Andrews stated positively to the Warren Mirror representative that he will have a startling story for publication and that it will be far reaching. He said that in his connection with the Warren Water Works Company that he would reveal all he knows and intimated that it will make many who may be councilmen or others 'sit up and take notice.' This, when published, and it will be before the argument for a new trial, will reveal much that may startle this community. Mr. Andrews said 'I have been placed in this predicament by a conspiracy and I intend to go through with the entire affair regardless of whom it may hit." Next Monday, July 31, has been fixed by Judge Hinckley as the date for hearing the argument of counsel for and against a new trial for Andrews.

(This won't occur in Tidioute, however, as our people want the road.) The third contingency provided in the law is that the Commissioner may diverge the route, cutting the Boro out entirely. And here's where the 'meat in the cocoanut' lies, There are other ways to Warren from Tionests, and such action would be disastrous to Tidioute. So it stands our people to get busy, keep busy, and let no opportunity escape by which route 93 can be positively assured."
