Inventory Brings to Light Many

ODD LOTS.

Naturally when we're just about to enter upon the beginning of a new season we do not care to have any left-overs on our hands. We'll make this a very busy time by closing out these odd lots and left-overs at prices that will make them interesting values for some one, 100 Baby Bonnets, 10 cents.

Left-overs and odd lots and sizes. Most of these were 50c; some were more.

100 Children's Hats. 25 cents.

Hats that sold up as high as $2. Most of them were $1 and $1.25.

50 Trimmed Hats, $1.

A price that would not reimburse us for the work on them, but they're here; and as our new mlllinery will soon arrive we want to clean up. These are women's hats and about 50 ladies of this town or vicinity will have a chance to buy a new headpiece at a mere song.

Mussed Goods at Half Price.

Linen Lunch Cloths, Doylies, Sideboard Scarfs, Pillow Shams, Embroideries, Trimmings-everything we have come across in our taking of inventory that looked mussed or soiled, We've no room in this stock for any but perfect goods. Rather than carry them along to another season we put them all out on the center tables at one-half price,

The Last of Men's Underwear.

Several odd lines of Men's Natural Wool Underwear, Shirts and Drawers-you can any size, $1, $1.25 and $1.50 qualities, all at one-half price.

After a careful search of the ruins of his home, which was burned at West Middletown, Washington county, Saturday, David Barr unearthed a tin cash box containing $800 which he tried in vain to save at the time of the fire. Of the bank notes nothing was left but a charred roll. Barr hopes to have the government redeem some of the notes whic bear marks of the denomination

The New Silks. Glace Shautung.

A time ago, a certain silk mill made a silk, named it, and spent many thousands of dollars advertising it through the columns of high priced advertising mediums.

The price of that silk by the yard was $1.35 and it was a good silk and very pretty. Another silk mill made a silk fully as good and just as pretty and named it "Gl ce Shautung." This is the silk referred to above and the price is $1 a yard.

This silk will not be advertised in the magazines and the differ ence in price represents the amount of money spent in advertising by the first silk mill referred to. Every shade and black.

HENRY CAVENDISH.

Recluse, He Lived Far From the Madding Crowd. Henry Cavendish, the famous natural philosopher and chemist, was a recluse who astonished England. A son of Lord Charles Cavendish and a nephew of the third Duke of Devonshire, possessed of enormous wealth, the subject of universal admiration because of his scientific attainments, he preferred the solltude of his study and the company of his books to the pleasures society could offer him.

For many years he lived at Hampstend in a large, roomy house, attended by a number of female servants, who, however, were strictly enjoined to keep out of his sight. If a domestic by the merest chance came into the presence of Cavendish she was instantly dismissed. Every morning the philosopher would leave a note on the hall table naming what he wanted for dinner. No one saw him place the note there; but, accustomed to the strange customs of the establishment, the meal would be prepared, and only the remains of the repast signified the presence of the master of the house

When Cavendish died in 1810 he left behind him nearly a million pounds sterling, besides a lasting reputation as a scientist and writer on natural philosophy.-London Telegraph.

A PADEREWSKI STORY.

The Great Musician's First Important Engagement in Parle.

Paderowski's first really important engagement as a planist was lu Paris. He was engaged to play in the drawing room of a lady famous for her musicules, and his fee, which seemed to him enormous, was $20. He managed to persuade the humane agent to pay him in advance, and when Paderewski had redeemed his dress suit from pawn and paid for shoes, gloves, tie and other essentials he had no money left for cab hire, so he was forced to walk to the scene of his engagement.

The music loving audience inspired him. He played with feeling, passion and mastery of his instrument as never before. His success was instant and unmistakable. The poor player and suddenly become the lion of the hour, his dream had become a reality, and fame and fortune were assured

At last after disengaging himself from his admirers be turned to leave, when his hostess, remembering with regret the smallness of the fee for so marvelous a performance, offered him her carriage for his return home. But Paderewski's pride came to the rescue. In his courteous yet reserved way he made a formal bow, and, saying, "No, thank you, madame; my own is walting." he stepped out for his long walk homeword - Penrson's Weekly.
