One-Piece Tub Dresses

Being offered here in a great sale that will continue with ever-increasing interest. It is indeed a luxury to be able to slip into a dress that fits perfectly, that is in good style and excellent taste, and that can safely be put into the tub to come out again as fresh and as good as when new.

This offering comprises the largest single lot of dresses that ever came into the store. We've recently sold more dresses than ever before in any similar event, and there'll be busy buying from the big assortment that remains.

Some Very Unusual Prices on Millinery.

With us it is not so much a question of price as it is getting the stock cleaned up. It has always been our custom to dispose of every trimmed and untrimmed hat we had in stock before the close of the season. Many times, in order to do this, we've had to use the knife pretty liberally. This year the season has been backward—the weather man has treated us shamefully and it is his fault that so many pretty hats are left on our hands with June over half gone. But if Spring has been late so it surely will be with Summer. This means many months yet to wear Summer Hats. These prices ought to prove irresistible.

50 Women's Trimmed Hats, were all the way from $5 to $7.50, at $2.

25 Women's Trimmed Hats, were all the way from $10 to $20, at $5.

100 Children's Hats, at 50 cents.

All Untrimmed Shapes (except whites and blacks) at 25c.

FINE TICKET AND PLATFORM

Work of Republican State Convention Challenges Admiration From Every Standpoint

PRAISE FOR SENATOR PENROSE

His Telling Work at Washington For a Protective Tariff Endears Him to His Party More Than Ever—Party Conditions Nearer Perfection Now Than in Years.

A winning ticket, composed of capable and worthy men, possessing elements of strength and attractiveness which must naturally enlist the support and vote of every Pennsylvania Republican; a platform in which the Pennsylvania idea of a Protective tariff is presented in a form about which there is no doubt or question, which is a succinct and timely summary of the plan pursued and policy adhered to by Pennsylvania's Republican representatives at Washington, especially in the Senate, and which serves notice to the party throughout the United States that this Commonwealth has no thought of departing from the safe and sound principle of genuine Protection, no matter what the agitation of the moment; another demonstration that peace and harmony prevail in the ranks of Keystone Republicans, despite the professional agitators of Philadelphia who are always in evidence under any and all circumstances; further evidence of the confidence reposed in Governor Stuart who has in no way been found wanting; a reiteration of the general satisfaction with which the work of the last Legislature is regarded; and another exemplification of the esteem and admiration Pennsylvaniaans entertain for Senator Boies Penrose, intensified by the gallant fight he has been and is making for continued protection to Pennsylvania's industries, a fight which has won for him the co-operation and hearty approval of some who were once his bitterest political enemies.

Such, in brief, is a summary of the proceedings of the Republican State convention held at Harrisburg on June 16. It was held under most satisfactory conditions: There was nothing for which any apology had to be made. There was nothing whatever that needed any explaining, hence there were no explanations offered. The convention stood in the light of things actually accomplished. It was proper that it should congratulate itself upon the party's record for it is one without a blemish. Standing upon this record the party presents as its candidates Judge Robert von Moschitzker, of Philadelphia, in whom the Supreme Bench will gain an intelligent and indefatigable worker, one whose services in the cause of justice has been marked by shining ability and constant uprightness; A. E. Sisson, of Erie, for Auditor General, and J. A. Stober, of Lancaster, for State Treasurer, both of whom are well known as legislators and who, like the party itself, stand upon their records.

There was another specially gratifying feature connected with the convention's work and that was the reelection of Col. Wesley R. Andrews as State chairman. It was a foregone conclusion that he would again be chosen, and it is just as certain to be followed by other re-elections just as long as Col. Andrews will agree to take upon himself the discharge of the arduous duties which attach to that office. All this is very gratifying to every Republican in the State. There is no other worker in the party better equipped for the position than Col. Andrews. Under the direction of no other chairman has the Republican party in Pennsylvania ever achieved such record breaking victories.

The reception accorded Senator Penrose at the convention and the comments of the delegates made it very apparent that Senator Penrose is today, more than ever before, the best ideal leader of his party in the Keystone State. Not alone that either, for the people of the State, irrespective of party, have been impressed by the splendid work Senator Penrose has performed for his people in the Senate, especially so during the progress of the tariff revision debate.

With Senator Penrose as the party leader and Col. Andrews as his able lieutenant and executive officer, the Republicans have given Pennsylvania in Governor Stuart an executive whose administration is conceded even by the party's enemies, as wise, judicious, progressive and honest to the core. It is rare, perhaps it is unparalleled, that an administration should complete its second year without a criticism of moment. Yet no scandal has assailed the administration, the Legislature, the Republican party since Governor Stuart took the oath of office. At Washington the party has been ably represented. Senator Penrose has been an active force in the construction and defense of the Protective tariff bill, guarding the interests of Pennsylvania at all points. Nowhere in the Republican armor, therefore, is there a weak spot.

Other States are wrestling with their financial problems. Pennsylvania has no financial problem. If the sinking fund is considered she has no debt. In this respect she stands almost if not quite alone. As the Philadelphia Inquirer says: "With a government that might well be a model for other Commonwealths to follow, with reform laws that set the pace, with a treasury equal to all the demands made upon it, Pennsylvania invites the inspection of the whole Nation. She is doing things. She is building good roads, erecting asylums and hospitals and is far in the lead of the Sisterhood of States in her organized warfare upon the great white plague of consumption."

Though the Republican party in Pennsylvania has gone through fire in recent years it has come out of

The ordeal purified. It has had to stand up against its enemies in many guises, but if there was need of reform it may be said that there is little remaining need now, for reforms have been accomplished and accomplished through the party itself, under the leadership of Senator Penrose assisted by Chairman Andrews and others who stand high in the party, and it is fair to assume that the peace which now so widely prevails will continue. Such, at least, is the hope and desire of every true Pennsylvania Republican.

Reading Under Water. An electric lamp, capable of efficiently supplying the needs of underwater illumination for ship salvage and other similar work, as well as for operations in explosive atmospheres, has been tried in the harbor of Aberdeen in connection with repairs effected on the dock gates there, without taking them out of position. It was found that a thorough examination of the dock gates could be made by the aid of the lamp, and in order to demonstrate its power one of the divers returned for a newspaper, and after descending to the bottom of the dock, a depth of twenty feet, read a portion of it through the telephone to those on the surface.

Tiger's Tiny Fox. The tiger bird, so-called because he is the one thing the royal beast of India fears, is no larger than the English sparrow. Yet so bold and combative is he that if the great cat is surprised by a sufficient number of the little creature's kind far from the protective shelter of the jungle, it will go head with him. When alone the bird will not attack. Supported by a flock of friends, however, often numbering several thousand, the bird will seek out his hereditary foe and give battle. On such occasions the tiger seeks safety in flight. A hand thrust into a cage filled with these little gamblers will elicit a furious assault from their combined forces. Assembled en masse, they know no fear.—Technical World
