WOULD PROHIBIT PROFANITY ON STAGE

Ordinance Now Being Considered by New York Aldermen.

New York, Feb. 28.—The board of aldermen held a hearing on proposed ordinance of Alderman Mulhearn to prevent the use of blasphemy on the stage. The ordinance was drawn up because of the frequent use of the word "damn" in one of Clyde Fitch's plays.

WOULD PROHIBIT PROFANITY ON STAGE

Ordinance Now Being Considered by New York Aldermen. The debate swung to the question, "What is profanity?" "If I was to tell you to go to hell, is that a disorderly act?" Alderman John J. White wanted to know. Arthur S. Colborne, president of the anti-profanity league, thought it would be.

WOULD PROHIBIT PROFANITY ON STAGE

Ordinance Now Being Considered by New York Aldermen. The chairman felt impelled to mention towns whose theatres were worse than New York. One of them was Albany. Yes, Albany was pretty bad, Mr. Colborne admitted, and he knew of Western cities even worse.

OWN YOUR OWN MIND.

Have you ever considered the possibility of doing this? Remember that living in a rented mind, furnished with opinions bought on the installment plan, never offers any inducement with it for the future. Not only this, but you are not saving up anything.

Length of Dreams. Three physicians were discussing the matter of the length of dreams.

Tough Turkey. Mark Twain when he worked in Nevada on the Virginia City Enterprise inserted in the news a good many boarding house jokes.

A Modest Judge. A certain prominent English jurist was transferred from the chancery court to the admiralty court rather unexpectedly.

To Munch a Viper. Though the prescription seems to have disappeared from the pharmacopoeia of modern "beauty specialists," it was for centuries notorious that to feed on snake meat was the way to win perpetual youth; to cure gotter, again, or any other swelling, all that was necessary was to munch a viper.

Costly Counsel. "I can understand all you have to say on the subject in an hour's time," said the judge.

Inherited. "Where did Phylem get his propensity for ballooning?" "I don't know, but his grandfather died in the air."

The Greatest Financier. "Who was the greatest financier ever known?" "Noah, because he floated his stock when the whole world was in liquidation."

Think of your wonderful immunity from harm if you mind your own business.—Loomis.
