STANDARD OIL BEATEN

U. S. Supreme Court Decides Against the Giant Corporation.

Court Holds That the Company is a Conspiracy in Restraint of Trade and a Monopoly in Contravention of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law — Is Given Six Months to Separate Itself Into 33 Constituent Parts.

Washington, May 16.—The supreme court of the United States yesterday ordered the dissolution of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey. In connection with this decree it also handed down its interpretation of the Sherman anti-trust law, long awaited by an anxious business world. In this, the first of its big decisions in the anti-trust cases, the court holds the Standard Oil company is a conspiracy in restraint of trade and a monopoly in contravention of the Sherman anti-trust law. Thus, after a fight of many years in which every obstacle known to the legal profession has been interposed, the federal government has finally succeeded in its effort to compel this giant corporation to cast off its holding company and again to separate itself into its 33 constituent parts.

Circuit Court's Decree Modified. To accomplish this gigantic undertaking the court sets a period of six months. This is an extension of five months over the time allotted in the dissolution decree of the lower court. The decree of the circuit court was modified by the supreme court in only one other particular. The supreme court orders that the Standard Oil company and its subsidiaries shall not be excluded from interstate commerce pending the putting its house in order.

The decision of the court in regard to the general interpretation of the Sherman anti-trust law was awaited with greater anxiety by the business world than the finding of fact in the Standard Oil case. The court holds that it is necessary to distinguish between "reasonable" and "unreasonable" restraint of trade as covered by the Sherman anti-trust law. The effect of the decision is viewed by distinguished lawyers, is to insert the word "unreasonable" into the general prohibition in the Sherman anti-trust law against combinations in restraint of trade. The supreme court has thus eliminated the uncertainty with which all business combinations regarded the Sherman anti-trust law, and in the future it will be up to the government to draw the line between good and bad trusts.

Application of Anti-Trust Law. The anti-trust law as construed by the court does not apply to all combinations, contracts or acts in restraint of trade, but only to those which are shown to be unreasonable and in which the intent to form an unlawful conspiracy or monopoly can be proved or inferred. The decision of the court and its general effect was regarded in Washington as distinctly reassuring to business. The decision of the court was read by Chief Justice White. It was unanimous with the exception of Associate Justice Harlan's dissent. Justice Harlan's words were marked by biting sarcasm. He contended the court had not gone far enough, and he objected particularly to the words of the chief justice in constraining the scope and purpose of the anti-trust act. He declared that the court had rendered an opinion that reversed an unbroken line of decisions for 15 years past. He criticized the corporation lawyers who, failing to get an amendment to law through congress, came to the United States courts for relief. He added with manifest sarcasm that it was becoming fashionable to amend the constitution and the federal statutes by judicial constructions.

It was the interpretation of the Sherman law so as to apply only to unreasonable combinations to which Associate Justice Harlan objected so vigorously. Attorney General Greatly Pleased. Attorney General Wickersham and other officers of the administration do not, however, share the gloom that seemed to enshroud Associate Justice Harlan. The attorney general and Frank B. Kellogg, who was special counsel for the government in the preparation and trial of the case, declared themselves greatly pleased over the decision. The attorney general, in a public statement holds that substantially every proposition contended for by the government was affirmed by the supreme court. The attorney general acknowledges that his office will now be restricted in bringing actions under the Sherman law to combinations which are unreasonably or unduly restraining interstate trade or commerce.

Was Taken From Ironworkers' Safe When McNamara Was Arrested.

McNamara, who is in the jail at Los Angeles, charged with complicity in dynamiting outrages, notified Superintendent of Police Hyland that $122 was taken from the safe in the office of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers on the night of McNamara's arrest. Rappaport says there is no doubt that the money was in the safe when it was opened by expert locksmiths shortly after midnight, after John J. McNamara was arrested. He says he saw the money, but that he did not count it. The safe was again locked after the search, he says, and was not opened by the ironworkers until the following Monday morning. At that time, says Rappaport, the envelope was in the safe, but the contents of the envelope had been removed. The money was the current cash receipts of McNamara for the month of April, he says.
