MR. BRYAN'S greatest recent disappointment is his failure to arrange a fusion with Mr. Hearst.

THE report that a serum worth $15,000,000 has been discovered in a pig's tail is certain to make the public whistle.

PHRYN has arrived at Labrador and taken on a supply of whale meat. The beef trust must have overlooked this loophole in its fortifications.

MR. HEARST says Mr. Gompers notified him that a separate Hearst ticket would elect Taft. Mr. Gompers foresees defeat at an early stage, but did not intend that Hearst should resort to publicity in the negotiations.

TAFT clubs are reported to be multiplying in the western part of Tennessee, where Republicans have hitherto been scarce. Instead of getting the Middle West Mr. Bryan is likely to lose a slice in the Middle South.

LAST year, according to the report of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the employees on railroads numbered 1,672,074. Mr. Bryan recommended this addition to the list of government employees, but has since executed another of his expert crawfish movements.

THE Pennsylvania Spirit pertinently remarks that the Pennsylvania Democratic State Committee, at its recent session in Harrisburg, in proportion to its size and weight, sat upon "Jim" Kerr quite as potently as the Denver convention sat upon "Jim" Guffey.

HERE is an editorial opinion from the New York Press which every Republican and every progressive and consistent Democrat ought to read and consider carefully. "Secretary Taft, as this paper sees the need of the American people and the best interests of the country, ought to be elected. We believe that it would be a positive disaster to the Nation for Mr. Bryan to be sent to the White House in place of Mr. Taft. We hope for the election of Mr. Taft and we shall do all that we know how to help achieve that result. Mr. Taft ought to be elected, but the only way we can make sure of putting him in the White House as the successor of Mr. Roosevelt is for the Republican party to go out in this campaign and work at its level best."

MR. SAMUEL GOMPERS has been smothered out. He is on the run. In the current number of the Federationist, the official organ of the American Federation of Labor, he denies that he ever claimed to be able to deliver the labor vote of the country into the hands of the democratic party. He never said anything of the sort, he declares, although he does believe that the republicans did not give him and his anti-injunction plank the consideration they deserved. And he goes on to snarl at those workmen who might not accept his estimate of the god-like gifts of the peerless leader, and may possibly vote against him. Mr. Gompers has persuaded himself that he ought to be taken very seriously by the political leaders. A man of his consequence must not be ignored or slighted or treated with contempt. He believes the republicans have not been respectful enough, for which reason—and possibly others—he proposes to persuade, bulldoze or houndwork his fellow workmen into supporting Bryan.

State Constitutional Amendments. The amendments now pending in the Legislature in this State abolishes the spring elections entirely, and stipulates that in the even numbered years in November the State and county officers shall be elected, and in the odd numbered years the municipal elections shall be held in November also. Of course the Presidential elections would occur in the even numbered years. Offices the term of which is three years are made four years. Those that are now five years are increased to six years. Election officers chosen for one year would serve two years under the proposed change.

As to the State officers, the Auditor General, who is now elected for three years, would serve four years, and the State Treasurer's term would be increased from two to four years. Justices of the peace and aldermen would be increased from five to six years, and all county officers, councilmen and school directors would serve four years. The change would wipe out the February election, reduce the primaries from two to one each year and provide for only one personal registration.

The second of the three proposed amendments provides that municipalities may contract indebtedness to the amount of ten per cent. of their total assessed valuation. The present constitutional limitation is seven per cent. The third of the proposed amendments consolidates the courts in Philadelphia and Allegheny counties, so that there shall be but one court each. There is little objection to any of the amendments except possibly the one authorizing an increase of city debts. There are some scruples against relaxing this restraint. The other two amendments are, however, fairly certain of popular approval. All three have passed the Legislature, and if they pass a second time will be submitted to a vote of the people.

Next week the REPUBLICAN will begin the publication of these proposed amendments, which will run through for three months.

We've Got a Telephone.

We've got a telephone at last, And wife is quite content. She says the news comes in so fast She hasn't spent a cent For literature of any kind,— She hears the neighbors tell So much of things that're going on. She listens for that bell, And when some one begins to talk, She takes the receiver down, And then she knows how everything is going on in town. I'd like to use the phone sometimes And get the price of grain, And call the Weather Bureau up, And learn when it will rain. But all the women on our line Have got so much to say, I wait and wait, while other men Are drawing in their hay, And then I say a word or two And wish that telephone Was anywhere but in my house, Or I'd a line alone.

Neighborhood Notes.

Bradford will entertain 125 fresh air children. Monday afternoon of last week a bolt of lightning struck the home of Thomas Hoover at Barnes, Warren county, and instantly killed his six-year-old son who was playing by the door.

The one hundredth anniversary of the organization of Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., will be fittingly observed at Salamanca, Aug. 4, 5 and 6. One of the novel features used in advertising the event is an aged couple driving through the country in a wagon hauled by oxen.

Following an investigation by an officer of the State Board of Health, seven Erie milkmen were charged with selling either watered or skimmed milk as the pure article, and after a hearing before an alderman, six or seven were each fined ten dollars and costs or thirty days in jail. Hearing that carbolic acid would remove a corn, Miss Elsie Knaut of Jersey Shore placed a piece of cotton saturated with the poison between her toes. Two toes were badly burned and gangrene set in. The little toe was amputated two days ago, and the other one may have to be.

It is interesting to observe the prices quoted by the newspapers of Dawson City, Alaska. Here are some on the list of necessities: Cabbage, 25 cents a pound; new apples, $1 a dozen; oranges, $1 to $2.50 a dozen; eggs, $1.25 a dozen; butter, two pounds for $1.25; sugar, ten pounds for $1; bacon, 35 cents a pound; soap 10 cents a cake.

Work was started last week on removing the big hill at the south end of the railroad bridge at Redbank. A steam shovel is in operation and several cars of dirt are removed each day. What the object of the railroad company is in removing the hill has not been given out, but the impression prevails that another bridge will be put across Redbank at that place so that trains on the Low Grade can be run through without making a shift at the junction.—Kittanning Tribune.

Damage by Electrical Storm. A loss of $25,000 was caused by an electrical and hail storm which raged over Cassadaga and Lillydale assembly grounds and the town of Arkwright Friday night. Several barns were hit by lightning and burned, trees uprooted and buildings unroofed by the terrific wind, and whole fields of corn, wheat and oats were leveled. A wall of a large new residence collapsed, practically ruining the building. Hail stones fell as large as birds' eggs.

—How times have changed. An exchange figures that in former times when a man got a pain in the stomach, his wife laid a hot stove lid on him and the next morning he was able to stop the hogs, feed the calf and kick the cat. Now if he gets an uncomfortable feeling back of his waistband, the doctor calls it appendicitis, lays him on a table, cuts a hole in his anatomy, and he—dies maybe. Again, in the old days you could take your razor or jack knife and trim your corns, put on your boots and plow all day. Now if you ever scrape the top of your horny toe blood poison sets in and off comes your leg. This is the strenuous age and don't you forget it.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surface of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. More of Ruth's Blah.

Adam Ruth, or James Frank Barnes, as he calls himself, who has confessed to the Copeland robbery at Pithole, is still blabbing in the Franklin jail, and there are some who seem to believe his sensational stories are true. He tells the reporters he knows all about the Blevins murder at New Castle, and that the plans which resulted in the brutal killing of the old city treasurer were talked over in the penitentiary, and he was present when they were laid. Blames Dan Wilder for being implicated in the murder and that there were three "who did the business." Says he had a half-sister living in New Castle to whom he wrote about the plans and "asking her to co-operate with my pal," and so forth. This story, or one similar to it was told by Ruth once before while in the penitentiary, and at that time it was thoroughly investigated by Lawrence county officials and detectives, who found there was nothing in it, and who believe now that he is telling it to get notoriety of which he seems quite fond.

Barnes or Ruth, also told the reporter of several little jobs he has done himself in this section. "Say, do you remember of a house burning to the ground near Newmansville, in Clarion county, back some distance from the John Everhart farm?" he asked, addressing the reporter. Upon being answered in the affirmative, Barnes continued: "Well, it was I who set that house on fire. I was robbing the house and there was a large lamp burning in the room I was searching.

"The adjoining room was separated by long curtains hung on a pole, and I took the lamp off a table and in setting it on a stand that stood close by the curtains I set them on fire, and in an instant the whole room seemed ablaze. With what booty I had I hustled out of the house and got away as soon as possible.

"Another job which I did was at or near the mouth of Charley Run. My pal and I went together to do the job, but when we got nearly to the house he flunked and wouldn't go any farther. So I determined to do it myself, and as I went into the house a dog which was lying behind the door flew at me, and to protect myself I gave it a couple of kicks which settled it. This angered the old man; his name I believe was Jacob Adimo or some such a name. Anyhow he picked up an axe handle and dealt me a terrible blow. This so angered me that I gave him an awful beating with my fists. Afterwards I took everything I could find of value and got away as quickly as possible. This robbery I committed in broad daylight, on the 18th of February, 1889. The man I robbed and beat I understood afterwards was an engineer, or rather pumped some oil wells on Charley run. "The two pals who helped Wilder do the New Castle job were ex-convicts, and I think I can lay my hands on them now."

Barnes told the reporter that he knew all about the Kiser murder in Clarion county, and that robbery was only intended, but it was absolutely necessary to kill the old man to protect the ones doing the job. Yes, I know the party who committed this murder and all the details of the job. And so was it in the Everhart murder case. This job was planned solely with the intention of robbery. The way these women happened to be murdered is this: When the robbers entered the house only one of the women was present, and she screamed and hollered so that to keep her quiet they had to kill her. They went out of the door leading to the spring house and met the other woman, who had been sent in to protect themselves took her into the spring house and cut her throat. In leaving the house they went directly across the road and climbed over the fence, and got away through the fields. This is why no one ever saw them in the country, for they kept out of sight from the public highway."

Barnes in his recital of robbery and murder seemed actuated only by the motive of revenge on Wilder for his betrayal of him and sending him to the penitentiary for two terms. He realizes he is in for the pen, again on the Pithole robbery case, the planning of which he charges to Wilder. He reiterates that Wilder knows all of this country like a book, and has been in Oil City, Butler, and in fact all of the towns in the country of any note.

RUTH'S SISTER MAKES STATEMENT. Mrs. Elizabeth Ryhal, of New Castle, Pa., half-sister of Adam Ruth, the "confessor," makes the following statement to the New Castle News:

"We have been immeasurably annoyed by that man," said Mrs. Ryhal to a reporter. "Although he is a half-brother of mine, I am through with him. He was the means of leading my boy astray and has since threatened me, my daughter and property. He only finished a long penitentiary term less than a month ago, and we, knowing that he was out of jail, were terribly afraid until we heard he was back of the bars again. His right name is Adam Ruth, although he told the local officials that it was Addison. He has a great many aliases. He was born near Oil City and my mother resided there for several years. Finally, Adam was such a bad boy that my grandfather undertook to raise him. He found that shortly after Ad. had entered his home everything was going wrong. The harvest in the stable was always cut and missing or destroyed. Finally, things went from bad to worse. Every effort of my grandfather to help the boy was unavailing, and he at last sent him to the reformatory. If he is sent to the penitentiary from Venango county this time, as I hope he will be, he will have been in the penitentiary seven times. He is never out of trouble or out of jail, it seems. If he is out for a few weeks he is always pulling off some job and in his criminal work he is as bungling as he is in his lying. He always gets caught and has to suffer the consequences. He never sent me a letter telling that Wilder would be here to pull off a job. The tone of his remarks makes it appear that I was an accessory. About the time mentioned he wrote to me from the Western Penitentiary telling me that a man named Shell had finished his time. He said he had told Shell to go to New Castle and visit our home and try, through my husband, to get an honest job. Shell appeared at our house. He was a bad-looking man and I gave him my supper, but would have nothing more to do with him. Shell left us and loitered about town for several days and was finally arrested for pulling a job at Mahoningtown. He returned to the penitentiary for that. We have long since stopped believing the stories of innocence that Ruth has written to us in an effort to have us help him out of cases. He has cost us a great deal already."
