The Outs and The Ins.

Several changes took place at the temple of justice on Monday, the first of the year, when the new officials were "sworn in." Judge Joseph M. Morgan takes the place of Associate Perry C. Hill, whose six-year term ended on Sunday, and he retires with the good opinion of a large circle of friends, while Mr. Morgan enters upon his delicate duties with the confidence of his host of friends that he will discharge those duties conscientiously, faithfully and with fairness to all.

Sharp R. Maxwell steps from the Sheriff's office over into the Prothonotary's apartments, which J. C. Geist so gracefully and efficiently presided over for three consecutive terms, and who retires with the universal encomium, "well done." Mr. Maxwell's record as Sheriff gained for him a host of friends who boosted him into the higher position with a well nigh unanimous majority, and the people are satisfied that he will meet their every expectation in the discharge of his intricate work in that office. Mr. Maxwell will retain the present efficient deputy, Miss Kate Arner, to assist him in the work.

Will H. Hood is the one Democrat who won out in the county last fall, and be assumes the arduous duties of the Sheriff's office and will look after the peace and dignity of the county for the next four years. Mr. Hood has had considerable experience along that line, having served as constable in the borough, and his many friends have every confidence that he will conduct the office with absolute fairness and unpartiality toward all, and that he will make good in all

In the Treasurer's office there is a new man at the helm, George W. Holeman the faithful custodian of the county's finances for the past four years, stepping out and Wade H. Brazee stepping in. You hear nothing but praise of the manner in which Mr. Holeman conducted that office of responsibility, and it goes without saying that the same courteous treatment and efficient conduct will rule in that office for the next four years under Mr. Brazee's administration of affairs.

But one change takes place in the County Commissioners office, Joseph C. Scowden succeeding John M. Zueudel on the board, the other members being W. H. Harrison and H. H. McClellan. This office has been wisely administered not only in the past three years but for many years in the past, and with the addition of such a level-headed man as Mr. Scowden there will be no backward tendency in the administration of county affairs, but we may look for still further advancement along the line of good government and economical management.

The only change in the board of county auditors is the retirement of J. P. Reliy, who is succeeded by S. Van Shields, and with the two former members, A. C. Gregg and G. H. Warden we have a board which for efficiency it would be hard to excell in the county.

As jury commissioners J. B. Eden and A. M. Moore succeed Ernest Sibble and Louis Wagner. Both of the incoming officials are men of mature judgment and level-headed, and the office will not suffer in their hands.
