MR. WHEELER AND THE INDIANS.

A Letter From One of Them Brings Him Back to Days of His Youth.

A few days ago Representative Nelson P. Wheeler, of Endeavor, Pa., arrived at Washington, where he served his first term in the House, his rapidly expanding mail contained a letter which took him back to the days of his early youth when as a lumberman he was accustomed to make the perilous logging journey from the headwaters of the Allegheny to the out-rushing waters of the Mississippi.

At the close of the revolution the Ohio Company granted the old chief 600 acres of land in the "Northwest territory."

—A man seems to think if he can't be anything else he can be a politician, and usually he is right.

HIS DIPLOMACY

When Mrs. Hardiman received her sister's letter telling her all about Kathleen's unfortunate affair, her matchmaking instincts were up in arms.

Three days later Mrs. Hardiman held her sister's reply in her hand. Kathleen would be delighted to come. It was the very thing of all others.

It was an afternoon of June, pale and sweet with orange blossoms. Rows upon rows of the waxen-leaved trees made a garden grove down below the rose lawn.

Mrs. Hardiman came out on the terrace and flourished a slip of yellow paper in her hand.

Old Mrs. Ogdan, seated on a twisted oak chair, looked up with a questioning smile.

"My niece will be here on the 6:20 train," the other announced, sinking down opposite, "and that horrid old Billy is laid up again with his everlasting 'rheumatix.'"

"Oh, yes," he said. "I think I can manage them fairly well."

He hurried her on to the trap, and in a minute they were whirling off through clouds of dust.

"But I thought you were on board the Silver Star, en route to Australia!" she exclaimed when she found breath to speak.

"That was all bosh, Kathleen. I never had any intention of putting the ocean between us. After the way we were broken up I thought I'd just hang around until you were off age."

"Poor mamma! She firmly believes that she knows my own mind better than I do myself."

"And suppose I were to tell you that I was about to become very wealthy?"

"It would make no difference whatever in my—"

Somehow to the girl's surprise he deliberately turned the horses' heads and drove back the other way.

"Claude! You're going wrong."

Nothing Doing.

"Do you allow children in your flat?" she asked of the janitor.

"We do, ma'am."

"Small children that like to play on the stairs?"

"Yes, ma'am. Most of all our tenants have children."

"May I bring my little dog in the flat if I want to?"

"No objections whatever, ma'am."

"May I play the piano after 12 o'clock?"

"As late as you please, ma'am."

"Cook onions?"

"Certainly."

Bulletin. JUNE ON THE GREAT LAKES.

Restful, delightful, interesting, and instructive, there is no trip like that on the Great Lakes, those inland seas which form the border line between the United States and Canada.

For comfort the fine passenger steamships of the Anchor Line have no superiors. As well-appointed as the palatial ocean greyhounds which plow the Atlantic, their schedule allows sufficient time at all stopping places to enable the traveler to see something of the great lake cities and to view in daylight the most distinctive sights of the lakes, and the scenery which frames them.

The trip through the Detroit River, and through Lake St. Clair, with its great ship canal in the middle of the lake, thence through Lake Huron, the locking of the steamer through the great locks at the Soo, and the passage of the Portage Entry, lake and canal, across the upper end of Michigan are novel and interesting features.

The voyage from Buffalo to Duluth covers over eleven hundred miles in the five days' journey. Leaving Buffalo, the steamships Juniata and Tionesta, make stops at Erie, Cleveland, Detroit, Mackinac Island, the Soo, Marquette, Houghton and Hancock, and Duluth.

The 1908 season opens on June 16, when the Steamer Tionesta will make her first sailing from Buffalo.

The Anchor Line is the Great Lake Annex of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and the service measures up to the high standard set by the "Standard Railroad of America."

An illustrated folder, giving sailing dates of steamers, rates of fare, and other information is in course of preparation, and may be obtained when ready from any Pennsylvania Railroad Ticket Agent, who is also prepared to book passengers who may desire to take this trip through the Great Lakes and back.
