8100 REWARD. The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address, F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.

Neglected Colds Threatened Life. [From the Chicago Tribune.] 'Don't trifle with a cold.' is good advice for prudent men and women. It may be vital in the case of a child. Proper food, good ventilation, and dry, warm clothing are the proper safeguards against colds. If they are maintained through the changeable weather of autumn, winter and spring, the chance of a serious cold is greatly lessened. The greatest menace to child life at this season of the year is the neglected cold. Whether it is a child or adult, the cold slight or severe, the very best treatment that can be adopted is to get Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is safe and sure. The great popularity and immense sale of this preparation has been attained by its remarkable cures of this ailment. A cold never results in pneumonia when it is given. For sale by Dunn and Falton.

PIONEER LIFE.

A SHORT HISTORY OR REMINISCENCE OF THE HOLEMAN FAMILY FROM THE EARLY PIONEER DAYS DOWN TO THE PRESENT TIME. The pioneers of America led a life of great danger, very different from anything that is known here today. The men worked in the fields and woods with rifles by their side, and each hut or cabin was built like a fort, with holes in the sides of them to shoot through, for no one knew at what moment the savages would rush out of the woods upon them with musket and tomahawk. Those were times such as can never come again in this country. In the early pioneer days there were no large and beautiful buildings like we see today. Most all the buildings were merely small log huts. I don't remember whether it was in the state of Pennsylvania or near the state line, that a band of Indians, who were on the war path, massacred all the white settlers they could find and burned their cabins. My grandfather, who lived there, had a negro wench living with them. One morning she was out milking the cows when she saw the smoke where the Indians were burning the cabins of some white settlers. She ran and told my grandfather, and grandmother and the negro wench took their children and ran to a fort. The Indians were so close to them when they got to the fort that they caught the negro wench by the dress, but my great-grandfather, who could not run so fast, was taken prisoner by the Indians and had to run the gauntlet. He got free but was crippled for life. After the Indians became friendly my grandfather moved to Venango county and settled on the Allegheny River at the place now known as Holeman flats. He reared a family of five children, two sons and three daughters. The daughters got married and left home, but the sons, Charles and Alexander, stayed with their father on the farm and also kept and ran a ferryboat across the Allegheny River, at the old state road which ran from Lake Erie to some of the eastern counties. They had no playmates in these days except young Indians. The name of these Indians was what is now known as the Cornplanter tribe. There was one white family living up where Holeman is now and one living at Hills.

When Alexander grew to manhood he enlisted and served in the militia in the war of 1812. He was at Lake Erie and fought under General Winfield Scott. While he there a soldier by the name of James Bird was sentenced to be shot for going to sleep when on duty. The general sent a man to the governor for a reprieve, but when he got nearly back he heard the report of the guns which killed James Bird. Alexander was very hard to get back with the reprieve that the animal fell dead under him. When the war closed Alexander went back to his old home on the Allegheny River, where he married Miss Clara Sexton, of Meadville, Pa. They reared a family of nine children, five sons and four daughters. In those days people had to go fifteen miles to a grist mill and carry the grain on horse's back, and had to bring their other provisions from Franklin in canoes until some years later the steamboats commenced to go up the river from Pittsburgh as far as Tidoute. When the children grew to school age school only three months of the year, but they studied hard at home in the evenings by the light of pitch pine torches and got an education, so that six of them were school teachers. Alexander was elected and served two terms as Justice of the Peace. He was also the first Associate Judge of Venango county, in which capacity he served three terms. He was also elected a Representative of Venango county in the State Legislature one term, and as there were no railroads or stage lines then, he had to walk all the way to Harrisburg. His sons were all in the mercantile business—Charles in Crawford county, Ashbel at Pitsantville, Pa. John and Eli at Tionesta, and Richard at Mill Village, Pa. Alexander and his wife, four of his sons and two of his daughters are dead. Two sons and two daughters are still living, as follows: John, of Pleasantville, Richard, of Mill Village, Nancy Dale, of Tionesta, and Mary Maze, of Clarington. (Written from memory by Mrs. Mary M. Maze, of Clarington, Pa.)

Recent Deaths. WALLACE. The following tribute to the memory of Miss Cora Wallace brief mention of whose death was made in these columns last week, is taken from the East Brady Review: The deceased was born at Brady's Bend, and practically all her life had been spent in this neighborhood. She was a young woman of markedly bright mentality, and possessed many lovable traits that endeared her to a large circle of friends. Though an invalid for the past ten or twelve years, and shut in from active affairs of life, these hours were not spent in idleness, but in the cultivation of letters and art in which she took a keen interest. She was a connoisseur in literature and painting, and had gathered about her a valuable library of rare books. In painting she was an artist of no mean order, and a number of canvases attested to her skill in this direction, and as a painter of china she also excelled. Miss Wallace was also an author of some note, and had written several treatises on the care of house pets, in which she took an interest. Ambitious in her search for knowledge, her ambition outran the frail body which housed the indomitable spirit, and finally after years of suffering, the brave soldier was broken, and the spirit returned to Him who gave it. The funeral services were held at the late home Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Harry S. Bates, of Findlay Lake, N. Y., assisted by Revs. Lafferty, Miller and Mayne, of East Brady. Taking for his text, "For I have conquered death," Rev. Bates spoke eloquently of the departed. During the services Rev. Miller and daughter sang several duets. The floral tributes were many and beautiful, the room in which the body lay in state being filled with the choicest blooms.

Leaving here he moved to Titusville, afterwards Youngstown. Four children survive him, Mrs. A. J. Thompson of Titusville, Miss Mary at Youngstown, Miss Charlotte of Jacksonville, Fla., and John of Conneautville, Pa.
