Fall Styles in Cloth Suits Show New Effects That Charm.

There is so much to admire in this line of Autumn Tailored Suits that every style-loving woman who sees them cannot help but own to a longing to lay aside her Summer toilettes, now old in the light of these new arrivals.

Most novel of all the cloths are the new boucle suitingssmart new effects taken from the latest imported models, which are beginning to appear in the big fashion centers. New All Wool Serges, Broadcloths, Whip Cords, Fancy Worsteds, and Fancy Mixtures are also prominent in this extensive group, which is replete with interest to every woman desirous of getting acquainted with the new styles,

You'll find the coats a little longer; the skirts wider, without looking wider; sleeves put in smooth instead of gathered; velvet used with rich effect in trimming. The prices are: $10, $15, $20, $25, $35.

Advance Display of Fall Fabrics

Is an occasion of great interest, affording as it does the first glimpse of the styles that are going to be prevalent this autumn. There's a most creditable showing of gray suitings, together with the new designs in those heavy black trimmings and garnitures whose popularity will be greater than ever before. It's the first real opportunity offered the women of this vicinity to see the new Fall Goods at first hand.

New Fall Handbags $1.

Beautiful new leather bags for which you'd expect to pay 50 per cent, more if the prices weren't marked on them, All the good new shapes are here-tops straight and curved, bottoms bellows-shaped and rounded; handles of cord or leather.

The leather is of a remarkably good quality, and all in all it's the best dollar line that's ever been shown here.

Other grades of handbags in large variety are here, from 50 cents to 12 dollars.

Stage Snow.

In "Personal Reminiscences of Henry Irving" Bram Stoker lets his readers into the secret of how the snow scene in "The Corsican Brothers" was made so effective: "All over the stage was a thick blanket of snow, white and glistening in the winter sunrise-snow that lay so thick that when the duelists, stripped and armed, stood face to face they each secured a firmer foothold by clearing it away. Of many wonderful effects this snow was perhaps the strongest and most impressive of reality. The public could never imagine how it was done. It was salt-common coarse salt-which was white in the appointed light and glistened like real snow. There were tons of it. A crowd of men stood ready in the wings with little baggage trucks such as are now used in the corridors of great hotels, silent with rubber wheels. On them were great wide mouthed sacks full of salt. When the signal came they rushed in on all sides, each to his appointed spot, and tumbled out his load, spreading it evenly with great wide bladed wooden shevels."

Tuning Bells. "What a beautiful tone that bell has!" is often heard. There are few, however, who know how a bell receives its joyful or solemn tones. All bells after they are cast and finished must go through a process of tuning the same as any other musical instrument before they respond with a clear, true tone. Every bell sounds five notes, which must blend together in order to produce perfect harmony. The tuning of a bell is done by means of shaving thin bits from various parts of the metal. It is as easy for an expert bell tuner to put a bell in tune as it is for a piano tuner to adjust his instrument to perfect chords. At first thought it would seem that a bell would be ruined should a tuner shave off too much at the last tuning, or the fifth sound, but such is not the case. He would, however, be obliged to begin over, starting again with the first tone and shaving the bell till it gave forth its harmonious sound at the fifth tone.-Scientific American.

No Clock Wanted.

There had been some talk of placing a clock in the tower of the village church. But John, the old sexton, who lived in the little cottage opposite the church, declared himself "dead agin it" and expressed the opinion that it would mean "an awful waste o' brass" were the scheme carried out.

"We want no clocks," he said the other day. "We've done without clocks up to now, an' we shall manage. Why, lyin' i' my bed of a mornin' I can see the time by the sundial over the

"Yes," replied one who approved of the scheme, "that's all right so far as rat off somewhere in the darkness it goes. But the sun doesn't shine every morning. What do you do

"Why," answered John surprisedly, "I knows then as it ain't fit weather to be out o' bed, an' I just stops where I is."-London Tit-Bits.

The Lavish Jenkins.

In October, 1886, a religiously mindd Buckinghamshire farmer named Jenkins brought his firstborn to the parish church to be christened, and America, and, though they now send this was to be the name: Abel Benjamin Caleb Daniel Ezra Felix Gabriel from Newfoundland is unabated-in Haggai Isanc Jacob Kish Levi Manoah Nehemiah Obdiah Peter Quartus Rechab Samuel Tobiah Uzziel Vaniah Word Xystus Zecharlah. It will be observed that the names are all arranged in alphabetical order and are as far as possible selected from Scripture. It was only with the very greatest difficulty that the clergyman dissuaded Mr. Jenkins from doing the lasting wrong to his child that he had unwittingly devised, but eventually it was decided to christen the boy simply Abel.-Chambers' Journal.

Where Plato Taught,

The famous academy of Plato was in a suburb of Athens, about a mile north of the Dypilum gate. It is said to have belonged to the hero Academus; hence the name. It was surrounded with a wall and adorned with walks, groves and fountains. Plato fossessed a small estate in the neighborhood and for some fifty years taught his "divine philosophy" to young and old assembled in the academy to listen to his wise words. After Plato's death in 348 B. C. the academy lost much of its fame, but the beauty remained for centuries after the great teacher was no more.-New York American.

Poet Laureate.

The office of poet laureate practicaly begins with Chaucer, who assumed the title about 1385. After Chaucer the office was more or less in the shadow, but from Spenser in 1599 the line of poet laureate is pretty well filled down to the present time. The office is largely honorary and has not always been held by the greatest of English poets, Dryden, Wordsworth and Tennyson being the most illustrious of its holders .- Exchange.

married you," said a young lady to the husband of her dearest friend. "So she ought to be," he reforted. "She did some nice girl out of a good husband!"

Unhappiness.

They who have never known prosperity can hardly be said to be unhappy. It is from the remembrance of joys we have lost that the arrows of affliction are pointed.—Emile Zola.

Exclusive. At an evangelistic service at Glasgow the preacher at the end of his address cried, "Now, all you good people who mean to go to heaven with me, stand up!" With a surge of enthusiasm the audience sprang to its feet, all but an old Scotchman in the front row, who sat still. The horrified evangelist wrung his hands and, addressing him, said, "My good man, my good man, don't you want to go to heaven?" Clear and deliberate came the answer, "Aye, Awm gangin, but no wi"

The Magpie Ceiling.

One of the apartments in the ancient royal palace at Cintra, Portugal, is known as the Hall of Magples. Painted in the arabesque ceiling is to be found a swarm of magples. Each has in the mouth a scroll, on which, painted in red on a white ground, are the words, "Por bem." The story runs that King John of Portugal was making love to one of the maids of honor in this chamber and was surprised by the queen. His majesty made the best of the circumstances and explained to the queen, "E por bem minka sacre" ("Oh, it is nothing at all. It is quite right. There is no harm in it"). As to whether the queen was satisfied the legend is silent, but the ladies of the court were deeply interested and were constantly saying to one another with a smile, "Por bem! Por bem!" The king thought it time to act, so he commissioned an artist to paint on the celling as many magples as there were talkative ladies about the court, each holding in the beak the ribbon with the words, "Por bem."-London Globe.

Fate of Portugal's Homer.

"The Lusiad" is one of the noblest records ever written of national glory and success. Camoens, its gifted author, determined to do for Portugal what Homer had done for Greece. The great poem was written in the sixteenth century, which has been called the heroic age of Portugal, and its main feature is the rounding of the Cape of Good Hope by Vasco da Gama, while a most interesting episode is the crowning after death of Inez de Castro as queen of Portugal. "The Lusiad" took its name from Lusius, who was said to have founded Lisbon Its author was born about 1520, and his career, which began brilliantly, was blighted by the death of a broken heart of the lady of his love, for whose sake he was banished from the land. He wrote "The Luslad" in his banish ment and was recalled in 1571, losing on the way all his property except his poem. Pensioned at first by the king, this great epic poet of Portugal died in great poverty in 1570, when his patron was also dead.

Down In a Coal Mine.

To the ear accustomed to the constant sound of a living world the stillness of a coal mine, where the miles of crosscuts and entries and the unyielding walls swallow up all sounds and echo is a silence that is complete, but as one becomes accustomed to the silence through long hours of solitary work sounds become audible that would escape an ear less trained. The trickling murmur of the gas, the spattering fall of a lump of coal loosened by some mysterious force from a cranny in the wall, the sudden knocking and breaking of a stratum far up in the rock above or the scurry of a strike on the ear lond and startling. The eye, too, becomes trained to penetrate the darkness, but the darkness is so complete that there is a limit-the limit of the rays cast by the pit lamp. -Joseph Husband in Atlantic

Portuguese and Codfish. It is an interesting fact that the fishermen of northern Portugal started and developed the fishing industry on the "banks" off the northern coast of fewer ships, their taste for sait cod ty. It is found in every little grocery shop, hard and brown as a board. A number of Portuguese have made their home on the islands to the south of the mainland of Massachusetts, and there the dark eyes of the Iberian maiden, raven locks and a certain picturesque element in dress are not infrequent. This connection with Portugal dates back many years, the ships of Marthas Vineyard bridging the distance over sea and returning with Portuguese crews.-Exchange.

In the Cumberland Lodge portion of the royal gardens at Windsor there is a vine, known all over England as the Cumberland Lodge vine, which is a shoot of a still older vine which grows at Hampton Court, but the shoot has far outdistanced its parent in dimensions and productiveness. In England grapes are generally grown under glass, and the Cumberland Lodge vine has a great glass structure, 120 feet long by 20 wide, all to itself. Growing with astonishing luxuriance, the vine spreads itself over a roof area of 2,400 square feet and bears annually a crop of approximately a thousand huge bunches of the finest flavored grapes These grapes are frequently found on the royal table, and the subject who is presented with a basket of them con siders himself highly favored.
