Man Badly Burned and House Wrecked by Gas Explosion.

John Strauss, aged about 40 years, who resided in one of the tannery company houses at West Hickory, was quite badly burned last Thursday evening by an explosion of gas, which also wrecked the house in which he lived. The injured man is a native of Austria and was fitting up the house in anticipation of the arrivaof his wife and children, who are said to be on their way here from the old country. The house, which is a new one and just completed, was piped for gas lights, but the fixtures were not put in and, instead of putting a metal thimble on the end of the gas pipe, the plumbers closed the pipe by driving in a wooden plug. On Thursday afternoon the plug blew out and the house was filled with gas. When Mr. Strauss came home from work at six o'clock he detected the odor of the leaking gas and took the ordinary precautions to guard against an explosion, but made the mistake of not waiting long enough for the gas to leave the rooms. Opening the kitchen door, he went outside the house and turned off the gas and then went to the tannery for a pail of water. On his return he attempted to kindle a wood fire in his kitchen stove when instantly there was a terrific explosion and Mr. Strauss says he saw the house go to pieces. He was not blown out of the house but by a strange freak of the explosion was left standing in the middle of the kitchen, with his clothing on fire. He ran from the house and was caught by some of the neighbors, who helped him tear the burning clothes from his body. He was very badly burned about the face and hands and also the upper part of his body. After his injuries had been dressed by Dr. M. C. Kerr, he was sent to the Oil City hospital on the evening train, At first it was thought his injuries were fatal, and his escape from instant death was truly miraculous. Late reports from the hospital state that he is doing well and will recover. The house was wrecked beyond repair but the ruins did not burn. The back wall and one side wall were blown clear away from the house and were lying plaster side up. The front wall was bulged out and only the partitions and one side wall kept the roof from falling in. The front door was blown a distance of fully 150 feet. Most of the windows in the dwelling house adjoining were also broken, especially on the side next the explosion. The building stood near the tannery, on the main street running through the village and was owned by H. H. Smith & Co., who place their loss at $800. There was an insurance of $500 on the property but it is not collectible, the policy covering only a loss by fire.

RECENT DEATHS.

John Hulings, a highly respected resident of Redelyffe this county, died at his home at 3:30 o'clock Thursday morning, March 24, 1910, after a two weeks' illness of pneumonia. Mr. Huling was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Huling. He was born in Barnett township and all of his life had been spent there. He was aged about 65 years. He is survived by his wife and the following children: Blaine, of Redclyffe; Harry, of Siverly; Mrs. John Martin, of Oil City; Mrs. Ernest Chapman, of Marienville; Ima, Gladys, Allene and Forest, at home, One brother, Albert, of Redelyffe, and one sister, Mrs. Joseph Hall, of Redclyffe also survive. The funeral was held Sunday at II o'clock.

HAGUE.

William Hague, a well known business man of Tidioute, died at sea or March 16, 1910, while returning from South America, after a short illness. Mr. Hague was in the employ of a London oil company. He went to California and from there to Panama, from which port he sailed Jan. 16th for Peru. Monday of last week his family received a cablegram that he was very ill and that he had been started home in care of one of the company's men. Tuesday the family was stunned on receiving a cable from the man who had him in charge, sent from Panama, saying that Mr. Hague had died on board ship on the 16th, four days out from Panama. That is all that has been heard. Whether his remains are on their way home or were buried at sea is not known, but the probabilities are that he was buried at sea. The ship he was on was a tramp and would be illy prepared to care for a body in the tropics. The steamer which would bring the remains -Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Engdahl, of from Panams, if brought at all, was not West Hickory, were business visitors in due in New York until last Sunday. Mr. Tionesta last Saturday. Mr. Engdahl Hague was very well known in this county, where with his father, the late W. W. Hague, he was extensively interested in gas and oil operations. His death came as a great shock to many friends, by whom he was esteemed as an upright business man and a true Christian. He is survived by his wife and two daughters. His age was about 43 years. His father died suddenly a few passed to her reward last week when Mrs. Freiderike Wilhelmine Dorothe (Behrens) Weingard died on Saturday evening, March 26, 1910, at the home of her son, Frederick Weingard, on German Hill, Green township. Mrs. Weingard was remarkably active for one of her advanced age and on the day of her death assisted the family in the performance of their household duties, paring the potatoes with her own hands. She was sitting at the supper table with the family about six o'clock, when she expired suddenly and without warning. It is said of her that never in her long and nothing extra to pay. active life had she had a physician to attend her. She was born April 8, 1817, in Ussing Housen, province of Hanover, united in marriage with Frederick Weingard. In 1854 they came to this country and made their home in Pittsburg, Pa. Six children were born to them, four in Germany and two in Pittsburg. In 1862 the family came to Forest county and settled in the then almost unbroken wilderness on German Hill, where together they cleared up a farm and lived happy together until 1877, when the husband died. Since that time she had lived with her son Frederick on the old homestead. Three sons are left to mourn her loss, Henry, of German Hill, Charles, of Cropp Hill, and Frederick; also 21 grand-children and 13 great grandchildren. She was a member of the Lutheran church.
