BODY HIDDEN IN TOMB

Mrs. McCollum's Remains Were Concealed in Unoccupied Crypt.

At any rate one end of Erie's most sensational tomb-plotting case has been closed and there now only remains the work of rounding up the vandals who despoiled the mausoleum.

With the finding of the body of Mrs. McCollum, the idea now entertained by the regular police and the representatives of the detective agencies is that the vandals forced their way into the mausoleum in quest of the body of the late Hon. William L. Scott.

One of the men glancing into the darkened aperture discerned the lines of the case and he dragged it out into the mausoleum.

There lying partially on its side with a shroud covering its face lay the body of a woman. The detectives gathered about the case, and one of them, a city detective who had known Mrs. McCollum in life, proclaimed the body to be the one thought to have been stolen.

Earle Startles the Village. Ferdinand P. Earle of "affinity" renown, caused somewhat of a sensation when he returned to his home near Monroe, Orange county, from New York, accompanied by a prepossessing young woman, fashionably dressed.

Thomas J. Ham, probably one of the oldest newspaper editors in the state of Pennsylvania, died at Lakewood, N. J., on Saturday. He was born in Honesdale, in Wayne county, Pa., on Feb. 20, 1837.

Earle's New "Affinity"

Eclectic Artist Has a Guest a Hand-some Young Woman.

If Ferdinand P. Earle, the artist, holding a record of three affinities in Monroe, Orange county, N. Y., and unless the people of the village are mistaken, he has as a guest a very handsome young woman.

When Artist Earle alighted from a train from New York accompanied by a handsome young woman, everyone who saw him was on the qui vive.

Earle's driver was at the station and the artist and the young woman were whirled away before the villagers could get a good look at the woman.

Friends of Earle, however, say that there is no fourth affinity and that Earle's guest is a friend who is acquainted with his forthcoming volume of slating him in putting the finishing poems.

LOST HER LIFE IN FIRE

Girl Went Back Into Building After Escaping With Mother.

In a fire which destroyed the Po donque cheese factory, about two miles from Rushford, N. Y., Dorothy, the nine-year-old daughter of Charles Bentley, was burned to death.

Charles Bentley, who owned the building, had rooms in one part of the factory with his family, consisting of his wife and three children.

With two children at her side and another one following, Mrs. Bentley went through the smoke-filled rooms. When she got out, she saw that Dorothy was missing. The father ran back into the building, but was driven back by the flames.

Failure to Protect Wells in Farming Districts Cause of Typhoid Fever. The serious menace of typhoid fever in the country districts—a menace arising from polluted drinking water—is thoroughly considered in a report by Myron T. Fuller of the United States geological survey, in which the various sources of pollution are indicated and suggestions are given for means of protection.

Wears Evening Clothes in Court.

Police Justice Waterman held court of Batavia, N. Y., attired in evening dress. At first, those who saw him thought he was introducing something new for the presiding officers of sunrise court. The justice explained that he had been to Buffalo attending the Knights of Columbus ball and had not had time to make a shift of his "glad rags" before the case of a Buffalo Pole who was charged with intoxication. The Pole got ten days in jail.

Held For Attempted Murder.

A special from Westport, N. Y., says that George McAuiff is under arrest there, and will be given a hearing on the charge of attempting to kill Miss Anna Gibbon at the Willard hotel. It is alleged that McAuiff tried to choke the young woman with a gag saturated with chloroform, in order to rob her of $1,000 which she had saved. After signing the name "Anna Gibbon" to the warrant upon which McAuiff was arrested the woman later denied that that is her name.

Taft Warns Leaders

Said If Party Would Save Tariff It Must Pass the Reciprocity Bill. In ending up his speech to the statesmen he handed out a warning to the leaders of his party as follows: "The very existence of the policy (of protection) depends on our abolition of the tariff where it is not really needed under the principle of the last Republican platform.
