Merrillian, Wis., June 7 .- In a desperate revolver battle between a posse headed by Sheriff Lanning of Jackson county and a band of five suspected of looting the postoffice in this city one of the robbers was shot and captured. With the robber $500 in stolen stamps was recovered, but $1,-000 in cash stolen was not found.

The four other men escaped after the fusillade and are believed to be hiding in the swamp between Merrillan and Black River Falls. The country is being scoured by heavily armed deputies and the capture of the men is expected.

The portoflice safe was blown open and $1,000 in currency and $500 in stamps were stolen. The sheriff was notified an hour later and after hastily swearing in a number of deputies he trailed the five suspects to a box car on an Elroy train.

The car in which the men took refuge had been locked up by the conductor, but they sawed their way out and took to their heels about three miles below Black River Falls. The posse caught up with the men and opened fire on them.

One of the supposed robbers fell wounded. He was captured and a sack containing the stolen stamps, which he was carrying, was recov-

Revenue Officers In Pitched Fight In Mountains of North Carolina.

Winston-Salem, N. C., June 7 .- A desperate battle, in which more than one hundred shots were exchanged, was fought between a force of revenue officers, under Deputy Collector J. F. Miller of Asheville and a band of moonshiners in the far recesses of the mountains of Wilkes county, N.C.

None of the officers was hurt, but it is known that several of the moonshiners were more or less seriouly injured. Deputy Marshal C. H. Holland had his mount shot from under him. The mountaineers opened fire from ambush.

The battle marked the close of a three days' raid in Wilkes county. which is noted for its nests of illicit distilleries. The officers located and destroyed three large distilleries, including more than four thousand gallons of beer. Only one arrest was made, Rudolph Farrington, who is said to be a bootlegger of notorious character, being caught. He was

Presence of Mind of an Engineer Calling Out to Passengers to "Hold Tight to the Seats" Undoubtedly Saved Men From Injury-Every Window Smashed and Tracks Torn Up Beneath Coach.

Mount Vernon, N. Y., June 7 .- The presence of mind of Charles Smith, an engineer on the New Haven railroad, who was off duty, in calling out to his fellow passengers in the smoker attached to the Boston express, which was the only car of the train that jumped the tracks at West New Rochelle Junction, to 'hold tight to the seats' saved them from injury. The car turned over on its side while traveling at the rate of 30 miles an hour, and although every window glass was smashed and the tracks were torn from beneath the coach, not a single passenger was injured. At the place where the accident occurred there is a network of tracks and switches. The two big electric motors and the first seven cars passed over a switch safely and then suddenly something happened. The rear ocach broke away from the smoker and crossed from the case to the westbound express track, while the smoker jumped the frog and tore over the ties, cutting them into kindling wood for a distance of two hundred feet. It finally broke the coupling and toppled over on its side in a little gully between the cast and west bound tracks. The smoker contained 35 men and they crawled out through the winsurgent voted against the bill which dows.

> The express was a heavy one and for a time great excitement prevailed among the passengers, especially among the women, many of whom screamed at the top of their voices. When the coupling broke between the two rear coaches this forced the air brakes on automatically and the sudden stoppage of the train threw many passengers from their seats. It was fortunate that they was no east bound express approaching at the time as the two east bound tracks were blocked and a terrible wreck with great loss of life might have resulted.

It is generally believed that the accident was due to the switch not R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Trade working properly or else that the frog was out of place.
