

Exquisiteness in Millinery.

Millinery room is a perfect bower of beauty, the exquisite models in both French Hats and modes of the metropolis, calling out in richest tones that spring is fast coming.

While hats are in many instances very large, shapes of medium size are just as good style as the extremely mammoth ones. They are different this season and particularly becoming with the stylish coiffure as the hat rests down low on the head, drooping more or less all around, although the brim does roll sometimes at the edge.

Materials particularly in favor this spring include leghorns, rough braids, flowers in vast abundance, and fancy feathers in most exquisite novel effects.

It would seem that the colors were never more beautifully combined. There are the rich tapestry shades-soft, beautiful blues, greens, and fruit shades.

There is a becoming hat for practically every face, and stylish to the extreme.

While Millinery, Waists and Garments

Naturally predominate in a spring opening we would ask you not to fail to see the superb new ideas in Silks and Dress Goods, in Gloves, Neckwear-and the countless other things in which style so frequently changes.

Interesting Pen Picture of Senator Penrose.

In a late issue of "The Saturday Evening Post" there appeared the folowing concerning Pennsylvania's senior Senator

"Penrose has developed a system of philosophy for his personal guidance that is embodied in the brief creed, What's the use?' If he is attacked by a muckraker and is asked to reply he shrugs his shoulders and says, What's the use?' If he is blamed for something he has or has not done and is asked for an explanation always he says, 'What's the use?' Once, when he was the subject of a particularly bitter attack, several of his friends insisted that he must roply. 'What's the use?' he asked. I know it isn't true. You know it im't true. Some day the people will know it isn't true. What's the use?' "Wherefore he sits in the Senate, calm and impassive, voting always with the majority, for he is an organization man, thinking whatever thoughts he may think, but always silent, always regular, always dependable from the organization viewpoint. He leads no insurgent movements. He never bulges into the center and howls for the rights of man. He never moves off the reservation. Always he is there always looking at the antics of the protestors with a sort of grim amusement, always giving the impression 'What's the use?'

"In his twelve years in the Senate he has observed much hysteria that never brought any results but noise. has watched the orators come and yawp and go, has seen the party-splitting dissensions, the crises that were to have so great an effect on the nation and that were forgotten in a fortnight when another crisis arose, has noted the republic trembling on the brink of the precipice, but never toppling over, has made up his mind that it is mostly sound and fury, signifying nothing, and as he gazes through his half-lidded eyes or moves ponderously about you can see it sticking out all over him: What's the use? "He was an honor man at Harvard and, after he had returned to Philadelphia and had been admitted to the bar, he went into politics. He served in both houses of the Pennsylvania legislature, became an organization man under Matthew S. Quay, in every sense, and when Don Cameron left the United States Senate in 1897 Penrose was sent to succeed him. H3 was reelected in 1903 and again this year.

"Penrose's political creed is as short as his personal one. It comprises two words: The organization. That is all there is to Penrose, so far as politics is concerned. It makes no difference to him what the organization is or is not, as long as he is in politics he is for and with the organization.

"'Penrose,' said a man who knew him one day, 'you should get married. Why don't you?' "Never thought of it,' Penrose replied, 'but perhaps it would be a good idea. Speak to the organization about it and I'll marry any one they recommend.

"The intricacies of Pennsylvania Republican politics are many and various, and it is not necessary to undertake to define Penrose's exact poof leadership to get a return to the Good Cough Medicine for Children. The season for coughs and colds is now at hand and too much care cannot be used to protect the children. A child is much more likely to contract diptheria or scarlet fever when he has a cold. The quicker you cure his cold the less the risk. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the sole reliance of many mothers, and few of those who have tried it are willing to use any other. Mrs. F. F. Starcher, of Ripley, W. Va. says: "I have never used anything other than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for my children, and it has always given good satisfaction." This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a child as to an adult. For sale by Dunn & Fulton. Dunn & Fulton.

Senate without effective opposition. He is the Republican national committee man from Pennsylvania and was put step on the ladder of success. on the executive committee by Chair man Hitchcock. "In the Senate he is chairman of the Committee of Postoffices and Post Roads, where he does much hard work. and is on the very important committees of Finance, Naval Affairs and Commerce, besides others, which shows the fact that his ability is recognized by his colleagues. In the extra session of Congress to revise the tariff Penrose will have an opportunity to do much by virtue of his membership of the Finance committee, which is where the tariff bill will be made eventually. A Republican whose law is the organization is well placed on the Senate Finance committee when a tariff bill is under way." A Three Legged Bison. In 1867 Small Eyes, a Blackfoot who had come down from the north and joined the Arapahoes and lived with them, told Black Kettle, a Cheyenne in George Bent's lodge, about having killed, between the Cimarron and Beaver creek, a tributary of the north fork of the Canadian, a buffalo bull which had only one hind leg. According to Small Eyes' story, it did not appear that the bull had lost one of its hind legs, but rather that it never had Jos. H. RAVEY, had more than one. The hind leg was very large, seemed to be in the middle of the body instead of at one side. PRACTICAL and there was no sign of any missing leg. It looked as if the two hind legs BOILER MAKER. which the buffalo ordinarily has had in some way fused together. The war party with which Small Eyes was traveling was passing along near a hollow when the bull came up out of it, and some of the men ran ahead, got around it and shot it with a gun. It was not able to run fast, but rather hobbled along .-- Forest and The Retort Courteous. A lady passing through the negro quarter in Mobile, Ala., heard an old woman chanting a dirgelike tune.
