were his sole companions. When he visited his large estates in the Midlands, which he did frequently, he generally walked unless he could get a lift for nothing, and he was not even above taking a gratuitous seat on a dung cart. Sometimes he was compelled by the weather to take a seat on the stagecoach, and there he would sit outside, shivering and dripping, for he never wore a greatcoat, an object of commiseration to his fellow passengers.

Lincoln's Rebuke.
The saying that there are few honest lawyers did not hold true in the case of Lincoln. A man once called to retain him on a suit.
"State your case," said honest Abe.
The man did, and then Lincoln said: "I cannot represent you, for you are wrong, and the other party is right."
"That is none of your business if I employ you," said the client.
"Pardon me," said the man who afterward became president; "my business is never to defend wrong. I never take a case that is manifestly wrong."
"Well, but you can make trouble for the other fellow."
"Yes," said Lincoln. "I can set a noble community at loggerheads. I can make trouble for this widow and her fatherless children and by so doing get you $500 that rightfully belongs to her, but I won't do it."
"Not if I pay you well?"
"Not for all the money you are worth," was the reply.

A Warrior Too.
The wooden boards that had marked the graves in a certain rural cemetery rotted off and were raked up in the spring cleaning. Consequently on Memorial day when the delegation from the G. A. R. arrived with flags and appropriate floral decorations for their departed comrades the decorating committee found itself somewhat in doubt as to which grave belonged to Captain Bledgett and which to Hannah Erlason. The mistaken delegates heaped their offerings upon Hannah's last resting place and departed. That afternoon Erlason, the widower, drifted, with the rest of his world, to the cemetery. When he saw the flag and the flowers above Hannah the astonished Swede fell to chuckling joyously.
"Well," he exclaimed delightedly, "dose fatter hane poofy smart too! Ay tank dat vor all right and som gude yoke on Hannah—he vor poofy gude fighter herself!"—Youth's Companion.

Devonshire Terrace.
Dickens was twenty-seven years old when, in 1839, he moved from Doughty street to Devonshire terrace. George du Maurier lived for some years in 1 Devonshire terrace. In this celebrated house Dickens wrote no fewer than ten of his books—"The Old Curiosity Shop," "Barnaby Rudge," "The Christmas Carol," "American Notes," "Martin Chuzzlewit," "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," "The Pickwick Papers," "David Copperfield," "Devonshire terrace was situated at the corner of the Marylebone road and used to be called the smallest terrace in London.

It Varied.
The late Judge Saunders of North Carolina was noted as an angler, but he had a poor memory as to the weight of the fish he had taken. On one occasion a friend, trying to outwit him, said, "Say, Judge, what was the weight of that big catfish you caught the other day?"
The judge turned to his waiter and said, "Bob, what did I say that catfish weighed?"
"What time yesterday, boss—in de maw'nin', at dinner or after suppah?"

The Moon.
Astronomers long since came to the conclusion that the moon's surface is very hot during the height of the lunar day, which, as will be remembered, lasts two weeks, and very cold during the lunar night, which is equally long. These extremes of temperature reach their height at the lunar noon and midnight and are greater than any natural temperatures on the earth.
