DEATHOF EDWARD VII.

Loss of Able Sovereign Deeply Felt the World Over.

During the Long Years of His Princehood Edward's Public Duties Consisted of Representing His Mother at Public Functions, a Duty He Performed With Singular Tact-Since His Accession to the Throne He Has Exe-ted a Wide Influence In European Politics as a Diplomat.

Edward VII., King of Great Britain and Emperor of India, died just before the new day began. The end came at Buckingham palace at 11:40 Friday night.

His only surviving son now reigns as George V.

London was anxious all day. The sudden news of the king's grave illness came as a blow because his majesty was reported to have returned from Biarritz in fair health. All day crowds loitered about Buckingham parace and the Mansion House in the city, where the physicians' bulletins were displayed.

So grave was the last official bulle tin that an urgent summons was issued to all the members of the royal family not already gathered at the palace to come there immediately.

The king was always a difficult patient for his physicians to manage. He was even more difficult during his past two days! illness.

During the morning and afternoon his majesty was exceedingly restless and insisted on getting out of bed and partially dressing. The physicians could not induce him to withdraw his mind from certain affai s of state. He often petulantly observed that he was unable to rest because he could not withdraw his mind from consideration of the political situation.

King Edward's fatal illness came just about a year ago as the first serious reports concerning his health had become current on both sides of the Atlantic. In the spring of 1909 he went to Biarritz, where he had often gone before. But after he had been there a little while the word came out that his step was no longer elastic, that he kept much to himself, permitting no one outside his suite to dine with him, except Mrs. George Keppel, and that for this time he had gone to Biarritz not for a holiday but by direction of his phywho were concerned over hi health. However, the king returned to London in due time and so far as the world has been allowed to know had a normal year thereafter. This spring he went again to Biarritz and again reports came out from there that his health was far from good. The reports received a certain sort of non-official confirmation when the king abandoned his announced purpose to go with Queen Alexandra on a yachting cruise in the Mediterranean on the return from which, it was said, he purposed pay ing with the queen a return visit to King Manuel of Portugal. The next news that the world got after the king had gone back to London was on May 5 when the dispatches announced that he was unable to go to the railway station to meet the queen on her re turn after a visit of the continent. In the last few months King Edward figured in the most momentous crisis of his career and took a positive position in it. It was in February of this year that he showed he had a mind and a will of his own. The oc casion was the opening of parliament after the elections which followed the action of the lords in throwing out the budget, an election at which, in addition to the question of the budget, the whole matter of the lords' prerogatives as affecting legislation was brought up and discussed. The country gave the government a majority, but when he came to open parliament the king for the first time in the modern history of England re fused to identify himself with the policy of his ministers. Edward, while by his acts and words proclaiming himself a constitutional monarch, declined to subscribe to a fundamental change in the British constitution, the proposed shearing of the hereditary legislative power of the lords. His act of independence, which set all England agog, lay in inserting in the speech from the throne prepared for him by the ministers. the phrase: "In the opinion of my ad visers." The actual complaint from which his majesty suffered was an asthmatic cardiac affection, and as usual in such cases oxygen had been administered to him at intervals since thursday night.

There is no doubt that the king eaught the chill which devoloped so fatally during his week end visit at Sandringham for the purposes of inspecting the changes and alterations which had been made in the house and grounds of his Norfolk home. The weather was cold and damp and his majesty completely exhausted himself in his inspection of various points of interest, on which he was accompanied by Sir Dighton Probyn, keeper of the privy purse and extra equerry to the king. On Monday evening he returned to town and dined privately in Grosvenor Crescent. The chill was already showing signs of developing when he returned to the palace late in the evening.

ARDS In Some f ser a'timore & Ohio wanted.

In the can the New York Central rel of proper, the award of E. E. Clars and P. H. Morrissey, the arbitraiors in the case of the demands of the trainmen and conductors of the New York Central and several other railroads, were sent to the representatives of the railroad and of the men.

They are a compromise between the award in the case of the trainmen and conductors of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, whose demands were arbitrated under the Erdman act, and the wages that were offered by the Central. It had been the aim of the officers of the trainmen and conductors brothe hoods to make the Baltimore & Ohio award a standard for all the eastern roads, but the award in the case of the New York Central in some cases grants the Baltimore & Ohio terms and in others grants less on account of local conditions on the Central.

The officers of the trainmen and conductors said that they were not disappointed. The New York Central issued the following statement:

STILL AN INDEPENDENT

Mr. Hearst Does Not Second John Temple Graves' Idea of Joining Democrats.

Instead of being heckled as some thought he would be at the meeting of the executive committee of the Independence League at the Hotel Astor, New York city. William R. Hearst had presented to him a silver-framed set of resolutions thanking him for his efforts to bring about the election of the fusion candidates

Because of the speech recently made in Washington by John Temple Graves, one of Mr. Hearst's representatives, in which he intimated that under certain conditions the independents might be willing to join with the Democrats, some of the more radical members of the league had in mind an intention to put it up to Mr. Hearst to explain his position.

There was no need, however, for ony such questioning. Mr. Hearst in his speech acknowledging the gift of the resolutions made it clear that he was still for an independent party and he also intimated that the independents would put a state ticket in the field this year.

Heart Specialists at Washington

Smoke as They Discuss Tobacco. As smoke wreaths from their cigars floated through the room, heart specialists from throughout the country, who are attending the congress of American Physicians and Surgeons at Washington, discussed the question whether the prolonged and excessive use of tobacco meant "sudden death." At the close of a lengthy debate they were far from reaching an agreement. Dr. H. L. Elsner of Syracuse. N. Y., and Dr. Judson Daland of Philadelphia declared that excessive smoking tended to cause angma pectoris. Dr. R. G. Curtin of Philadel phia and others combatted the theory as a general proposition.

MELVIN NYE A MINER

Discards His Clerical Garb for That of the Lamp-Lit Helmet.

Milvin Nye, who died at 80 years of age, years ago left the Methodist Episcopal ministry to become a real coal miner. In his younger days he was a student of theology, later preaching in the Methodist Episcoual church at Ellwood City, Pa. He became dissatisfied, however, and laid aside the clerical robes for the greasy, lamp-lit helmet of the miner.

At this work he happily passed the later years of his life, and had been employed at many of the coal mines la this vicinity. He is survived by his wife and five children.

Expresses Wish That Public Recreation Be Not Curtailed.

Actors and Actresses Overjoyed at Action of New Sovereign-Amusements at Theaters Will Not Be Interfered With-Move Shows the New Ruler Intends to Follow in the Footsteos of His Father.

London, May 10 .- One of the first official acts of the new sovereign shows him to be possessed of the same kindly thoughtfulness for his success that characterized his distinguished father. In his desire to mitigate as fas as possible the disastrous effects of sudden mourning upon the public King George has caused messages to be issued expressing the wish that public recreations shall not be curtailed more than can be avoided.

This emulation of his fathers tast will achieve for him at one stroke an enormous popularity with all classes of citizens.

This announcement from the king has brought joy to the theatrical managers and thousands of actors and ac tresses who faced ten days of enforced idleness. Beerbohm Tree and Mr. Alexander, as the heads of the two associations, respectively of thestrical managers, have written the lord chamberlain asking that official to convey to his majesty their deep appreciation of his kindly consideration . They added that although the managers as a voluntary act of loyalty had intended to close their houses until after the funeral of King Edward on May 20, they reopen as usual on May 11. This includes Charles Frohman's houses which, of course, were closed last night

The only new production which was effected by the death of the king was George Tyler's "The Dawn of a Tomorrow," which opened last Thursday night at the Garrick. On the evening of its production, busses everywhere bore flaming posters anncuncing the initial performance of Mrs. Burnett's play.

The message from the king which was made public through the newspapers read as follows: Knowing so well the wishes of my beloved father I am sure that it would be contrary to his wishes if there were any interruption of the enjoyment of the public during the Whitsuntide helidays. I, therefore, hope that the general mourning will not prevent my people from taking the usual advantages of the various opportunities for rest, recreation and amusement in the coming days,"

Furthermore, his majesty made it known that he wished the Ascot races to be held as usual. The royal enclosure will be open as customary with the exception of the royal ; avilion. This will enable members of society to attend, but it will be a sober gathering as mourning dresses will be indisponeable.

William To Attend Funeral.

Berlin, May 10,-It was announced that the Kaiser had definitely decided to go to London to attend the funeral of his uncle, the late King Edward. This decision was reached only after an intimation had been conveyed to the German ruler that the English royal family would be greatly pleased by his presence at the obsequies While in London he will be a guest at Buckingham Palace, where the late King died.

ROOSEVELT IN BERLIN

Mrs. Roosevelt and Ethel to be En tertained by Emperor and Empress.

It was for that reason that the Kaiser designated him as special aide to Colonel Roose velt during the latter's stay in the German capital.

Colonel Roosevelt, accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Ethel, will go by special train to Potsdam today and will be entertained at a private luncheon by the Emperor and Empress.

UNSHAVED FOR SEVENTY YEARS

New Jersey Man Says He Thus Saved $19,000 Barber Bill.

Trenton, N. J., May 10.-Walter J. Ferry, a Yardville man, who is 90 years old, has not shaved since he was 20 years old, and although he occasionally gets his long white beard trimmed he says he has saved about $19,000 by leaving his whiskers grow, and double this amount in time. He is considered wealthy, although he engaged during his active career in conservative business enterprises.

He figures that the time he saved by not going to a barber enabled him to make a large sum of money, and he firmly believes that he would never have lived to be 90 if he had been addicted to the shaving habit.

NEGRO BEGINS TRAINING

Jack Johnson Does Twelve Miles at Grueling Pace.

San Francisco, May 10.-Jack John son did his first training for his fight with Jeffries. He covered 12 miles with Tom Little, George Cotton, Barney Furey and Marty Cutler. So stiff was the pace that Cutler, the Chicago boy, dropped out before the half way point was reached. When Johnson got back he did not seem at all tired and late in the afternoon he took an other five-mile spin. Twice a day for this week he will go on the road. Next Sunday he will begin boxing five or six rounds with Marty Cutler and George Cotton. For the first two weeks of sparring he proposes to put on the gloves three days a week. Later he will increase this to four days a week. There is talk that Jack Burns, the heavyweight. will be added to the boxing stable. Johnson stripped for the newspaper men. Johnson's legs look small when compared with the huge underpinning of Jeffries, but above the waist line the champion shows his strength. He is bigger than ever before and the enormous driving muscles of his shoulders stand out conspicuously.

After posing for his picture drank buttermilk, saying: "Buttermilk is good for you. It does not put on any weight and keeps you in good condition."

Referring to Langford's challenge Johnson said he did not take Langford seriously.

Attorney For Defense In Case of F. Augustus Heinze.

HEINZE TRIAL

Jury Must Concern Itself Only with Acts He Committed on Oct. 14, 1907. New York, May 10.-By a decision rendered by Judge Hough vesterday afternoon the jury which has been listening to the evidence in the case of Fritz Augustus Heinz will have to concern itself only with Heinze's acts on Oct. 14, 1907. That was the day when Heinze is alleged by the government to have over-certified fifteen checks of his brother's firm aggregating $464,000 and with having misapplied the funds of the Mercantile National, of which he was president, to that extent.

All of the counts in the various indictments upon which Heinze is being tried regarding the loans made by the bank to the firm of Otto Heinze & Co., prior to October 14, were thrown out by the court on a motion made by the defendant's counsel.

J. P. Fernsler and E. A. Radert, the government accountants, were crossexamined by John B. Stanchfield most of the day on their statements regarding the manner in which the United Copper Company paid dividends and on the general condition of the company. About the most important admission brought out was from Accountant Bernsler. He admitted, under questions by counsel for the defence, that the company had $1,332,in deposits in various banks when the dividend was paid in January, 1907, thought Fernsler had not mentioned this in his statement . This was more than enough to meet the dividend without borrowing money . This witness on his direct examination had practically contended that the company was an "empty shell" and could not pay its dividends.
