Announcements.

ENDEAVOR, Pa., Nov. 29th, 1909. My DEAR EDITOR: -You are hereby authorized to announce my name as a candidate for Congress in the Twenty Eighth Congressional District of Penn sylvania, subject to the rules governing the Primary to be held Saturday, June 4th, 1910. N. P. WHEELER.

Congressman Wheeler Replies to Mr. Sibley's Letter.

Under date of Feb. 13th Mr. Wheeler gave out the following interview in Washing-

"It is a free country," remarked Repre sentative Nelson P. Wheeler of the Twenty eighth Pennsylvania district when confronted with the announcement of former Representative Sibley of Franklin, Pa., that he would be a candidate for the Re publican nomination for Congress. "It was a free country when Mr. Sibley ran for congress upon several other occasions and it hasn't changed. Mr. Sibley was elected to congress a number of times no matter what ticket he ran on, and if he wants to try it again, well and good. I am not worrying I will be a candidate. It is for the people to say whom they will choose. If they don't want me I will go back to my business and no harm done. I am in congress at a considerable sacrifice. So are most men in congress. When Mr. Sibley decided that he would not stand for a reelection the nomination came to me. I was nominated on my record as a business man. I have done the best I could for my constituents while here. I stand on the record. I have known for a long while that Mr. Sibley wished to return to congress and was likely to be a candidate. Men have been going through the district for two months in his behalf. Some might say that they were stirring up sentiment for him; others that they were endeavoring to ascertain sentiment. It doesn't matter which way it is put. It comes to the same thing. When a man like my competitor, as he declares himself to be, decides that he wants to run for an office it is no trouble to find sufficient sentiment upon which to base an an-

"Mr. Sibley's expressed belief that 'pe troleum even more than lumber is entitled to receive some consideration from the representative of this district' may be directed at me, as I am in the lumber business. It did receive my consideration. I wonder if Mr. Sibley could have secured better treatment for it. As for lumber, everyone knows that a deep cut was made in the duty. I opposed any cut in the interests of my constituents. The Twentyeighth congressional district produces more lumber and more material for wood pulp than any other in the state. We were able to prevent lumber going on the free list. There are more tanneries in my distriet than in any other in the country. I stood with the tanners for what they asked as I did with the lumber producers. There stood for protection to American manufac turers and labor. We did not do so badly. What more could Mr. Sibley have achieved? On petroleum we were badly beaten. The cry of 'Standard Oil' was raised against us. It was impossible to overcome it. It was impossible to carry conviction that a duty was in the interest of independent producers and refiners of petroleum. We heard during the period that the Standard Oil Company was against a duty on petroleum, but not a sufficient number of members believed it. Lewis Emery and former Congressman Phillips whose records as opponents of the Standard Oil Company are written in the records of courts, of legislatures and of congress, were accused of being Standard Oil agents when they pleaded for a duty. We presented facts to the contrary, but were not listened to. It is the simple truth that there was not an agent or representative of the Standard here to ask for a duty. "Why didn't Mr. Sibley come to Washington and help Emery and Phillips and the rest of us? I am not under his or any one's condemnation for inability to have petroleum protected; then Speaker Cannon and Senator Penrose-yes and Senator Alrich, who is considered all-powerful by many-must be included in the adverse verdict. Speaker Cannon has an oil field in his district, and knowing the need of protection for petroleum took the floor in committee of the whole house and made one of the most eloquent and impassioned pleas for it that he ever made for anything In spite of that a large majority of the Republicans and nearly all the Democrats voted for free oil against the recommendation of the ways and means committee. Since the house voted down its speaker, the oldest member of the body in point of service, and esteemed the most influential. what could one of the rest of us or Mr. Sibley have done? Senator Penrose in the senate made a hard fight to get petroleum on the dutiable list. He did not accomplish it. Senator Aldrich voted for a duty, but showed coldness toward the proposition from the first. Mr. Sibley in the house would have been no more influential with the senate than as a private citizen. However, since he wishes to have it believed that I did less for petroleum than for lumber I will say-and I will say no more-that I am willing at any time to have my record and his with reference to petroleum examined and compared at any time and covering any period. But so far as I am concerned there will be no mud throwing in this campaign. I shall treat Mr. Sibley fairly and decently and in a gentlemanly manner. Mr. Wheeler will leave for home tomorrow night on business and will incidentally look into political conditions.

In a factory at Jamestown, where a workman oxydizes iron and steel work, he receives six dolars a day for his service. Two dollars of this is for the labor and the other four dollars because he is the only man who can do it. This calls successful, can I permit anyone to make forth from the Titusville Herald the comment that when a young man can make his head and hands work in harmony he is beginning to get somewhere, petitions requesting me to serve again as your Representative in Congress.

It would be impossible for me to write to each of you, thanking you for your expressions of appreciation and confidence. While realizing that you entertain too flattering an estimate of my ability, one flattering an estimate of my ability, one thing I do know, that during my term of service it was my constant aim to promote and support legislation insking for the betterment of the farmers, the manufacturers, the wage earners and the oil producers of the district. This was esteemed by me not only a duty, but also a privilege and pleasure. During my years of service I gaze no attention whatever to privilege and pleasure. During my years of service I gave no attention whatever to any private business, but devoted all my energy and whatever ability was possessed by me to the interest of those whose real representative I sought to be. To assist in caring properly for the interests of my constituents two clerks were constantly employed and frequention threa. More than one buff of the total ly three. More than one-half of the total sum allowed me for salary was paid to those clerks, whose efforts were deemed y me necessary to serve efficiently your nterests.

No defender of the nation's flag ever wrote me concerning his pension who did not have an answer mailed to him within wenty-four hours from the receipt of his ommunication.

One clerk was constantly engaged in the preparation of papers and the presen-tation of claims at the Pension Office, No man or woman ever wrote me a letter asking my efforts in his or her behalf who did not receive an immediate reply and such proper service by me as was in my power to render. It was my aim to bear in mind at all times that I was sent to Washington in behalf of all the people of the district, and I never asked the question whether the applicant for my service was a political friend or a political enemy.

In my retirement from official life it was with the consciousness that no speech ever made by me in Congress, no vote ever cast by me, or no public action per-termed by me, was made, given or performed, with any seifish or personal end to serve. I can say in truth that on all public questions my only desire was to know the right and then to possess the courage to follow this course, especially when it ran counter to the opinion of my party leaders, and to the opinion of those people whose judgment I value and whose friendship I prize.

So far as I am aware, no vote ever cast by me, or no action performed by me ever cost me the confidence or respect of any fellow Member of the House or Sen-ate, nor was my position on any public question assumed by me, which was not from my standpoint of vision looking di-rectly to the welfare of those who had aconored me by selecting me as their rep-terentative. esentative.

No recommendation for appointment to the public service was ever made by me in consideration of and personal or political benefit to accrue to me through such recommendation, nor was any appointment ever held up by me for personal or political advantage.

I appreciated the honor of being a Congressman from the Twenty-eighth Congressional District, because I never failed to bear in mind that at home were good men and women who had faith in me and who believed however mistaken I might who believed however mistaken I might be on any given subject, that in all things their representative was trying to do the best he knew how to render more valu-able the fruits of their toil. While realizing the importance of the office and the dignity of the position it never caused me to call for a larger sized hat, or made me any other man than the same "Joe Sibley," whom so many of you have known from his boyhood. Never having cheated a friend or neighbor at home, never having had any one charge me, while in private life, with falsehood or sharp practice, I was not materially changed in my general character and conduct by holding official position.

Since my retirement from public life I have endeavored to improve my mind by reading and travel and my body by liv-ing out of doors. In the propagation and cultivation of rare fruits and flowers, I have converted more than one hundred acres of sand waste into fruitful orchards. In the work on my farm I have been contented and happy, and the only time from Congress was during the preparation of the recent tariff bill, when it seemed to me a pity that from a section of the state with such vast interests in the the products of the soil, that no voice was raised, and apparently no effort was made for the protection of these interests. Much of the wealth in all the counties of the istrict is derived from the production of oil and the manufacture of its products, With the development of the vast fields f petroleum on our Mexican borders, it se med to me the representative of this district had laid upon him an imperative duty to defend this great industry which, outside of agriculture, is second in importance to but few, if any, American in-

I shall never cease to believe that if the Congress and the President had been fully informed of the magnitude of this industry, and the evil effects which e sustained by placing petroleum on the free list, they would not have tak-en action which permitted other nations of the world to levy an absolutely probibitive duty against American petroleum, while tendering and inviting them to free access to our home market. The Hon. Lewis Emery, Jr., and the Hon. Thomas W. Phillips came to Wash-ington and clearly outlined the dangers threatening the petroleum industry through the misconceptions in regard to it entertained by Congress. That their fears were not groundless may be readily ascertained by consulting the oil market reports. In an epoch when prices of all other commodities are advancing, we witness the anomaly of a decline in the prices of petroleum and the closing of the markets of the world to our products. Messrs Emery and Phillips did all that as private citizens they could possibly do to avert this disaster, and they were even held by those unfamiliar with their lifeheid by those unfamiliar with their life-iong attitude as being emissaries and as acting in behalf of the Standard Oil Co. Some years ago I contested with Mr. Emery the honor of being the represent-ative from this district. The goddess of fortune favored me in that contest, and I was pleased thereat, but when seeing his earnest efforts in Washington in the present. earnest efforts in Washington in connection with the present tariff, I regretted that he was not then in Congress where his influence would count so much for our section of the state.

It was my belief then, and it is my be-lief now, that petroleum, even more than lumber, is entitled to receive some consideration from the representative of this

It might occur that free lumber would not be an unmixed evil, for in the Twenty-eighth District more people are interested in the low price of lumber than in the low price of oil. The number benefitted by the increasing price of lum-ber comprises the the very few, while those injured by the shrinkage in the price of petroleum embraces the great multitude, multitude.

Personally I have no political ambition to gratify, and if consulting my own happiness and peace of mind, I should prefer not to be a candidate. I have waited many weeks since receiving your petitions, hoping that someone fully equipped for congressional service would enter the field, but none have volunteered and so many ureing it means many areas. teered, and so many urging it upon me as a duty, prompts me to say that I hereby accept your invitation, and will at the ask not only the support of my personal friends, but also the support of all good citizens on farm, in field, or in factory.

I will not be the candidate of any interest, individual, clique, or faction, nor, if ments. No man or set of men will have control of either my convictions or ac-

An Open Letter—Mr. Sibley a Candidate for Congress.

To the Electors of the Twenty-eighth Congressional District:

Permit me hereby to acknowledge the receipt of a great number of letters and petitions requesting me to serve again as your Representative in Congress.

man will be the pledge I make to all men openly, namely: To do all in my power to promote and perpetuate the peace, prosperity and happiness of the people of the United States, and especially the welfare of the farmers, producers, wage-earners and general citizenship of this congressional district. Very truly yours, Joseph C. Sibley.

Hon. BEN B. LINDSEY, the famous Juvenile Court judge of Colorado, "hands down" an opinion on the cigaret that ought to make people think. He says: 'I have been in the Juvenile Court nearly ten years, and in that time I have had to deal with thousands and thousands of boys who have disgraced themselves and their parents, and who have brought sorrow and misery into their lives; and I do not know of any one habit that is more responsible for the troubles of these boys than the vile cigaret habit."

ATTORNEY GENERAL TODD will be called upon to decide another knotty problem arising from the Constitutional amendments adopted last November. The Act of June 23, 1897, specifies a number of public holidays, including "the third Tuesday of February, election day." The Constitutional amendments abolish the February elections after the present year, but no provision is made for annuling the legal holiday. The question arises whether banks and other financial institu tions will have to continue to close on the third Tuesday of February.

OVERTURES from Governor Stuart to State Treasurer Sheatz, looking to an over the occupancy of the office after the first Monday in May next, when the term have been rejected. The governor doesn't to be a fight over it, but it looks now as if Sheatz has an undisputed right to the office for another year. The state treasurer has declined to comply with the administration's suggestion that a friendly test be made in court in advance of the eventful date.

The Kellettville Orchestral Band entertained a large audience in Mrs. Andrews' ball, Friday evening. Many of the selections rendered were entrancing and inspiring. Musical culture and fine discipline marked the whole program. The juveniles, of which most of the band is composed, appeared like veritable prodigies in the art. Every selection brought forth a round of applause. The baritone and cornet duet by Prof. F. B. Robbins and H. E. Murphy deserves special mention. No less deserving was the Brass Quartette consisting of Roland Spangler, Reed Detar, H. E. Murphy and Nelson Russell. The special mention of the above performance must not be taken as a detraction from the remainder of the program. To say the least, the whole organization performed in admirable manner. The recital draws the band closer to its admirers than ever before. Kellettville may well be proud of its musical organization and its masterful leader, F. B. Robbins, Following is the program as rendered:

Medley Overture, .... Songs of Our Nation Paraphrase Quartette,...Come Where the Lilies Bloom March,.....Dunlap Commandery Medley Comique, Old Settlers on Parade Overture, Heather Bells Duet-Cornet and Barito

Letter From L. J. Osgood.

BUCKLEY, WASH., Feb. 3, 1910. DEAR EDITOR: - I will try to give you a sketch this morning. I was down to Ostrander for a week and we had a fine amicable adjustment of the controversy time. The weather is fine out here and everybody seems to be feeling good. I had the pleasure of shaking hands with a for which Sheatz was elected will expire, lot of Forest county people and they showed me a good time sure. The first want to make an appointment if there is day we went to the head of Collins' log road. It is about eight or nine miles. he would have to do so or admit that They have a fine road and lots of fine timber. The next day we went out hunting for wildcats. We had the pleasure of getting three of them and the next morning we went out for a bear hunt, but that was of short duration, for in less than an hour one of the party had laid bruin low. so we went home. In the afternoon we went fishing for salmon. We got one The Government Pays Ballway Mail salmon that weighed 18 pounds, four salmon trout that weighed three pound each and half a bushel of smelt. I was pretty well fagged ont that night, but after partaking of a good slice of bear and fish, enough to make a man ashamed to even look at a fish pole, and a good night's rest, we started to fish for mountain trout. We put in the greater part of the day a that and we had a fine lot of these little beauties from seven to twelve inches long. A few of that kind would make the editor of the REPUBLICAN smile, especially for dinner. Of course fishing is not good here at this time of the year, but as I have been requested to give them a fish story, I had to mix hunting and fishing together to make it worth writing, hoping that in the future I will be able to give you a real fish story. With best wishes to one and all, I remain, Yours, with respect. L. J. Osgood.
