TWO BIG MEN IN THE SENATE

Pennsylvania Representatives Take a Prominent Part in Framing Tariff Measure

PENROSE IS TO BE PROMOTED

Mantle of Leadership to Descend From Aldrich—Interesting Pen Picture of One of the Most Notable and Hard-est Working Men in the Country's Service.

Recent happenings in the United States Senate, during the progress of the work of framing the new tariff measure, have demonstrated beyond all dispute that Pennsylvania is the "one great state in the galaxy of states" and have given Pennsylvanians, great and small, real cause for pride in their representatives in the Senate.

This important work the Senate is now engaged on contemplates a revision of the duties on imports, the fixing of the necessary burdens of taxation to provide for the expenses of the national government and the guaranteeing of equal and exact protection to American labor and American capital. During most of the week of May 17 the senators from Pennsylvania, Boies Penrose and George T. Oliver, held the front of the senatorial stage. The two distinguished statesmen were more conspicuous, probably, than were any other two members of the great and distinguished body. Senator Oliver rather startled his colleagues with his comprehensive knowledge of the manufacturing interests of Pennsylvania. Mr. Oliver stood, a mental athlete, against the proposition to reduce the tariff on certain materials. He supplied the Senate with information which was overwhelming, and his general knowledge of the needs of the manufacturers and of the world of labor generally, lighted the way in the Senate for intelligent and conservative action. Mr. Oliver was kept upon his feet for hours, answering those who seemed thirsty for the information which they got from Mr. Oliver, and upon every side he was congratulated upon his successful defense of the situation.

Senatorial custom provides that a new member shall sit small during his first session, but the Senate wanted information which it seemed only Mr. Oliver could give, and the ancient custom yielded to the exigencies of the situation, and at a bound Mr. Oliver became one of the foremost members of this great law-making body.

Ever since the upper house of Congress started in on the new tariff measure, Senator Penrose has been constantly in the limelight. He, probably better than any other member of the Senate, understands the tariff question. He is an active member and well up on the list of the finance committee which has the measure in charge. For years he has been an intelligent student of the tariff and he yields to no one in his devotion to the best interests of his state and the nation. Senator Penrose stands firmly and with excellent purpose for equal and exact justice for both capital and labor in the construction of the proposed tariff legislation, and his eloquent voice has been constantly raised in the defense of the people as a whole. While Senator Oliver starred in a brilliant inning early last week, Senator Penrose challenged the admiration of the whole country the latter part of the week with a masterly speech advocating a duty of at least 50 per cent on crude oil. Senator Penrose declared that without tariff the oil market would shift to Mexico and in a most entertaining way gave an array of interesting facts and figures to prove his contention. Among other things Senator Penrose said:

"The independent oil producers of Pennsylvania insist that free oil would transfer the market for crude petroleum from this country to Mexico and they are right. In order to protect them from Mexican shipments I am in favor of imposing a duty of at least 50 per cent on importations of the crude product. Oil in this country is selling low enough now. What chance would the producers of the United States have against oil produced by the cheap labor of Mexico? In that country is a vast oil field, which only awaits the capital to develop it. With our markets thrown open to free oil shipments this capital will be forthcoming and it will no longer be necessary for the Standard to pay even moderate prices for oil in this country.

"The destruction of the oil industry would mean far more than the losses of the producers. In the production of oil in the United States more than 500,000 men are regularly employed. Counting five persons to each family this means that 2,500,000 persons are directly interested in the oil business as a means of livelihood. About 98 per cent of these half million men are Americans. They earn high wages, they live well, and they are entitled to fair treatment from Congress.

"Pennsylvania has about 45,000 oil wells, which last year yielded over $16,000,000 worth of oil. The total value of the oil-producing property in Pennsylvania is over $80,000,000. There was paid to the farmers of the Keystone state in oil royalties last year about $2,000,000. There is invested in independent oil refineries in Pennsylvania over $5,000,000.

"The conditions in Mexico are such that free oil would be certain to prove disastrous to the oil-producing industry of this country. The Mexican oil fields embrace a territory 800 miles long and 100 miles wide. The largest oil well in the history of the world was struck in Mexico last year. In forty days it produced 5,000,000 barrels. It is still flowing 10,000 barrels a day, and is uncontrollable. This oil can be produced for about 20 cents a barrel."
J. A. Graham, Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger, in a recent review of the Senate and its members, declared Senator Aldrich the commanding figure in that important body, to be both its Napoleon and its Bismarck, and then added this:

"Reasoning from known senatorial habits most of the members of the Senate expect that mantle of leadership, if it does not fall at once, to be soon worn on the shoulders of Senator Penrose. He is in the direct line of promotion on the finance committee. Under the senatorial habit of rigid regularity that rank stands as a certainty. Next, if not equal to the committee on appropriations in influence on practical politics, is the postoffice committee, which passes on all presidential postmasterships and on all expenditures for the greatest business department of the government. Other important committee assignments, well chosen and well maintained by records of hard work and intelligent service, add to a remarkable equipment, as the senate judges such merits.

"Prestige at home stands high among the assets of senatorial leadership. Penrose is unchallenged chief of the strongest and most compact state organization within the jurisdiction of the Republican party; in fact, the most solid state machine in America. Behind him, therefore, is the most nearly indestructible home support of which any senator can boast.

"If there is a definition of the Penrose personality at once concentrated and comprehensive, it is that he is an essentially masculine character. It is a definition which explains both the unbroken progress of his career and the misunderstanding about him. Men like and follow, even obey him, because he has the man virtues of telling the truth, keeping his word, hating humbug and uncomplainingly performing his duty; of not bragging or posing, gossiping or gonging, of not drawing a battle ax to strike a mosquito or employing a poison bottle to weaken an enemy. One quality he has which is positively fascinating in these days of small-souled sophistication. It is a man-bashfulness, which is neither diffidence nor nervousness, but more allied to a healthy boy's aversion to bluster, mushiness and artfulness. To name so strange a word as bashfulness among the attributes of the arch-politician and hardy boss will be to raise a laugh and provoke a sneer in the halls of the super-righteous. The truth is so, however, and it is distinctly charming—it is so rare."

Specific Directions.

The message was transmitted to the "cub" telegrapher. As written it read: "Foundation under freight house needs attention at once."
As delivered to the general man the dispatch contained a rather startling bit of information. It read: "Found a lion under freight house. Needs attention at once." To which he replied briefly: "Feed the lion and notify the live stock agent."

Chamberlain's Liniment.
This is a new preparation and a good one. It is especially valuable as a cure for chronic and muscular rheumatism, and for the relief from pain which it affords in acute inflammatory rheumatism. Those who have used it have invariably spoken of it in the highest terms of praise. Lame back, lame shoulder and stiff neck are due to rheumatism of the muscles, usually brought on by exposure to cold or damp, and are quickly cured by applying this liniment freely and massaging the affected parts. Soreness of the muscles, whether induced by violent exercise or injury, is allayed by this liniment. For sale by Dunn & Fulton.

Biliousness and Constipation.
For years I was troubled with biliousness and constipation, which made life miserable for me. My appetite failed me. I lost my usual force and vitality. Pepsin preparations and cathartics only made matters worse. I do not know where I should have been today had I not tried Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. The tablets relieve the ill feeling at once, strengthen the digestive functions, purify the stomach, liver and blood, helping the system to do its work naturally.—Mrs. Rosa Potts, Birmingham, Ala. ## FREE TRIP TO WORLD'S SERIES.

The Pittsburg Gazette Times Will Pay All Expenses of the Four Most Popular Amateur Teams.

The Gazette Times is going to take a big party of amateur baseball players to see the world's championship games next October. That is decided.

What teams shall go on this trip, which may include a journey as far east as Boston and as far west as Chicago or St. Louis. That remains to be determined. It is up to the amateur teams and their friends to say who shall go.

Now, all you have to do is get the votes. Four amateur teams—12 men, including the manager, will constitute a team—are to be the guests of the Gazette Times on this world-beating trip. Every amateur team in the territory in which the Gazette Times circulates will have a chance to capture the prize. It will be a free field and no favor shown.

The small boys will have a chance equal with the larger fellows. The plans have been so formulated that two teams of small boys are bound to win. It will be interesting to see if the little lads are not as popular, or more so, than their elders. The count of votes will tell.

The teams to take in this great trip will be selected by ballot. One team will be selected from among the Allegheny county amateurs averaging over 15 years of age. Another team will be selected from among the Allegheny county amateurs not more than 15 years old. A third team will be selected from among the amateurs averaging over 15 years of age in all the territory outside of Allegheny county, and a fourth will be selected from among the amateurs averaging not more than 15 years old in all the territory outside of Allegheny county.

You see this gives a chance for teams in the whole state of Pennsylvania, in Ohio, West Virginia, Maryland, everywhere, to compete and win the Gazette Times trip to see the World's Championship Baseball series.

For full particulars see the Gazette Times, or address Contest Department, The Pittsburg Gazette Times, Pittsburg, Pa.
