MAY RENEW STRIKE.

Trouble Caused by Companies' Refusal to Reinstate Old Men.

New Strike Situation Grew Out of Refusal of the Companies to Reinstate Some of the Strikers In Their Old Places, Now Occupied by Men Who Remained Loyal to the Raliways-More Trouble Anticipated.

London, Aug. 22.-Numerous conferences have been going on in relgard to the new strike situation growing out of the refusal of the companies to reinstated some of the strikers in their old places.

Lloyd George is conferring with the attorneys general in regard to the legal definition of the terms of the strike agreement, which was signed on Saturday by representatives of the government, the railroad companies and the strikers.

The executive committee of me Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants at the same time held a conference with the leading officers of the board of trade.

Striking Carmen Still Out. General Ranken Askwith, chairman of the labor and statistical department of the board of trade, has stakeed for Manchester, where the striking car men remain obstinate. There is, absolutely no freight traffic through the streets.

A tour of the railroad terminals rerealed the fact that work was coing on at the points as though there had not been a great strike of two or three days' duration. It is certain, however, that a day or two will elapse before normal conditions will ensue. The officers of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants state that difficulties have arisen on certain lines n reference to the reinstatement of them who went on strike. In some, places the railway managers refused to reinstated certain of the strikers other men declined to resume and

The executive committee of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, it is stated, is considering the situation that has thus arisen. It is determined that the men shall be re-Instated and if this is not done the strike will be renewed.

It is possible that a further conference between the officers of the board of trade, the general managers of the railways and the representatives of the railways unions will be necessary to settle the new difficulty.

Northeastern Men Decline to Return At Sunderland all grades of employes on the Northeastern railway have declined to resume work .

In an interview the secretary of the engineers and firemens' union stated that if the company did not honorably carry out the agreement of last Saturday there will be no trouble. He added that the executive committee of which that union was considering the trouble on the Northeastern road and hoped that it would soon be settled.

The Amalgamated Society of Railway servyant has sent an urgent mes sage to the board of trade in regard to the trouble which has arisen on several lines about the reinstatement of some strikers. Sir Guy Granet, the general manager of the Midland, is conferring with Sydney Buxton, the president of the board of trade.

The Midland conductors held a meeting at Cricklewood and decided not to resume work. In Scotland and on the Northeast coat a number of the railway men were resolved to continue the strike.

Th committee in charge of the railway men's strike at Leeds decided to call out all grades of men employed on the Midland railroad. This action was taken because of the notice sent out by the general manufact of that road that men who had remained loyal to the company would held the positions formerly held by the strikers, to which they had been promoted during the recent trouble. The unions in sist that the strikers shall be reinstated in their old positions.

Dissatisfaction Over Settlement. At New Castle the employes of the Northeastern railroad are still out and threaten to stay out until the companies agree to their terms. They are greatly dissatisfied with the action of their executive at the London conference in accepting the ksovernment's proposals. The company has issued a notice to the public that the settlement reached on Saturday does not apply to the Northeastern road. The service on this line is much restricted.

Shipping at all ports on the Firth of Forth is alarmingly upset owing to dockers' strike. At Hull the strike on the Northeastern and the Hull and Burneley lines continues. The strike committee has issued a notice that the strike on these lines has not been settled. The troops still remain on

IRATE HUSBAND

Caught Him In His Home With His Young Wife.

Pittsburg, Aug. 22 .- "Tar and feathers would be too good for you," was the comment of Justice Davis of Homestead when Charles Boyd confectioner, faced him on a charge of having inyaded the sanctity of the home of J. G. Haller, a wealthy merchant. "There are men here who would ride you on a rail if the law allowed. Did you ever stop to think that you are a man of the same type as Stanford White?" Bruised and bleeding, with a pair of black eyes, puffed lips and a few other trimmings. Boyd hung his head and offred no defense to the charge made by Haller that Boyd had clandestinely pursued his attentions toward Mrs. Haller, a beautiful young women of the blonde type. Haller caught Boyd flat-footed. He banged his brawny fists into both of

Why He Wanted References.

At a credit men's dinner one of the veterans told this story: "In the reconstruction days a man from a Mississippi valley town came to our western house one day. We had sold him before in a small way, and he always paid. He had enlarged his business, be told us, and wanted a bigger line than usual, but before making his selections he wanted us to give him references. We expressed surprise at such an unheard of demand, but he said, 'My two brothers-in-law have gone in with me, and they're very particular as to whom they do business with.' So we sent him to our banks, and he came back, said we were all right, picked out a big line of goods, and in sixty days he 'busted.' We couldn't collect a dollar. Two years later I met the man in Cincinnati and told him-we had become reconciled to our loss. 'But will you please tell me,' I asked, 'why did you want references as to our credit? 'Well, you see,' he answered, 'I wanted to know if you could stand it." - Exchange.

No Law's Delay Here.

In Perak, in the Malay peninsula, s lawyers find no business, for a modified form of trial by ordeal decides all disputes. In place, of the legal practitioner the pleader is a native boy who is assigned to one or the other of the sides and is given a bamboo tube in which is sealed the pleading of the person or party whom he represents. When all is ready two stakes are driven into the bed of a stream, and by aid of a bamboo pole the heads of the two boys are submerged at the same time. By grasping the stakes they are enabled to remain under water for quite awhile after their natural inclination would bring them to the surface, but at last one of them gives in and, releasing his hold of the stake. comes to the air. He is immediately seized, and the tube he holds is cast aside. The other lad is led ashore, his tube opened, and the document contained therein stands as the decision in the case.

Scott Relics at Abbotsford.

The present estate of Abbotsford was formed during the years 1811 to 1817 from various small farms, the first one purchased bearing the "inharmonious designation" Clarty Hole. After Sir Walter Scott's death in 1834 a committee of friends collected £8,000 toward the redemption of the estate, and Mr. Cadell, the publisher, contributed the rest on receiving the rights over Scott's works. The library and museum had been given some years before by the creditors. As his son, Lieutenant Colonel W. Scott, died on his way home from India, the property descended to J. R. Lockhart, his son-in-law, and thence to his daughter's husband, J. R. Hope-Scott, whose daughter held the estate for some years. Many Scott relics are preserved in the house, notably his chair and writing table in the study and his hat and gloves in the hall.-London Stand-

Hard For the Eskimos.

One of the difficulties of the Moravian missionaries in Labrador L to make the Old Testament, with its wealth of pastoral detail, intelligible to the Eskimos, not one of whom has ever seen a horse. "Sheep and cattle." says Hesketh Pritchard in "Hunting Camps In Wood and Wilderness, "they cannot realize or conceive of, for there are no domesticated animals save dogs in that portion of the peninsula. They comprehend the story of Esau, the hunter, and that of Samson and the lion, which animal can be translated as polar bear, but of Abraham in the land of Mesopotamia they can form no picture. The nearest approach to these ideas is drawn from he harvest of the sea, seals and fish

Mistletoe a Menace. Few people who know mistletoe only as a desirable feature of Christmas decorations understand that the plant is a parasite dangerous to the life of trees in the regions in which it grows. It is only a question of time after mistletoe once begins to grow upon a tree before the tree itself will be killed. The parasite saps the life of the infected branches. Fortunately it is of slow growth, taking years to develop to large proportions, but when neglected it invariably ruins all trees it reaches. The only method of extermination is the cutting down of diseased trees.-Exchange. Two of a Kind,
