MODEL GARMENT

Made from The Ladies' Home Journal Patterns and from appropriate fabrics on sale in our store. See window display.

We wish to convince you that The Ladies' Home Journal Patterns have no equal as to simplicity and smartness of style.

In order to do so, we show in our window today an assortment of dresses made from The Ladies' Home Journal Patterns and in the latest Ladies' Home Journal styles.

These dresses are as pretty as can be, and yet they are simple—so simple that any home dressmaker can duplicate them with little effort and at small expense.

In addition to being the most stylish and the simplest to use, The Ladies' Home Journal Patterns are the most economical-they do not waste material.

This display illustrates most forcibly the possibilities of these patterns when used with appropriate materials—and the materials in which they are made may all be had at our store.

And best of all, the garments will cost you less than half their value if you will buy the pattern and materials and do the making yourself.

HUGHES' CANDIDACY.

Senator Agnew Says There Was Little Real Support For Him at

New York, June 28.-State Senator George B. Agnew, who introduced one of Governor Hughes' anti-gambling bills in the legislature and one of the delegates to the Chicago convention, said that he does not believe Governor Hughes can be renominated this fall. He further said he believed that the governor had lost popularity markedly in the past two months, and added that he did not believe he could be forced upon the Republican party.

Mr. Agnew indicated that there was universal resentment felt toward the governor by the delegates and politicians who went to Chicago.

Another interesting bit of political information supplied by the senator was that Speaker James W. Wadsworth, Jr., had informed his friends at Chicago that he did not desire to be considered for the gubernatorial nomination.

In response to a query as to the talk about the renomination of the governor among the delegates, Senator Agnew said:

"I do not believe the governor can be named again. I do not believe, in addition, that he will be a candidate. I believe that in the last two months he has lost ground markedly. Then the politicians, without exception, are very resentful toward him."

"How did they talk about him on the train?" was asked. "They talked as if they were done with him, and with unmistakable bitterness.' "Then there was little real support for Hughes in the New York delega-

"Very little." "Do you favor the renomination of Hughes?"

"No, not at the present time; it's a little too early to be for any one, but I don't think he could be forced upon the party. I did feel earlier in the year that when Hughes had a little more experience in official life he would show some of that 'red blood' that they talk about. But every time I mention the subject every one says 'no' and I begin to think they are

"I think, officially, he has made an ideal governor, and I think he is perfectly sincere in his belief that he should not pay any attention to his friends or follow their advice. But I believe, if he had heeded his friends instead of having taken advice from outside he might have been nominated at Chicago."

"What if he should announce his candidacy for the renomination for governor?"

"Well, I don't believe he could be named. Certainly he could not if his boom were in the hands of the same people who had charge of his prestdential boom.

"How would the New York county Republican organization stand on the matter, if the governor announced his

"Did you hear any other candidates for governor suggested?" was asked. "The most I heard was that Speaker James W. Wadsworth had told his friends he did not want to be considered for it. I think he could have the nomination, if he wanted it; that is, of all the up-state men, he seems to be the most available, but it was the understanding out at the convention that Wadsworth did not want it."

Forty Families Made Homeless.

Portchester, N. Y., June 23,-Defying the efforts of firemen from this and several nearby towns, a fire raging uncontrolled for two hours before it was checked destroyed a block of buildings, rendered forty families homeless and entailed a loss of $500,-000. The fire broke out in the large building of the Burns livery stables. occupied in part by the Borden Condensed Milk company. Sparks communicated with adjoining buildings and aid was asked from Rye. Harrison, East Portchester and Greenwich fire departments. The entire block bounded by Westchester avenue. Broad street and Factory place was burned to the ground and buildings on both sides of Irving avenue were destroyed. The Baptist church, half a mile away from the fire, was set ablaze by sparks and was partially destroyed.

Study of Public Ownership.

London, June 23. - Colonel John Van Wormer, vice president of the Lincoln Safe Deposit company, now in Europe on a holiday, has been studying the question of municipal ownership. The colonel, who is a member of the Civic Federation, does not think public ownership of public utilities an anqualified success. He finds it has resulted in the burden of taxation being enormously increased and that, while all the smaller officials are scrupulously honest, the men right up to the top display human weakness as much as their brethern in the United States. This, he says, also applies to business men.

Kaiser Opposes Congo Settlement. London, June 23 .- The Brussels correspondent of the Chronicle quotes a leading Liberal deputy as saying that Germany means to intervene in the Congo question as soon as the Belgian parliament votes for the annexation of the Congo Independent State. She intends to protest against one of the clauses of the transfer treaty and this will inevitably provoke another international conference on the Congo question. The Kaiser and Chancellor von Buelow have agreed on the subject, and King Leopold has been notified

Spanish Swindle Is Exposed. The department of state has been advised by the Spanish minister that the authorities at Madrid have discovered a private office from which the alleged swindlers operated who sent to the United States fraudulent letters forming part of what has been known in this country as the "Spanish estate swindle." The minister states that the person in charge of the office has been arrested, and his books seized, which contained the addresses of numerous persons residing in the United States. It is thought possible that there are still branches of this swindling society existing.

State Rallways to Be Electrified.

The Westinghouse electric interests in Germany, it is announced, have formed a combination with the Bergmann Electric company of Berlin, whereby the Bergmanns will install the Westinghouse electric traction systems in that country. The combine has been formed for the purpose of furnishing the enormous requirements of the Prussian state railway administration which has decided to electrify the steam railways, $12,500,000 already having been appropriated to begin this work. The Bergmann Electric company is a semi-American concern, as the head of the company, Sigmund Bergmann, was the partner of Thomas A. Edison for a number of years. The company has works in Berlin employing 5,000 men.

Roosevelt Announces an Innovation. Secretary Loeb has announced from Oyster Bay that there will be a change in the inaugural ceremony at Washington next March. It has been the custom of the new president and his predecessor to ride together to the White House after the oath of office had been administered at the Capitol. President Roosevelt has decided to change this, and no matter who his successor may be, Roosevelt will not accompany him to the White House. Immediately after the ceremony at the Capitol, Mr. Roosevelt will leave for Oyster Bay, where he will remain until about the first of April, when he starts on his hunting trip to Africa.

Singleton-Hello, old man! You're looking blue. What's up? Wedderly (gloomily)-The price of Why when and how to preserve eggs.

THE QUALITY WAY

There are at least three pertinent reasons for preserving eggs.

1.—If you desire fresh eggs in winter, when prices are high, you can have a sursupply of better eggs than you can be certain of being able to buy at the grocery.

2.—If you keep hens and wish to hold your eggs for a better price, you can, by the 'Quality' method, positively preserve them so that no test except incubation can determine that they are more than a week old.

3.—Should you wish to speculate by purchasing eggs when price is low and selling when price is high, you can do it and know that your eggs are far superior to the best cold storage eggs on the market.

The shell of an egg contains a multitude of pores which are filled with organic matter. After twenty-four hours, if exposed to the air at a temperature above 34°, this matter slowly decomposes, allowing air to enter the egg carrying with it the noxious gases which attack the albumen through the affinity existing between these gases and the sulphur contained in the egg. After a day, under usual conditions, the egg is no longer "strictly fresh" and becomes a little worse each day until it is "only fit to throw at the ampire.

The effect of greasing the shell does not stop the process of decomposition, neither does the whitewash (or lime) process. Cold storage is ineffectual because sometimes the temperature gets too high, and in plants where ammenia is used this gas may be the means of giving the egg an indescribably bad flavor. Oats have no preservative qualities, and packing in salt simply retards the gases of decomposition from escaping into the atmosphere and aids its ingress to the interior of the egg. So, any of these methods are failures in regard to preserving the egg an indescribably bad flavor. Oats have no preservative qualities, and packing in salt simply retards the gase of decomposition from escaping into the atmosphere and aids its ingress to the interior of the egg. So, any of these methods are failures in regard to preserving the quality of the egg.

Thus it becomes a can distinguish them from newly laid eggs by any test except an attempt at incubation.

In the Spring months eggs are plentiful and the price is low. The farmer's good wife gathers the eggs from day to day and it may be the accumulation of two or three weeks that she finally sells, honestly believing that they are "strictly fresh."

The grocer buys eggs and places them in baskets occupied by older eggs. He sells fresh eggs from these baskets every day, but does not reach the bottom until broody hems reduce the supply and he is still selling "strictly fresh" eggs, some of which have been in stock six weeks or more. They have been preserved by the "open air" method, and if you depend upon the market for your supply the quality of the goods is always a coundrum. In the meantime the price has advanced, so that eggs which cost 13c, are sold for 22c.

The owner of hens cannot afford to sell eggs at any time for 13 cents a dozen, but is obliged to if he knows of no way to preserve their quality perfectly while waiting for the price to rise.

WHEN TO PRESERVE EGGS.

WHEN TO PRESERVE EGGS.

Many people have flocks of hens that are prolific layers from April till September. After that they rarely lay enough eggs to pay for their care.

Quoting from our local market, (and we have kept tab several years) the price in April is 15c retail, and the grocer pays from 14c to 16c. In May you can get 13c if you have less than five dozen in the basket. In June and July half the hens are broody and prices advance so the grocer pays 18c and does not ask if the eggs are "strictly fresh." In August the price advances to 20c, and in September to 22c. October marks 25c. November 30c, and during the next three months fresh eggs find a WHEN TO PRESERVE EGGS.

that they rarely lay enough eggs to ing the next three months fresh eggs find a ready market at from 32c to 34c. The retail price is always from two to four cents higher.

Now, it is quite apparent that if eggs laid in July and August are preserved till December they will show a profit of ten cents a duzen.

It becomes plain, therefore, that the perfect preservation of eggs for periods of four and five months will result in a nice profit on the money invested, whether that investment is made in hens or in fresh eggs, and there is no doubt as to the vesult, as the demand is always present and the market open.

demand is always present and the market epen.

That this can be done at a nice profit and never sell an egg unfit for food, we positively know

For our own family use we preserve the eggs laid in July and August, and they remain perfectly fresh, with no change in flavor, until eggs are plentiful again, in the Spring. HOW TO PRESERVE EGGS.

HOW TO PRESERVE EGGS.

This problem has been the subject of constant investigation all over the world for half a century, and it was less than ten years ago that a successful method was discovered. The discovery was not made by us, but we have tested the method thoroughly and carefully for five years with the most satisfactory results. We call it The "Quality" Way, because the quality of the egg is perfectly preserved. We have kept eggs more than a year and they were still good, hence, we are honest in our belief that eggs can be kept in a perfectly fresh condition longer than anyone needs to keen them.

We have supplied a great many people with the method, and, where instructions were carefully followed, there were no failures.

The process is simple, the labor insignires.

The process is simple, the labor insignicant, the material inexpensive and at the nd no traces are left to indicate that the ggs have been "kept." The most skilled xpert cannot tell the difference between an ggs four months old and one laid the day sefore, by candling, breaking, whipping or before, by canding, breaking, whipping or cooking.

We will supply you with explicit instructions for preserving eggs the "Quality Way" for one dollar, and there will be no atrings attached to the purchase.

Having purchased the instructions they are yours to do with as you please. You may sell or give the method to your neighbors if you choose, or you can keep your own cannael and let them wonder why your hens produce an absordance of eggs at a time when their own hens are "cating their heads off".

If you care for a supply of fresh eggs for off

If you care for a supply of fresh eggs for your own table, all winter, this process is werth more to you than the price asked.

It will not make a bad egg good, but it will preserve fresh eggs continually fresh for an indefinite period.

Nothing is used that is polson or caustic, or that penetrates beyond the shell.

If you are sufficiently interested, send us a deltar and the instructions will be pramptly forwarded. Address:
