CRIPPEN A PRISONER
With Leneve Girl He Is Taken on Montrose.

Inspector Dew Boarded the Steamship Two Miles Off Father Point and Took the Two Fugitives Into Custody—Woman Becomes Hysterical When She Recognizes the English Police Official—Doctor Charged With "Murder and Mutilation."

Dr. Hawley Harvey Crippen and his consort were arrested at 9 o'clock Sunday morning on the steamship Montrose, two miles off Father Point. The arrest was dramatic in a sense. Scotland Yard Inspector Dew boarded the Montrose disguised as a pilot and as Crippen was pacing the deck with Surgeon Stewart of the Montrose he saw the pilot boat approaching pulled by four seamen. He remarked that there seemed to be a good many pilots in the boat but aside from this made no comment. He continued his promenade but five minutes after he felt a tap on his shoulder and turned to face Inspector Dew in uniform.

"I want to see you for a moment," said Dew.
Dr. Crippen took the situation quietly. He turned and walked without protest to a cabin pointed out to him. In the cabin were Provincial Detectives McCarthy and Denis.
"This is your man," said Dew to McCarthy, and the latter read the warrant for Crippen's arrest, at the same time giving him the usual statutory caution. Dr. Crippen, guarded by the police, then went to his own cabin where the Leneve woman sat dressed as a boy. She screamed when she saw Dew and then became reticent. Subsequently both prisoners were closeted with Dew.

Aboard the steamer Montrose five or six miles down the river, a nervous careworn passenger paced the deck alone. "Half" rang the bells from the bridge.
"What are we doing now," inquired the passenger of Dr. Stewart, the ship's surgeon.
"This is Father Point, Mr. Robinson, and we are slipping up to take the pilot aboard," replied the medical man. "You can see the boat coming out to meet us there."
The men in the small boat were now alongside and rested on their oars. A rope was thrown to the craft and it was warped alongside the larger vessel.
A second later on Inspector Dew of Scotland Yard, dressed in the pilot's uniform, Chief McCarthy and ex-Chief Denis likewise attired, with Francois Gaudreau, the actual pilot, stood on the deck of the Montrose. Dew's hand was extended to the captain but he eyed quiescently. "That's my man," he said quietly but the jubilant thanksgiving in his voice could not be extinguished. It was not hard to see that he was having a difficult time trying to assert himself as an officer of the law. Captain Kendall, McCarthy and Dew chatted at the companionway. Denis and Gaudreau turned forward to the wheelhouse. Dr. Stewart and Robinson were walking up the deck. Robinson walked close to Dew that the latter could have touched him. Still not a move was made. Dew was sizing up the quarry carefully, pitilessly. Robinson coughed slightly and turned towards the captain as though to ask a question. He was perfectly unconscious of the true state of affairs.
"Captain," he said almost jovially, flitting his grey fedora hat to the back of his head. But that was all. His face became a blank, his knees shook together and his arms went up as though to protect himself.
"I want to see you below a moment," said Dew with his characteristic lisp. "Then turning to Chief McCarthy, he said, 'That's the man.'"
"I arrest you in the name of the king," said McCarthy.
"You are my prisoner. Anything you say will be taken down in writing and may be used against you at your trial."
A few seconds later a woman's shriek told those above that the Leneve woman had been discovered and arrested. She had recognized Dew in the semi-darkness of the passage as she was emerging from her cabin to join Crippen.

FAILED TO REACH SUMMIT
Mt. McKinley Expedition Unable to Accomplish Feat.
The Mt. McKinley expedition to Seward, Alaska, has failed to reach the summit of the mountain.
The expedition was sent out jointly by the New York Herald and the Portland Oregonian and was headed by O. E. Rash, an expert mountaineer.
The party sailed from Seattle April 24 and followed Dr. Cook's route by the Susta and Chulitna rivers.
They reached the top of the mountain, which Cook claimed was the real summit of Mt. McKinley, but found they were fully 10 miles below the true summit.
They could not cover the intermediate mountain country because of huge crevasses in the glaciers. They could not see the flag that the Thomas Lloyd party claimed to have planted on the summit last April.
The failure of this party goes far to prove that Mt. McKinley could not be climbed from the Cook inlet side. Lloyd and other experts say Mt.

DR. HAWLEY H. CRIPPEN

McKinley can be climbed easily from the Fairbanks side in early spring when the crevasses are filled with snow. When summer comes this snow melts and the natural bridges over crevasses are gone.

WOMAN LOST $35,000
Invested Her Money in Company That Never Existed.
John H. Qualey of New York city, 42 years of age, who gave his address as 122 East 125th street and his occupation as a manufacturer, was arrested upon a warrant charging him with having defrauded Mrs. Mary Nevis Bull, widow of the famous surgeon, out of $35,000. The warrant against Qualey with grand larceny is dated July 25, 1910.
Mrs. Bull asserts that Qualey induced her to invest $35,000 in a company said to be incorporated under the title of the Magnesia Asbestos company, but which never had an existence. Qualey promised a profit of $200,000 in six months.
Qualey was taken to the Tombs for pending examination. He is known to the police.

EJECTED HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW
Wife Then Knocked Her Husband Out With Flatiron

When Slackgear went after his mother-in-law her daughter, Mrs. Slackgear, became extremely busy with a flatiron. She was a good shot, and landed with the flatiron squarely upon the back of her husband's cranium. He did not regain consciousness for a couple of hours. The mother-in-law still reigns supreme.

PLAYS CLEVER RUSE

Honduran Soldiers Desert to Bonilla's Forces.

At the Head of 3,000 Men the Ex-President is Marching on Tegucigalpa—One Hundred Americans With Insurgent Leader, the Majority of Whom Are Trained Gunners, Will Handle the Machine Guns in Attack on the Capital.

New Orleans, Aug. 2.—Manuel Bonilla, one time president of Honduras, is more than half way to Tegucigalpa, at the head of 3,000 men. It is believed here, according to information received today, that Bonilla will strike at Tegucigalpa before the end of the week. Included in his force of 3,000 men, most of them trained soldiers, are 100 Americans, who joined Bonilla from Bluefields and New Orleans.
The majority of the Americans are trained gunners who will handle Bonilla's machine guns in the attack on the capital, which he hopes to make, thereby restoring to himself the leadership of the Honduran republic.
Bonilla employed to a success conclusion a clever ruse for the arming and equipping of most of his 3,000 soldiers. Two weeks ago incipient riotings broke out in various coast and near coast towns of the republic.
Immediately the military was summoned and supplied with guns and ammunition from the national armories. Then the soldiers, well equipped, promptly quit the service and flocked to the banners of Bonilla.
The uprisings were carefully planned and launched at the direction of Bonilla for the sole purpose of arming his proposed followers. This was necessary, owing to the fact that government arms and ammunition are not left in the care of soldiers, but are carefully kept in government repositories.

ONIONS WILL BE SCARCE

Disastrous Blight Works Havoc in Madison County Onion District.
Utica, Aug. 2.—Growers and dealers in the great Northern Madison county onion district who have been anticipating for 1910 the highest and best crop of onions ever grown in that section, are disheartened over the sudden appearance of a disastrous blight, the like of which has never been experienced before.
As a result early sown fields must be pulled this week, a full month before reaching maturity, while many late fields will be abandoned altogether. Three hundred thousand bushels were expected. Now there will probably be but 150,000, making an estimated loss of from $50,000 to $75,000.

Jumps Into Pitcher's Hand and Is Tossed to Second Base.
Media, Pa., Aug. 2.—Pitcher "Jack" Krause of the Upland Big Four team should play in phenomenal luck for the remainder of the season if there is anything in the rabbit foot superstition.
In a practice game on the grounds of the Media, Delaware county, club, a rabbit jumped out of a clump of grass and started across the diamond. Krause did not see it, but was endeavoring to catch a ball thrown in from the outfield.
Before the ball arrived, however, the rabbit jumped into his hands, and, thinking he had the sphere, he threw the animal to the second baseman to catch a runner. The latter ducked, and the rabbit made its escape.

COMMITTS SUICIDE

Widow of Dr. Franz Dastler of New York Takes Gas.

New York, Aug. 2.—Mrs. Pauline F. Dastler, widow of Dr. Franz Dastler, once a well known New York physician, committed suicide early Sunday morning in her apartments at No. 59 West 87th street by inhaling gas through a tube. Falling health and loneliness in her advancing years are supposed to have been the causes. She was 52 years old.
It was evident that Mrs. Dastler had laid careful plans. All the silver in her apartments articles of jewelry and many trinkets were marked with cards reading "To my sister." "To my son-in-law" and to various friends by name. This note, with address, was lying open on the bureau: "May God and all belonging to me forgive me for what I am doing. I am not able to sleep and will sooner or later break down or lose my reason. I have tried to keep my strength but have failed. Forgive me."
"PAULINE DASTLER."
Mrs. Dastler was born in Germany as was her husband. Dr. Dastler died in 1885.

CONVICT KEPT DIARY

Exposed Texas Prison Methods When Freed and Was Arrested When He Published Them.
Galveston, Tex., Aug. 2.—The arrest of Ed Murphy, who had just been released from the Huntsville penitentiary, on a charge of assault to murder, has created a stir.
Murphy is well educated. He has just completed a five-year term for forgery, having been granted eight months for a good record. He was out three days, and then, following the publication of an announcement that he would begin a series of lectures on the abuses of prison management and the inhuman treatment of Texas convicts he was arrested on charges from the penitentiary.
He had already disposed of his diary at good price, and declares he will return to "suffer a martyr's death," but his diary will be published. It is said to rectify in detail the daily record of many convicts during his stay in the state penitentiary.

BROOKLYN WIDOW SUES

Mrs. Sally Klein Wants $25,000 For Breach of Promise From Pittsburgh Man.
Pittsburg, Aug. 2.—Mrs. Sally Klein, a widow, of 91 Summer street, Brooklyn, through her attorney, William S. Maxey, has entered a breach of promise suit in the United States circuit court against William Friedman, manager of the Hollander Drug company of Bradford. She claims $25,000 damages.
Mrs. Klein alleges that one year ago she met Friedman, who frequently visited her at her home in Brooklyn, wrote her fervent letters and set April 1 last as the date for their marriage.
She claims that she purchased her trousseau and spent considerable money preparing for the wedding, which did not take place, because Friedman had met another and a wealthier woman in Bradford, whom he was to marry early in August. This woman is said to be Mrs. Hollander, owner of the drug company, and reported to be worth $100,000.

HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Kittanning People See Live Wires Make Fat Man Dance.
Kittanning, Pa., Aug. 2.—Skipping over wriggling trolley wires like a school girl jumping rope, Ralph Crum, a 220 pounder, well-known in political circles, escaped death when a network of trolley wires fell at McKean and Market streets here.
A large crowd at a safe distance, witnessed Crum's skipping stunt which was pulled off amid a spattering pyrotechnic display.
Just as a Leechburg and Kittanning trolley car turned into Market street the trolley fell the wire, struck a guy wire and set the whole network to shaking. One of the iron poles supporting the wires snapped if at the ground and pulled the whole mesh down. He was as nimble on his feet as a cat and escaped injury.
