week that Claude Hepler of this place was held under $1,000 bail for his appearance at Warren on the charge of violating the postal laws. The amount of the bail was fixed at $500 instead of $1,000,

Friday and break one of the bones in her right ankle. Surgical attention was speedily given and the fracture reduced and she is now getting along as well as could be expected. The Sheriff was down been made before he got here and his wife was going about the house with the Sheriff Stroppe took young Grant Gibbons to the Huntingdon Reformatory last week, but was refused admission on account of the account of the youth's age, 12 years. Upon notification of this fact the court directed the Sheriff to take the lad to the Morgantza Reform school, which was done. County Superintendent Morrison, as the sheriff's deputy, accompanied him to Pittsburg and delivered James Engle to the penitentiary authorities, where he will serve a two-year sentence for selling lewd pictures.

Constables should understand that there is a bounty of $20 each on horse thieves. After discovering an old law, enacted by the Legislature of 1821, which provided a reward for the capture of horse thieves, Constable J. H. Butz, of Schuylkill Haven, Schuylkill County, walked into court Wednesday and created a mild sensation by demanding $20 for the capture of Howard Witman, who was sent to prison this week for stealing a horse belonging to a Pottsville liveryman. After looking up the law the Court directed the County Commissioners to pay Butz the full reward.

It is probable that Jack London will achieve as wide a reputation as a traveler and journalist as he has won as a novelist. Already he is well on his voyage around the world in his little sailboat Snark. The voyage itself is dramatic and perilous, for the crew of the little boat consists only of Jack London, his wife and a lone sailorman. Mr. London is seeing the strange places of the world at the instance of the Woman's Home Companion, in which publication soon will begin to appear his description of places and people, written at white heat, on the spot.

Frederick Bailey, aged 74 years, died suddenly at the County Home, on Friday last, from the effects of a paralytic stroke sustained the evening previous. The deceased was born at Catfish, Clarion county, and for about 10 years had been a resident of Barnett township, this county. He was brought to the county home about three months ago, where he had been in good health until stricken as above noted. Three sons and one daughter survive. Short services were held at the home at noon Saturday by Rev. W.
O. Calhoun, after which the body was taken to Clarion for burial.

Assistant general agent, Robert W.
Herbert, of the State Board of Charities, gave our county an official visit Wednesday last week and made a close inspection of the jail and county home, with all of which he seemed well pleased.
He complimented the sheriff upon the neat and comfortable jail surroundings, and at the county home he made a specially scrutinizing investigation. On leaving the institution he lavishly complimented the steward and matron upon the excellent condition in which he found everything, few equaling and none excelling the Forest county home in the state.

W. O. Noxon, of this city, will ship 150 nice fat turkeys to Endeavor, Forest county, Wednesday afternoon. The birds will be consigned to Congressman Wheeler. They are to be distributed among the employees of Mr. Wheeler, and this is a custom he has followed for many years.—Oil City Blizzard.

Mrs. McLaren, wife of W. D. Mc-Laren, editor of the Warren Mirror, died at a private hospital in Buffalo, Tuesday noon, of last week. She had undergone an operation at the hospital recently and was doing nicely, when she suddenly collapsed and expired. Mr.
McLaren's many newspaper friends sympathize deeply with him in this sore affliction.

burg, Pa., for particulars. Seedmen and pete.

John Hargenrider, son of Philip Hargenrider, of Fryburg, Clarion county, was struck by a train and instantly killed near Linwood station, a suburb of Philadelphia, Saturday morning. The deceased was 24 years of age and had been employed as a long man of a pipe line construction gang that was employed near Philadelphia. He was waiting for a passenger train to pass on the B. & P.
W. railroad and was standing on a parallel track and failed to note the approach of the fast freight which struck him and threw him into the air and about 50 feet away. Besides his parents he is survived by four sisters and two brothers.
His body was brought to his late home at Fryburg for interment.

After a short deliberation a jury of Elk county men at Ridgway found James Ryan guilty of attempting to kill a train crew on the Pennsylvania railroad. The trial was exceedingly interesting and much expert testimony was employed.
A railroad detective, in testifying that the half cake of ununed cap, the nitro-glycerine and the fuses found on Ryan's person were burglar's instruments. When asked how he knew that this was true the witness stated that he followed such work for two years about 20 years ago. It will be remembered that a train crew was just about to put Ryan, alias Cy Tuna, off the train when he dropped a bottle of nitro-glycerine which exploded and maimed four of the train crew and blew the clothes off Ryan, not injuring him in the least. The engineer of the train had his leg torn off.—Kane Republican. Ryan was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary.

Five young lads of Marienville of tender age, who have been assiduous readers of the "blood and thunder" literature of the nickel variety, made up their minds that their homes furnished too narrow a field for persons of their talent, culture and ability and they decided to run away and get out where they could have a chance to win fame by conquering the world and fetching it back home by the tail says the Clarion Democrat. Among them they got possession of $65 and this seems to have been divided among them. Two of the party when the test came, backed out, but the other three got to Clarion and were ready to leave for the "wild and woolly west," but unfortunately they were overtaken at Clarion by ex-sheriff Bowman, who took care of them and returned them to their homes. It is hoped their experience will teach them over that craze and that they will get better reading in the future.

Bids for the reconstruction of the road through the borough of Tionesta were opened at the State highway department at Harrisburg last week, and it was found that the bid of Beck & Ott, of Warren, was the lowest and the contract will be awarded to that firm. The distance to be covered for the present is 7248 feet, extending from the borough line at Tobus run to the river bridge. A meeting of the officials interested was held at the court house yesterday to consult over the matter, at which were present the county commissioners, the borough council, Mr.
Beck, one of the contractors, Mr. Wynne of the state highway department, and many citizens of the borough. At this meeting it was agreed that brick paving would be asked for from the bridge to the Walford property at the upper end of the town, the road to be 18 feet wide from the bridge to May street, 16 feet wide from May street to the lower corner of the cemetery, and 12 feet wide from the cemetery to Walford's. The balance of the road is to be macadam.

Capt. Wm. McCann, who will make his home at Nebraska this winter, was a pleasant caller at the REPUBLICAN office Monday, and was feeling quite jubilant over the manner in which Uncle Sam had treated him of late, in the increase of his quarterly pension voucher. But his greatest joy was occasioned by a little incident that happened just a few days ago. Some years ago his attention was called to the fact that there was due him a sum of money earned while acting as Captain of his company in the Civil war, though not commissioned for several months afterward, the difference in the pay of a commissioned and non-commissioned officer being $25 per month.
Not long after making his application he received Uncle Sam's check for $400 due on this account, but the cute old Uncle had kept tab on the fact that at some period of the war there was a revenue law in effect, and on this account had retained $10.46 of Capt. McCann's pay.
Now this wasn't so very much, but he figured that as Uncle Sam had held his money for over 30 years he ought not to exact the revenue. And it is evident the government took the same view of the matter and last week remitted the extra $10.46. It was over this little victory that our veteran friend felt the most satisfaction.

Gas Explosion Near Nebraska.

On Sunday afternoon Gerard Bingham, residing in one of the houses that stands at the lower side of the road at the watering trough a half mile below Nebraska, was very severely burned as the result of a gas explosion at his house. He had gone with his wife and sister, Mrs.
Charles Harrison, to attend the funeral services of the late Mr. McCullough at the Nebraska church, having as they supposed, first turned off all the gas in the house. Returning about half past one o'clock, Mr. Bingham discovered a strong odor of gas as he opened the door, and cautioned the women to remain outside while he investigated. Entering the house he opened one of the room doors, when instantly the explosion came, and so terrific was it that many of the windows were blown out sash and all, while the side walls of the building were so bulged out that daylight shone through the four corners of the house. A kitchen connected with the main part was separated several inches from the building.

Mr. Bingham made his escape through the kitchen door, just how he can hardly tell, for the whole inside was a mass of flame. He was taken to a neighbors, just across the way, and Dr. Bovard was summoned by telephone. He found the unfortunate man seriously burned about the face, head, wrists and one ankle, the most exposed parts of his body, and suffering great pain. Although the danger point had not been passed yesterday, the favorable report which the doctor had from his patient leads him to believe he will recover without further complications, as it was evident he had inhaled none of the flames.

It seems the gas leak was caused by a small rubber hose, with which one of the stoves was attached, becoming disconnected, allowing the gas to escape into one room, but confined and prevented from igniting with a jet that had inadvertently been left burning in another room, until Mr. Bingham opened the door leading to this room, unaware of the fact that there was any flame or fire in the house.

The building took fire but was saved from burning by the efforts of neighbors, but not until many of Mr. Bingham's household goods were ruined.

Death of James M. McCullough.

James M. McCullough was born in Prospect, Butler county, Pa., and died in Nebraska, Pa., Nov. 22, 1907, aged 61 years and eight months.

After reaching his majority he spent five years in the west, when he returned and has since made Nebraska his home.
He was united in marriage in August, 1887, to Miss Gertrude Thomson. Their married life was most pleasant and her death thirteen years ago was a blow he keenly felt. For the sake of his children he took up the burdens of life and in a large degree succeeded in his plans.
About eight years ago he was terribly burned in a gas explosion which caused him months of the most intense suffering and from the shock of which he never entirely recovered. A year ago last September his son Ivan was accidentally killed on the S. & T. Railway and he was inconsolable. The past year he steadily declined in health, yet he was able to attend to his duties until four weeks ago, when he sustained a fall that hastened the end. He was not confined to his bed, dying in his chair, surrounded by his friends. He united with the M. E. church in Nebraska under the pastorate of Rev. W. W. Dale and shortly before his death affirmed his readiness to depart.

He is survived by a son, William R., and one daughter, Alice E.; also one brother, Presley McCullough, of East Hickory, and a sister, Mrs. Lizzie Jones, of New Bethlehem.

The funeral services were held Sunday in the church in Nebraska by Rev. W.
O. Calhoun, in the presence of a congregation which crowded the edifice to the doors, and his body was laid to rest in Riverside cemetery in Tionesta beside the bodies of those he so dearly loved.

Conclusion of Court Business.

The November court in session last week concluded its business on Friday evening after a short night session.

When our report of the proceedings closed, the trial of the cause of T. D. Collins vs. The South Penn Oil Co. was in progress. After a full hearing of the jury, acting under instructions of the court, rendered a verdict for the plaintiff.

The next case taken up was that of G.
W. Robinson vs. G. H. Lowe. In this case the jury, after deliberating all of Thursday afternoon, rendered a verdict in favor of the defendant. The case involved the question of the defendant's right to a leasehold of land belonging to the plaintiff and located near the new oil field on the McKee farm, on the west side of the river.

The case of the Enterprise Transit company vs. T. D. Collins, involving the title to lands in Kingsley township, from which the defendant had taken most of the timber, was taken up Thursday noon.
Upon hearing the court directed the jury to find for the defendant in the case.

It is thought none of these cases will stop short of the Supreme court.

Crossman's Camp.

J. B. Campbell is building a very fine cellar.

G. N. Lachner is teaching writing school at Pleasant Grove school. He is a fine penman. Miss Grove, teacher of Greenwood school, attended last Friday night.

Florence Braden was visiting friends on the hill last week.

Mr. Stewart has purchased a very fine Jersey cow.

Robert Black killed a fine hog last week. They had a pleasant time, it being after night when they butchered and had all the neighbors invited. After the butchering was over Mr. B. treated them all to a chicken supper.

Last Saturday Barrett Maze invited the men employed at Crossman's to a big chicken dinner. The men all say they ate dinner until they would not want any more for a month, but I think they forgot about Thanksgiving being so near.
