 —The assessors of the several townships of the county met at the court house yesterday to confer on their work of the coming months, this being the year for making the triennial assessment.  Who is This Man?
 A strange man has of late been terrorizing the children and women living in the vicinity of Fox creek, a former lumbering hamlet located on Little Cone creek, in Green township. The man is of medium height, about 5 feet 10 inches, weighs about 160 pounds, face covered with a growth of black whiskers. When last seen a few days ago, he was barefooted and wore a pair of frouzy jean pants, a very ragged coat and the mere crown of a straw hat. He appears to women and children while they are out picking berries, but fights shy of the menfolk, none of whom have been able to get sight of him, although diligent search of the woods has been repeatedly made, a large posse having scoured the surrounding forest. He does not appear to be vicious, although one of John Grubbs' little girls was badly frightened when she saw the man pursuing her a few days ago. The supposition among the people in the vicinity is that the man has escaped from some insane asylum.

Attempts Suicide.
 John Anderson, for 15 years a resident of Byromtown, Jenks twp., in this county, made a desperate effort on Monday about 3:00 a. m. to take his life by firing a bullet from a revolver into his head, the ball falling to penetrate the skull. Failing in this attempt to cut his throat with a penknife, but was unsuccessful. He was taken to the Kane hospital and reports say that he will recover. Anderson has an invalid wife.
Barn Burned at Endeavor.
 A large barn belonging to Wheeler & Dusenbury at Endeavor, located nearly opposite the company's office building, was consumed by fire Monday shortly after the noon hour. The flames had gained such headway before a stream of water could be brought to bear on them that practically none of the contents could be saved. One horse was gotten out but was so badly injured that it will probably be ruined, while its mate could not be rescued. The team was a fine one. The mows were both full of new hay, and a large quantity of oats had been stored in the barn, also many implements of all kinds, all of which were consumed. Only for the splendid water system which the company has installed the fire must have spread and consumed a vast amount of property. As it was, however, the fire was confined to the one building and the frame of this was standing when the fire was subdued. The pumps at the mills were set to work at once, and for nearly five hours a pressure of 130 pounds was maintained, with three streams playing on the building.
 The origin of the fire is a complete mystery, as no sparks were flying, the air being calm. When first noticed the fire seemed to be directly under the roof. The loss to the company will probably amount to $2,500, with no insurance.

 Our schools opened with a large attendance. Misses Gayley and Blausser are in charge. We hope the same excellent interest manifested by both teachers and pupils will continue during the entire term.
 By-the-way, we would call the attention of the school officials to the tumble down condition of the fences and gate enclosing the school grounds. Whether it is realized or not, the fact remains that the condition of the school building and surroundings has a tell tale effect on both teachers and pupils, and seems to create an "I don't care" atmosphere which is detrimental to the progress of the school. Nothing is too good for Young America. Only give him a chance. SNOW BALL.

 —There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

A Royal Entertainment.
 Thursday of last week was an ideal day for an occasion such as the clam-bake or banquet given by George H. Lowe & Co., at their oil lease on the McKee farm. This was the second one of the kind given by these hospitable and big-hearted people and, if that were possible, it eclipsed that of a year ago held at the same place. The spot selected for the big dinner is near a fine large spring of pure water that bubbles out of the ground in a dense grove of maples and oaks, through which the sun's rays could scarcely penetrate, and a more sequestered nook would be hard to find even in this land of forests and pleasant groves.
 The genial Mr. Lowe had given personal supervision to details and arrangements which meant that everything was in readiness for the reception of the company, and that nothing was lacking that would tend to the enjoyment of the guests, who began to arrive about the noon hour, and from that time on to the sounding of the gong for dinner the crowd was augmented by new arrivals, until it had reached above the hundred mark. Two long tables had been erected, with abundance of seating room, so that every guest was comfortably located and could enjoy the discussion of the magnificent spread to the heart's content. It is needless to say the service was well nigh perfect. Under such complete arrangements as had been provided, and with such finished caterers as Col. C. F. Armitage and his able assistants, R. R. Brown and J. B. Scott, of Jamestown, in charge of the culinary department, it could hardly be otherwise. The menu was served in five courses and was as follows:
 Celery, Toast, Baked Clams.
 Steamed Oysters, Irish Potatoes.
 Blue Fish, Sweet Potatoes.
 Baked Spring Chicken, Lobsters.
 Sweet Corn, Lobsters.
 Rye Bread, Brown Bread, White Bread, Milk. (?)
 About one hour, from two till three o'clock, was consumed in the discussion of this splendid feast, one fit for the gods and calculated to tickle the palate of the finest Epicurean east. Seated at the festal board were doctors, lawyers, bankers, judges, merchants and laymen, and the hum of conversation, witty repartee and pleasant rillery was sufficiently varied and animated to keep the company in excellent humor and cause the veriest stoic to crack a smile occasionally. After-dinner speeches, usually of a common place order, were dispensed with, and the remainder of the afternoon was given up to such diversions and pleasantries as suited the guests. When leaving time arrived there were few who failed to express their thanks to the affable host, Mr. Lowe, for the exceedingly pleasant occasion and the royal entertainment which they had been privileged to enjoy.
 Following is but a partial list of those present from a distance, and does not include the guests from Tionesta and immediate vicinity:
