NATIONAL. President, WILLIAM H. TAFT, of Ohio. Vice President, JAMES S. SHERMAN, of New York. STATE. Judge of the Superior Court, WILLIAM D. PORTER, Allegheny County. COUNTY. Congress, Hon. N. P. WHEELER. President Judge, Hon. W. E. RICE. Assembly, A. R. MECHLING. Prothonotary, J. C. GEIST. Sheriff, S. R. MAXWELL. County Commissioner, J. M. ZUENDEL. W. H. HARRISON. County Auditor, A. C. GREGG. G. H. WARREN. Jury Commissioner, ERNEST SIBBLE.

WELL, it's Billy Bryan we've to lick again this fall. Guess when our friend Taft sits on him he'll know he's licked all right, and he'll stay licked.

CARRY NATION advises the girls never to marry a man who smokes, chews, drinks, swears, attends races or ball games, or tells falsehoods. Good gracious! If the girls should take Carrie's advice what a swarm of old maids we'd soon have in this land of ours.

THAT MAN KERN, John W., out in Indiana, isn't any too well known throughout the country districts, but that's possibly to his advantage. However, as the job of being Vice President will go to "Sunny Jim" Sherman of York State, it doesn't matter whether this Hoosier Democrat is much acquainted anyhow.

BY THE WAY, what has become of the State Railway Commission? The Punxy Spirit wants to know. It was organized some months ago, but beyond that nothing has been recorded in the way of service or useful achievement. We trust the members of the commission and of office force have not neglected to draw their salaries.

BYRAN's treatment of Guffey will not help the Nebraska statesman. No man is big enough to publicly sandbag his former friends and not pay the just penalty in due season. Bryan cut the acquaintance of an old friend recently because the old friend ventured modestly to disagree with him concerning some of his revolutionary policies. That shows a spirit of intolerance that is not admirable, to say the least.—Punxy Spirit.

ON the Fourth of July 1,400 people, including the inmates and employees of the state insane asylum at North Warren, were treated to ice cream and during the afternoon a baseball game was played for their entertainment. In the evening there was an unusual display of fire works. During the entire day there was no disturbance. Among the large body of people who were entertained, 1,230 were patients at the asylum.

IN the political contest now opening the Republican party will be placed in a position where it must demonstrate that prosperity is really returning. In other words it must labor to build up and encourage it. The Democrats, on the other hand, will seek to obtain votes by calumny howling. It might, incidentally, be mentioned that each party will therefore be in its favorite element, the one trying to build up, the other striving to tear down.—Oil City Blitzard.

MR. TAFT's imperialism, such as it is, is far from unsafe, hazardous, adventurous. It is sane, prudent, and courageous. It neither courts nor shuns responsibility. Ten years ago he would have avoided taking over the Philippines, if that had been possible. Since he has labored faithfully and with indomitable perseverance to guide the people of the islands toward self-government, with independence as the goal and reward of their efforts when they should both wish and be fitted for it. No man has more firmly or loyally held to the American ideal than he, none has more wisely dealt with the obstacles in the path of its achievement. Calm, confident, and sagacious, he has pursued his course very steadily, and in some important regards his career has been absolutely without parallel.—New York Times.

Sheldon Treasurer George R. Sheldon, the new treasurer of the Republican national committee, made the following statement: "The position of treasurer of the Republican national committee came to me absolutely unsuspected. The national committee, Secretary Taft and Mr. Bliss, who always has been an honored friend of mine, believing that I could be of assistance in the coming campaign, have called on me to take my seat in the boat. I have responded to the call, as any loyal Republican would do, and that is all there is to it. "I fully appreciate the honor and responsibility conferred. I notice that the newspapers already have resurrected the old charge that I am connected with the trusts. As I have never yet heard a satisfactory definition of that bugaboo I don't know whether I am or not. "I am a banker and I am a director in quite a number of corporations. They are all, however, legitimate enterprises doing business in an honorable and honest manner. I have no apologies to make for any of them. I am proud of my profession and my position of trustee for the many stockholders I represent. "In regard to the question of campaign expenditures I may say that I am and always have been in favor of publicity."

TERRIFYING RAIN STORM.

Tremendous Damage Suffered Throughout This Section of Forest County by Torrential Rain.

By far the most destructive flood or rainstorm within the memory of any inhabitant visited this section on the night of July 13. The ruin wrought to the roads or highways within its scope is simply appalling, many stretches of one to three miles in length being practically obliterated and are left in an irreparable condition. The cloudburst, for it can hardly be called less, covered a radius of 10 to 15 miles, extending in a circular shape from Tionesta borough west through a portion of Harmony township almost to Fagundes, around the headwaters of Stewart and Dawson runs, and West Hickory creek; thence across the river above Trunkville and through Hickory township, taking in the streams of Hickory, Otter, Beaver and Little Hickory creeks; thence over the ridge in Kingsley township, embracing the watershed on the west side of Tionesta creek and on down to Nebraska in Green township where the fury of the storm seems to have abated to some extent. Within this scope the damage to private and public property is almost incalculable, but will reach close to the $100,000 mark.

The storm set in shortly after seven o'clock Friday evening but did not reach its height until about nine o'clock. From then until after midnight the down-pour was almost incessant here. At Hickory it poured or came down in sheets for six hours without a moment's let-up, and gages showed that fully 12 inches of water fell in that time. Every stream and gully became a raging torrent which swept everything before it. Strong bridge structures with massive stone abutments were carried away as though they had been mere egg shells. Public roads along the several streams were wiped out of existence and many of them now resemble the bed of the streams that once coursed by their sides. Railroads along Hickory and Beaver creeks and Ross run are torn, twisted, carried off their beds and covered with all sorts of debris, and in many places for miles the roadbeds are a mass of rocks and deep gullies.

Beginning in this borough the arched culvert at Tubbs run, built of solid masonry several years ago at a cost of $1,100, was swept away completely, some of the huge boulders being carried into the river eight rods below. A private lumber road on this stream is totally ruined. The home of Martin Naisgiver, located a short distance up the run was in the track of the torrent. The inmates were cut off from escape and had to spend the night in this perilous predicament, not knowing what minute the house would be swept to destruction, the floors in the meantime being covered with water to the depth of nearly two feet. A flourishing garden was converted into a mass of rocks, every particle of soil being washed away. Collins, Darrah & Co. of Nebraska had three barges and two flat boats tied up at the mouth of Tionesta Creek, which went adrift in the night. The barges landed on the head of Hasler Island and were later taken off without much damage. The boats were fringed and tied up a short distance below Franklin.

On up the river at Little Hickory creek the havoc is astonishing. Not a sign of a bridge is left and nearly three miles of road is obliterated. Just above the mouth of this stream for a distance of three-quarters of a mile, is the road known as "the narrows." This road is almost a continuous mass of slides, some of which extend to the very top of the hill about 400 feet above the road bed. Three thousand dollars will scarcely put this road in good condition for travel again.

By far the greatest loss to public and private property was suffered by the citizens of Hickory township. Almost every road in the township was damaged more or less, some of them irreparably. The road up Beaver Valley for nearly four miles is scarcely discernible so fearfully it is washed out. The Hickory Valley railroad, owned by Wheeler & Dusenbury, and their logging road running up Otter creek are both almost a total loss for several miles, the rails only being about all that are worth saving. Much the same condition prevails over on Ross run along which the H. V. road runs for several miles.

The firm of Wheeler & Dusenbury at Endeavor loses by this flood to the extent of nearly if not quite $50,000. Upward of 2,000,000 feet of their logs were carried away, fully one-half of which went into the river and are almost a total loss. Damages to the two mill dams are heavy, as is also the loss in partially wrecking the new gage mill. The pretty little town of Endeavor was badly torn up in many places. Geo. W. Warden's residence property was terribly cut up by the torrent which came down a ravine at the rear of his house. Great rocks and boulders were rolled into his garden which now has the appearance of a gravel bar in the river. Similar conditions prevail at W. H. Stiles, and other property in that vicinity.

Down at East Hickory the grist mill pond of T. J. Bowman was swept out clean, and the undermining of the cemetery next to the creek will necessitate much ripping up or the removal of a number of graves which are in danger of caving in. Three large fields planted to corn, potatoes and other cereals belonging to J. S. Henderson, Judson Clark and T. J. Bowman are washed down to the gravel, and nearly every garden in the place was ruined or badly damaged. Huge logs and driftwood of every description were banged up against the houses, many of which were surrounded by the rushing waters. M. E. Abbott's family was in the most precarious condition while the flood was at its height, being cut off from all communication with their neighbors with a raging stream on all sides of them.

Harmony township fared little better than their unfortunate neighbors across the river. The road leading from west Hickory to Fleming Hill, along Siggins run, is ruined beyond repair and a new survey will have to be made before it can be again opened to travel. Along West Hickory creek and McArthur run the same wreck and ruin is noticeable. Scarcely a bridge is left on either stream, the best ones all being swept off. Railroad culverts and trestles passing over these streams were washed out badly. It required a gang of nearly 300 men with steam shovels more than two days to clear the P. R. R. track above West

Hickory station. The McCabe lumber company, operating on West Hickory creek, which lost quite heavily in the flood of a few weeks ago, was again caught and sustained considerable damage. The South Penn Oil Co. also sustained damages to the extent of $1,000 in the loss of oil in tanks, and the tearing up of their lines.

On down the river the Dawson run district got a bad dose, every bridge being taken and the wagon road mostly washed into the Allegheny river. Walter Dawson's domicile near the station was in the midst of the torrent, and narrowly escaped complete demolition. His garden looks like the head of an island with not a sign of vegetation in sight. It is said that about every bridge in Harmony township worthy of mention has been flood swept.

Up in Kingsley township every bridge on Ross, Jug Handle and Jake's runs is gone. The S. & T. railroad below Kelleitville was put out of commission for several days by slides, but the storm did not strike that side of Tionesta creek so severely, and trains are again running on regular schedule.

The singular thing about this destructive and terrific flood, and at the same time most fortunate, is the fact that no casualties whatever are reported. Coming as it did in the dead hours of the night, when all was inky darkness it would not have been surprising had there been a number of bad accidents if not fatalities. The money losses can be borne, and while some will be distressed it is a matter for profound congratulation that no lives were lost.

The Supervisors of Hickory township have ordered an election by the voters to determine whether they are willing to incur the necessary indebtedness to put the highways again in passable condition, and have posted the following notice that effect:

To the Electors of Hickory Township:— You are hereby notified that an election will be held at the Election House in the said township on Tuesday, August 11, 1908, for the purpose of balloting on the question of whether or not the debt of the said township be increased. Amount of last assessed valuation, $154,900. Amount of the existing debt, $1,750. Amount of the proposed increase, $5,000. Percentage of proposed increase, .0487 per cent. Purpose of proposed increase: To rebuild roads and bridges destroyed by floods of July 3, 1908. By order of road Supervisors of Hickory Township. GUS B. EVANS, Secretary.
