DROWNED IN MILL POND,

Solomon Grubbs, Aged Fourteen Years, Drowned in Twelve Feet of Water While Bathing at Bowmanville.

Solomon K. Grubbs, son of Andrew Grubbs who resides at the abandoned lumbering hamlet of Bowmanville, Green township, was drowned Friday afternoon last. The abandoned mill pond, which has a depth of nearly twelve feet is used by the boys of the neighborhood as a "swimming hole," and on the afternoon stated young Grubbs was seen going in the direction of the pond by some workmen who were erecting a concrete bridge over the stream, which is a branch of Big Coon creek. This was some time afternoon a numper of boys from Vowinckel station, about two miles distant came to the pond for a swi n. After paddling around in the water for an hour or so they came out and were dressing when they discovered an extra outfit of boy's clothing near where they had undressed They went to one or two of the neighboring houses, and at the Grubbs home the clothes were identified by the mother as those of her son. A search for the missing lad was at once instituted and the dragging of the pond was continued far into the night. Between two and three o'clock Saturday morning the body was brought from the bottom of the pond which at this point was fully 12 feet deep. From the appearance of the body it is thought the lad had been seized with cramps and Boyard's Pharmacy. perished before be could make any outcry for help. On two other occasion the lad had to be helped out of this same pond, being unable to swim, and having gotten in over his depth. The funeral was held on Sunday with interment in the cemetery at Guitonville. Owing to some talk that marks were seen on the boy's face and body at the time of the funeral, and to allay all doubts as to whether death was wholly caused by drowning, the body was exhumed on Monday in the presence of Drs. Detar and Serrill of Kellettville, and other witnesses, and while one eye was found to be somewhat discolored and some slight abphysicians gave it as their opinion that none of these marks were accountable for the boy's death, and that it was a clear
