Display of Irish Hand Woven Table Linen.

Week of March 6th to 15th.

Private collectors and museums have absorbed most of the genuine Antique Hand Woven Irish Linens, but the taste for the beautiful in industrial has caused a revival of this ancient Irish industry and the demand for these beautiful reproductions can not be fully supplied.

By the courtesy of some Irish friends we have been able to obtain a few and invite you to come in and inspect them.

They are remarkably reasonable in price, being no higher in cost than linens of inferior quality manufactured by machine. All sizes of cloths—with or without napkins to match.

The Art Department Presents Spring Work.

There is inspiration a-plenty in the Art Department for lovers of hand embroidery work to get fresh supplies for the Spring and Summer pastime. We have lately added to this department a complete stamping outfit, representing over two hundred and fifty designs for pin cushions, dresser and sideboard scarfs, towels, library table covers, center pieces, luncheon cloths and napkins. There are any number of beautiful designs for belts, jabots, four-in-hand ties, baby slips, etc. All stamping orders will receive prompt attention and prices very reasonable. All work guaranteed.

We Do Dyeing and Cleaning.

This is the season of the year when one's house furnishing and one's clothes must go through the process of renovation which naturally brings to mind this dyeing and cleaning section.

We are the Oil City representatives of the Footers Dye and Cleaning Works, Cumberland, Md., which is so well and favorably known here for its thorough and efficient service and whose facilities for doing this class of work are unsurpassed. May we suggest that you look over the wardrobe, the draperies, the furniture coverings and lay aside those articles that need a thorough cleaning. Let us call for them. They will look like new when we return them. A telephone request will bring us to your door.

He Was a Good Mixer.

There used to be a popular minister in Indianapolis who was well known in Louisville. He was pastor of one of the leading churches of the city. He was built on the plan of the late Henry George, whose motto was, "I am for men." This Indianapolis preacher was what is called a "good mixer." One day he stopped in a blacksmith shop to chat with the workmen. During the visit a florid faced man of prosperous appearance came into the shop. He and the minister began chatting, but neither knew the other's line of business. They became good friends in a few minutes. Finally the florid faced man produced his card, which announced that he was in the saloon business on West street.

"How did you enjoy your ride?" was asked of the auto crank's friend.

"Until today I never thought an automobile could go so fast," was his reply. (Here the auto crank was all attention. That was some praise for his car. Right out in public too. That would silence some of the scoffers who said his machine should be called Snail.)

"Why, do you know there was a car went by us at such a clip that I could hardly see it."

The auto crank glared, and under his gaze the group melted away. They had had their revenge.—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

The Military Salute.

All salutes, from taking off the hat to presenting arms, originally implied respect or submission. Of military salutes, raising the right hand to the head is generally believed to have originated from the days of the tournament, when the knights filed past the throne of the queen of beauty and by way of compliment raised their hands to their brows to imply that her beauty was too dazzling for unshaded eyes to gaze upon.

The officer's salute with the sword has a double meaning. The first position, with the hilt opposite the lips, is a repetition of the crusader's action in kissing the cross with his sword in token of faith and fealty, while lowering the point afterward implies either submission or friendship, meaning in either case that it is no longer necessary to stand on guard. Raising the hand to the forehead has also been explained as a sign that the weaponed hand is empty and in an inoffensive position, but this reason does not seem so convincing as the others.

A Toothsome Revenge.

During the reign of Charles II., the age of gallantry, it was the custom among gentlemen when they drank a lady's health in order that they might do her still more honor to destroy at the same time some part of their clothing.

Upon one occasion Sir Charles Sedley was dining in a tavern and had particularly fine necktie on, whereupon one of his friends to play him a trick drank to the health of a certain lady, at the same time throwing his necktie in the fire. Of course Sir Charles had to do likewise, but he gave, for not long after that, dining with the same company, he drank the health of a fair one, at the same time ordering a dentist whom he had engaged to be present to pull out a refractory tooth which had been troubling him. Every one else was obliged in this manner to mourn a molar.

Great Forests.

Canada owns a forest larger in area than the whole of England, Scotland and Wales all put together. The greatest length of Britain is 608 miles, and its greatest width 325 miles, while a Canadian forest in the Hudson Bay and Labrador region is 1,000 by 1,700 miles in extent. Another big forest stretches from Alaska to Washington state. The Amazon basin, South America, comprises about 2,100 by 1,200 miles of forest, while Central Africa has a forest region 3,000 miles from north to south and of unknown width from east to west, and the pine, larch and cedar forests of Siberia are 3,000 by 1,000 miles in extent.

Logic.

"What—a boy of your age doesn't know the parts of speech?" exclaimed the schoolmaster.

"No, sir," replied the pupil.

"Haven't you ever heard of a noun?"

"Oh, yes, sir!"

"Well, what comes next?"

"I don't know, sir."

"A pronoun," said the master. "Now remember that. Then comes the verb. Now what follows that?"

"A proverb, please, sir."—London Scraps.

Insulted.

"Have you lived in this town very long, Miss Soar?"

"Of course not! Do I look old enough to have lived anywhere very long?"

His Sarcastic Friend.

He was very proud of his new automobile—talked automobile, dreamed automobile, read automobile. Finally to his friends he became a nuisance, and each to himself swore softly that he would bide his time and at the proper moment give him a little verbal thrust.

Finally one long suffering individual was asked to go for a ride. Excuses were of no avail. He was bundled into the machine and taken for a spin through the parks and over the boulevards. In due course of time, without any serious mishap, they pulled up at the Automobile club. The auto crank and his guest were soon surrounded by several of their friends.

"How did you enjoy your ride?" was asked of the auto crank's friend.

"Until today I never thought an automobile could go so fast," was his reply. (Here the auto crank was all attention. That was some praise for his car. Right out in public too. That would silence some of the scoffers who said his machine should be called Snail.)

"Why, do you know there was a car went by us at such a clip that I could hardly see it."

The auto crank glared, and under his gaze the group melted away. They had had their revenge.—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

Juvenile Suicides.

"A generation ago the taking of their own lives by minors was almost an unheard of occurrence," said a physician. "Now it is becoming alarmingly frequent not only in this country, but in Europe. In most cases the phenomenon can be set down to the artificial life people lead and to the complex conditions of modern existence. Very often parents are too ambitious for their children and by constant appeals to them so work on the nervous temperaments of their offspring as to bring on a derangement of the mental faculties. One of the most noted specialists of France, Dr. Berillon, who has made a study of the matter, asserts that children who have a suicidal tendency are for the most part wanting in the sense of smell. He makes recommendation that all who suffer from this defect should be taken to an expert for examination, as it might tend to forestall some future tragedy."—Baltimore American.

The First Automobile.

Nicholas Joseph Cugnot was the first automobilist. Many years before Stephenson had introduced his railway locomotive Cugnot, who was a military engineer, had made a locomotive for roads. His locomotive has been pliously preserved at the Conservatoire des Arts et Metiers. Cugnot died in 1804. His lot was not that of many geniuses. He did not die in want, Napoleon had secured him a pension of 1,000 francs—passing rich on $200 a year. In this respect the premier consul showed more enlightenment than he did in regard to Fulton of steamboat fame, whom he considered—it is distressing to write—an adventurer. Cugnot's carriage was built to transport arms and he had designed a service gun. These achievements alone would be a passport to Napoleon's favor.—London Globe.

His Luxurious Pillow.

"When sleeping cars first came in," said a railroad man, "the bedclothes in the berths were very scanty. On one of these early cars one night after everybody had turned in and the lights were low a loud voice called from an upper berth:

"Porter, got a cork screw?"

"The porter came hurrying down the aisle.

"Boss," he said in a scandalized tone, "we don't allow no drinkin' in the berths. It's against the rules."

"Oh, it ain't that, porter," the voice answered. "I just want to dig out a pillow that's sort of worked its way into my ear."

Ant Eaters.

Ant eaters are in the curious position of being practically unable to open their mouths. It may almost be said, indeed, that they have no mouths to open. There is just a small, round orifice at the end of the snout, through which about two feet of wormlike tongue can wriggle out, and as this tongue is bathed with liquid glue instead of saliva every ant which it touches adheres to it, and the animal licks the insects up by hundreds at a time.

Genuine Faith Cure.

Towne—Do I understand you to say that Spencer's case was really a faith cure? Brown—Yes. You see, the doctor and the druggist both trusted him.

A Mean Trick.

"Talking of mean tricks," said the big man, "there was Ballantine. This man Ballantine came in late to a song recital at L. M. Beach, and there wasn't a vacant seat in the house.

"Ballantine noticed Mrs. Jerome Blank. Mrs. Jerome Blank, he knew, had a very handsome husband that she kept a strict watch over. She didn't like him to associate with any of the fair sex.

"Ballantine, edging near to Mrs. Blank, who had an excellent seat, said in a loud voice to a friend:

"Who was that enormously pretty girl I saw Jerome Blank talking to on the pier?"

"In about four seconds Mrs. Blank was gone and Ballantine was seated comfortably in her chair."—Kansas City Star.

Evarts and the Author.

When a popular young author went to see William M. Evarts while he was secretary of state in behalf of a commission for which he was an applicant Mr. Evarts congratulated him on the fame which he had acquired, but hastened to add, "Although you have laurels on your brows, I suppose you can't browse on your laurels."

Inquisitive.

After Sunday school: Willie—Did you hear that boy swear, Johnny, when I told him to go away? Johnny—No. (Quietly persuasive) Tell him to go away again and I'll listen.—Manchester Guardian.

Human nature is so constituted that all see at Judge better in the affairs of other men than in their own.—Terence.

TRADE MARK
F.S.R.
REGISTERED

The F. S. Royster Guano Company is the largest independent manufacturer of Fertilizers in the United States.

The business was founded twenty-seven years ago by Mr. F. S. Royster, who is still at the head of the Company, and gives the business his personal attention. It requires eight large Factories to supply the demand for Royster goods in the South alone.

Being desirous of extending our territory, we have built in Baltimore one of the largest and most modern fertilizer and Sulphuric Acid plants in existence.

Ask your dealer for ROYSTER goods and see that the trade-mark is on every bag. If he does not handle them, write and give us his name and we will arrange with him, or some one else, to supply you.

WHY WE ADVERTISE IN THE NEWSPAPERS

Because we want you to know of the class of work turned out in our establishment.

Because we cater to the intelligent class and they read the papers.

Because we can talk to more people through the newspapers, at a greater distance, in less time and at a more reasonable price than in any other way.

Because newspaper advertising brings the best results when placed in a first-class medium.

Because we know it is seen and read by almost everyone in the house where the paper goes.
