Arrest of George W. Fitzgerald Former Teller.

Fleet Leaves Sydney Thursday-Gov ernor Johnson Renominated-Conge Annexed to Belgium-Holland's Ac tior. Against Castro - Proceedings Against Coal Roads - Marking o Freight.

The mystery of the theft of $173, 000 from the United States sub treasury in Chicago a year and a hall ago is believed to have been solved by the arrest of George W. Fitzgerald Other persons are believed to have been implicated in the crime.

Fitzgerald was an assorting teller under Assistant United States Treas urer Boldenwreck. Suspicion at the time of the theft, Feb. 20, 1907, rested on him, but so plausible was his story and so intense his apparent interest in dis covering the real culprit that interest ceased to center in him.

Fitzgerald, however, was discharged from the government employ for culp able negligence in allowing the theft to be committed. The money stolen had been used and was tied in packages, some having been marked for destruction at Washington. Any of the bills would readily have passed anywhere except for their large denominations. None of the bills was under $500 and some were of the $1,-000 and $5,000 denominations, the $10,-000 ones predominating.

Meantime Herbert F. Young, a former Chicago newspaper reporter, and new head of the Young secret service. became interested in the case. His attention was re-directed to Fitzgerald. The latter upon his discharge from the sub-treasury stated that his whole fortune consisted of $500 in cash and a stock certificate for $1,000. His wife had a $700 interest in the estate of her mother, which was valued at about $4,000 and was in litigation. Fitzgerald, however, according to Mr. Young, embarked in speculation on a scale not consistent with the size of his reputed means. There was however, no ostentation in Fitzgerald's life Last fall Colonel Harry C. Gano, a bustacas man, reported to Mr. Boldenwreck, it is said, that Fitzgerald had approached him with a proposition to pass several $1,000 bills, declaring there was $500 in it for Gano. Gano, it is reported, declared Fitz-

The festivities at Sydney in connection with the visit of the American battleship fleet will come to an end on Wednesday and on Thursday the fleet will leave for Melbourne.

Congo Annexed to Belgium. The Belgian press welcomes the end of the agitation of the Congo question with expressions of relief and assurance that Belgium will demonstrate to the world her power to humanely and wisely govern the African country. The Independence Belge says that the senate's concurrence for annexation is certain, and that, therefore, "the grand work accomplished by King Leopold will not be lost to Belgium.

The Derniere Heure declares "We must obliterate the reign of twenty bloody years, wipe out hatred, dissipate distrust and prove to the world that the Congo's woes and ills are over forever."

Other newspapers point out that the Congo debt difficulties will certainly be adjusted by parliament and declare that financial fears are unnecessary. The annexation of the Independent State had been received by the public generally either with indifference or the opinion that the Congo would prove a burden upon the country.

Marking of Freight.

The public service commission in the Second district of New York state announced its final order in the matter of marking less than carloads shipments of freight. It provides that when articles are not boxed, barreled, crated or sacked, but are shipped loose in pieces, one out of every ten pieces must be marked. If the shipment consists of less than ten pieces at least two must be marked.

This rule is to apply to flour, feed, cement, lime or plaster in sacks, Not more than ten such markings shall be required of any one shipper, and any marking must show the total number of pieces.

Making Money by Giving Advice.

Human nature has been very much the same since the beginning, anl there have always been philosophers and givers of advice. Battleships at Sydney.

Early on Thursday a thin vell of smoke on the horizon signalled to the watchers on the coast the approach of the American warships and at 5:35 official notification was sent out that the fleet had been sighted. It was yet 20 miles outside of Sydney harbor, but this word which had been awaited eagerly by tens of thousands, stirred Australians like a call to arms, and almost instantly those who had not already left their homes took up points of vantage along the bays and were moving in droves to line the quays, the roof tops and other places on the harbor-front, to watch the coming of the guardships of the New World.

The fleet left Auckland at 8:15 Saturday morning and with the exception of one day had fair weather all the way to Sydney.

Promptly at the appointed time I found myself standing on the steps of a great gray stone house in a beautiful residential district, with my new-found friend.

On the stairs inside we met a servant in livery who passed my host without notice but bowed to me instead. I wondered at the strange proceedings, but in another moment was led into a large, well-lighted room where a fire burned cheerfully.

It was a sort of sitting room filled with heavy comfortable chairs and tables strewn with books. Through a half opened door I caught a glimpse of a bedroom beyond with soft tinted walls and simple elegant appointments. Through this door my host disappeared, closing it behind him after he had drawn a chair before the fire for me and invited me to make myself comfortable during his absence. From time to time from the bedroom came muffled sounds as if heavy drawers were being opened and their contents displaced. For a long time I waited while the fire burned brightly and a drowsiness crept over me. Still my host continued his search in the bedroom and did not reappear. I think I must have dozed, for the next thing I knew 1 was selzed by a
