If Alton V. His wife and three children, Miss Edith, Harry and Elmira, survive him; also the following brothers and sister: M. L., of Ticklaw, La.; J. Some time ago an item went the rounds of the press stating that the postal authorities had made a ruling forbidding the mailing of postal cards as duns for the payment of debts. It seems that the order was misconstrued, for a late decision of the postoffice department at Washington is to the effect that ordinary cards such as are used by gas and other companies as monthly statements and also respectively couched reminders that bills are due are permissible, and may be written on postals.

The REPUBLICAN had a pleasant call yesterday from Charles Cox, who resides on the Hopkins farm, three miles north of Tionesta. And by-the-way, Mr. Cox is bringing the old farm up to its one time standard of productiveness, judging from his crop report for last season, when from 100 acres of ground he threshed 130 bushels of wheat, and raised nearly 600 bushels of corn. In the matter of farming much depends upon who he is behind the plow, and this showing would indicate that the right man was in the furrow.

By the log loader turning over and leaving the tracks of the Hassinger Lumber Co. at Konarock, Va., N. H. Godell was so badly injured that he died the following day. The body reached Sheffield this morning, accompanied by the widow and children and by W. A. Hassinger, M. R. Hassinger and Mrs. Laura Barnes, and was taken to Watson Farm where the funeral will be held from the home of Mrs. Godell's mother. Mr. Godell has been with the Hassinger company for a number of years—first at Barnes, later at Lamona, and went with them to the new operation in Virginia.—Sheffield Observer.

Mrs. W. H. Andrews of East Main street was in receipt of a telegram from her husband, Hon. W. H. Andrews of New Mexico, yesterday, informing her of the successful passage of the new state constitution bill in the legislature. Mr. Andrews is territorial delegate from New Mexico to the national congress. His eastern friends believe that he will be the first United States senator elected from the new state. It has been largely through his influence at Washington that New Mexico has achieved statehood and he has been indefatigable in his efforts for the new state of his adoption.—Titusville Herald.

Albert Burdick, aged 19 years, who resides with his parents at Hastings station on the S. & T. railroad, Howe township, was before Justice Clark on a serious charge last Friday. The complainant in the case is a 14-year-old girl named Bertha Bly, her aunt, Mrs. Adam Ikenburg, of Kellettville, making the information. The evidence at the hearing was to the effect that the alleged occurrence took place last September, while the young man was carrying the mail between the railroad station and Cooper Tract. In such cases the court only can fix the bail, and so the lad was remanded to jail to await the action of the court.

Farmers' Week at Greenville, Mercer County, will be held this year on Monday, February 27th to Friday, March 3rd, inclusive. This will be a great opportunity for farmers in the western part of the state of Pennsylvania to hear live discussions on the most vital questions of the farm. Such matters as the growing and judging of live-stock, the production of farm crops, the preparation of a good soil and the making of spray materials, together with other important subjects, are to be taken up thoroughly. In addition to the lectures many practical demonstrations in dairy cattle, beef cattle, horses, sheep, swine and poultry judging, will be given. The schedule is so arranged that any individual can attend lectures upon the subject which interest him most. A copy of the program will be had free of charge by writing the "School of Agriculture of The Pennsylvania State College," under the direction of which the week at Greenville is being conducted.

A number of people are under the impression that any postoffice in the country will receive deposits for the postal savings bank. As a consequence the postmasters are being bothered by those ignorant of the fact that at the present time there is but one postal savings bank in the state of Pennsylvania, and that one is located at Dubois. Deposits will not be received by mail.

W. C. T. U. Reception.

The Tionesta W. C. T. U. gave a very pleasant reception in honor of Mrs. Samuel D. Irwin on Friday afternoon from 2:30 to 5:00 p. m., in the rooms of the W. R. C. Mrs. Irwin, for many years treasurer of the society, had resigned on account of ill health. Mrs. Suie M. Sharpe, vice president of the Union, who presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. G. F. Watson, in a most fitting speech recalled the faithful service which Mrs. Irwin had given for so many years. She said the society was desirous of showing its appreciation of her steadfast loyalty and faithfulness during all these years. The Tionesta Union had been organized more than thirty-five years ago, and the speaker gave the names of five of the charter members of the Union yet residing in this county, as follows: Mrs. S. D. Irwin, Mrs. A. B. Kelly, Mrs. J. H. Derickson, Mrs. J. G. Dale, and Mrs. Suie M. Sharpe. At the close of her interesting reminiscence Mrs. Sharpe presented the honor guests with a beautiful picture of the lamented Miss Willard. Mrs. Irwin, in a few well chosen words thanked the society for their kind thoughtfulness in giving her this pleasant surprise. Mrs. Dale, Mrs. Kelly and Mrs. Derickson also responded in short but appreciative remarks to the reference to their names in connection with the organization of the Tionesta union, all of which were received with much interest by those present.

Mrs. Jennie Agnew, the newly elected treasurer, said, while she did not feel that she could fill the office as worthily as her predecessor, she would promise her best endeavors in that capacity. The remainder of the afternoon was profitably spent in social intercourse, games and a guessing contest, and the serving of very delicious refreshments. The occasion was fraught with pleasure to the upward of forty members present, and will long be remembered as a most happy one.

My Creed.

"I believe the faithful sun will surely shine tomorrow;
I believe in courting joy and banishing all sorrow.
I believe an open hand is stronger than a fist;
I believe it is our duty to convert the pessimist.
I believe we help ourselves whenever we help others;
I believe without a doubt that all mankind are brothers.
I believe all busybodies should busy themselves with the good of others;
I believe if I expect the best, the best will come to me.
I believe that every failure can be turned to a success;
I believe ill luck is good luck in a masquerading dress.
I believe in boosting others and boosting with a zest;
I believe that all that happens must happen for the best.
I believe an ounce of laughter is worth a ton of sighs;
I believe in all humanity that dwells beneath the skies.
I believe that hope is man's best friend, despondency's a grafter;
I believe that if we're all right here, we're right in the hereafter.
I believe that God's green earth was made to live in and be merry;
I believe there really is no need of such a word as "worry."
I believe clouds have two sides to them, one dark, the other light;
I believe we'll always find them fair, if our viewpoint is right.
I believe that God the Father is the Sovereign of my soul;
I believe that Heaven is sure to stand while the ceaseless ages roll.
I believe that man is master of the earth and of the sea;
I believe that all his conquests are just what they were to be.
I believe that things unconquered in the earth, the sea, the sky,
Will yet to him be subject if he will only try."

Forest County Has Some "Chick" Fanciers.

Under the above caption the Philadelphia North American of last Sunday publishes the following article from the pen of Wallace Chadman, of Tionesta, which will prove interesting reading:

Just so it will be put down in black and white in a medium where it will stay put, and in one that does "considerable circulation" in this part of the Keystone of the original arch, we have spent some time today in gathering facts and information for The North American relating to poultry and poultry growers in this borough. There are fully a dozen gentlemen in this elongated river town who have the fancy-chicken bug and have it bad. It's a pastime as much as a commercial pursuit with the fanciers, and they make plenty of money in other vocations to reimburse them for the outlay in indulging their favorite diversion. A few years back it was even worse, if that can be said of a good thing. Every man in town had chickens, and the chief topic of disputative conversation among men, women and children was hens and puddles. Chickens were sure did come in for its full share of the carnival of gab, and out of it all came a good-natured rivalry which has resulted in the gathering together in this favored spot of a number of the finest strains of chickens in the world.

Eight years ago Fred Keller, elected county treasurer, moved to town and brought with him several coops of partridge Wyandottes. They were unmistakably beautiful, and Fred had taken first and second ribbons all over the county with them. Even before that James Haslet, up at his pleasant home on the hill, had been collecting some fine strains of single-comb black Minorcas, silver-penciled Wyandottes and partridge Rocks, and the town duds generally began to get hep to the new style in birds. All the ordinary barnyard fowls were stewed for Sunday dinners and their places filled with such fancy birds as suited individual tastes. Success invariably attends where it is deserved, and it began to look as though Tionesta would become the chicken emporium of the world. Some idea of the prominence attained may be given by stating that the Rochester Poultry Show, being six years ago, there were eighteen exhibitors from Pennsylvania, and nine of them were from Tionesta.

Since then the enthusiasm has waned a little, but there is plenty left to be worth mentioning. James Haslet is perhaps the leader now, and he has just returned from Rochester, N. Y., with second hen in a class of fifteen birds of the Owens strain of single-comb white Orpingtons, and in a class of fifty birds of the same strain he won fifth pullet.

Mr. Haslet has always been an enthusiastic exhibitor, and has carried away ribbons from Herald Square, Madison Square, Pittsburg and places of less note, until he has enough to stuff an old-fashioned bedtick. He still pensioned-off Wyandottes made a hit in England and elsewhere, but at the present time he is spending his time looking after his beautiful family of Owens farm single-comb white Orpingtons.

Last summer Archie Davis built a henery on a farm north of town and stocked it with as fine a brood of partridge Rocks as one would wish to see. They were as big as ostriches, and hundreds of people used to walk out along the state road to take a look at them. Since then Archie has joined the benedictis and gone to housekeeping in town. His handsome Rocks have been moved into the borough, where no doubt they will be given all the room and attention they require.

Charles Killmer's fancy leaned toward white Wyandottes, and he is quite proud of the lively flock he keeps in an up-to-date henery back of his big house.

Jeff Grove took to buff Leghorns, and it is said he has the finest strain to be had in the United States. But Jeff hasn't felt well for a number of years and has lost a great deal of his former chicken enthusiasm.

Jess Graham, the popular young barber, couldn't see any farther than rose-comb white Orpingtons, and between shaves he has brought up as pretty a flock as the town affords. He works some kind of a scheme on his hens, by which he induces them to lay a hatful of eggs every day all winter long, and while we commend Jess' selection of a strain, we would heartily thank him for an explanation of his scheme.

Angus Carson, down under the beautiful elms along the green bank of the river, is satisfied to gather up the globular fruit from a saucy bunch of white Leghorns. "Gus" says these Leghorns suit him, because they are hardy, continuous layers, excellent foragers and spend nearly all their time over at the neighbors'.
