JUAREZ MOB LOOTS STORES

Rebel Soldiers Start Pillage and Destroy Property.

AMERICANS HEAVY LOSERS

Zapata Outbreak Grows-Capital Is Nervous Over Spread of Insurrection, but Madero Professes Confidence.

Mexico City.-The Madero Government faces a crisis. The President and members of his Cabinet now admit the rebellion headed by Emiliano Zapata has grown to such proportions as to make it the most formidable menace yet faced by the present Government. The conduct of the campaign against the Zapatistas, now operating over a wide area, and the uprising at Juarez were discussed in a special Cabinet meeting. The President was not willing to admit that the mutiny of troops at Juarez was directly connected with the Zapatista rebellion, and it was agreed that Pascual Orozeo and 400 men whom he has been ordered to take from Chihuahua to Juarez would be sufficient to restore order at that point. Nevertheless the Juarez uprising is more seriously considered than the officials here will admit

El Paso.-With the stores wrecked as completely as if a cyclone had struck them, the merchandise bedecking the mutineers or piled in their home throughout the city and all railroads cut to the south to prevent troops coming from the national or State capital, the 500 mutinous Mexican soldiers who took charge of Cindad Juarez spent the night rioting and looting. During the day they elected their own officers and then repaired to their barracks, drunk on liquor pillaged from the saloons and with their pockets stuffed with coin and valuables taken from the stores. Impassioned appeals from Judge J. D. Haff of Kansas City prevented the El Paso Chamber of Commerce from appealing to President Taft to send American troops into Juarez - hold the Mexican border town unto the Mexican Government could show its ability to preserve order and protect American citizens and property.

The looters appear to have wrecked especial vengeance upon the American curio dealers. The biggest general store in the place, that of Ketelsen & Degetau, German subjects, carrying a stock valued at 5250,000, was burned.

Picard Bros., rrencu subjects, operating the "Three B" store estimates their loss by looters at $80,000. H. Spring had a loss of $10,000. Jacob Kleinman's loss was $15,000. Other losses were not so heavy, but the aggregate of the loting is $200,000 in ad-

Americ as who visited Juarez say they counted eight dead and saw nine wounded men as a result of orgies, but the mutineers say that only three were killed. Three wounded men were brought to El Faso. They are Fred Leyva, Gus Ruhnke and Mariano Rodriguez. The last named was police adjutant of Juarez. In attempting to put down the mutiny he killed Cipriano Torres, an insurrecto, and was himself badly wounded in the head. He reached El Paso by a circuitous route through the mountains.

LAWRENCE MILLS OPEN AGAIN.

Main Body of Strikers Back at Their Looms-Yates New Leader.

Lawrence, Mass .- Only two of the textile mills falled to open. The number of operatives returning to work was the largest since the strike began, nearly three weeks ago.

Although no figures were announced It was estimated that the proportion of operatives entering the mills was 50 per cent. greater. Those who toturned were largely foreigners, who made up the main body of strikers. William Yates of New Bedford took charge of the strike and Gilbert V. Smith of this city became chairman of the general committee.

FOUR SLAIN IN LAWRENCE

Two Men and Two Women Strikebreakers Murdered.

FOREIGN QUARTER IN TERROR

"Scab" Chalked On Door-Victims Had Celebrated Uproarlously the Return to Work Night Before Their Death.

Lawrence, Mass.—Terror prevails throughout the French-Canadian colony in Valley Street as the result of the murder of four strikebreaking operatives, who had returned to work in the Italian colony in adjacent streets. In all the foreign quarter there is intense excitement over the crime, and only the presence and activity of the militia have prevented serious disorder and possibly interracial conflicts.

The four victims are: Mr. and Mrs. JOSEPH SARVARIA. MISS ANNA TANGUAY. FELIX GONN.

A fellow-countrywoman visited a three-story ramshackle tenement between Hampshire and Franklin sts., in which a dozen families of French Canadian operatives are housed. While passing the landing on the second floor, she discovered blood coming from beneath the door of a three-room tenement occupied by the Sarvarias who two days before returned to work in the mills. Shricking in fright, she rushed from the house and told a group of tenants, gathered on the sidewalk. One of the men went up to the second floor and forced open the door.

In the kitchen he discovered the bodies of two men and a woman with their faces slashed almost beyond recognition. In an adjoining bedroom was found the body of the second woman, who I id also been mutilated in most flendish fashlon.

In an incredibly short time the crime became known to other inmates of the house, who flocked into the streets, hysterical with terror. One Canadian forced his way to the front of the excited mob and in stentorian tones urged his fellow-countrymen to take reprisal upon the Italians in the adjoining section of the mill Before the mob could act on this whence they had emerged. In less than ten minutes after the murders were discovered, the streets had been cleared as if by magic, and members of the State and local Police Departments had entered the house and begun an investigation to discover the identity c' che victims.

The murders are a direct result of the inter-racial jealousies in the ranks of the strikers. Since the arrest of Joseph J. Ettor, their leader, the strikers have been divided into opposing camps, according to the nationalities represented.

The Syrian, Armenian, Polish, Russtan, Italian and Lithuanian strikers have remained steadfast, and for the most part refused to return to work. The Franco-Belgian, French-Canadian, and English-speaking people, who are the better paid classes among the operatives, deserted in large numbers, and this fact aroused considerable ractal hatred.

Peter Sarvaria, uncle of Joseph Sarvaria, informed the police that after spite of threats made by members of his four fellow countrymen resumed work the door of the squalid tenement in which they dwelt was heavily chalked with the word "Scab."

EXPRESS RATE REFORMS.

Companies Agree to Plan to Prevent Overcharges.

Washington.-The first reform in connection with the investigation undertaken by the Interstate Commerce Commission, into the rates, rules and regulations of the express companies of the United States, was accomplished at the hearing before Commissioner Lane. At the suggestion of the commission an agreement was reached whereby representatives of shippers, express companies and of the commission will meet together in a committee and agree upon changes in the form of bills of lading and receipts on the direction, routing and boundary lines for deliveries in cities and on regulations to prevent overcharges.

Shippers attending the hearing regarded this agreement as the most important step ever taken in the direction of reform in the express service of the country, and as foreshadowing other reforms of a far-reaching char-a former employe of the postoffice here, is alleged to have admitted that she is responsible for a shortage of $6,800 in the accounts of Postmaster George L. Thomas. While the residents are eagerly awaiting develop ments, the young girl appears to have nothing on her mind but the fact that her father refused to allow her to attend the automobile show in Pittsburgh last week. The girl spent three days in assisting the postoffice inspector in his investigation. Otherwise, it would probably have taken months to discover the amount of the shortage and the system used. The girl's salary was $32 a month.

New Berhlehem is all agog over the one and only sensation in its history. "That postoffice shortage of $6,800 is more than this town has lost by fire in 40 years," said one old resident "What did she do with all the money?" is the question belong generally askeed. Miss Latimer's friends explain how she disposed of the cash she is alleged to have stolen.

"El"," said one of her girl friends "was a mighty good fellow. She was very independent and kept ker pylvate affairs to herself, but she was good to her friends and to her family. She liked to dress well and she kept her three sisters and a brother well They lived on the best to be had and 'El' footed nearly all of the bills.

Miss Latimer has not been seen on the streets of the town for several A close triend of the girl de clares that she is keeping secluded in her home because she had been informed that foreigners in the town, fearing that money orders they had sent to the old country would never reach their destination, because Miss Latimer is alleged to have taken them. have been making threats against her ing the expenses of a girl friend who is a patient in a Pittsburgh hospital, and whose parents have no knowledge of her whereabouts. Postmaster Thomas declares the first f limation that there was some thing amiss with the accounts was given to him in November, when the postoffice department in Washington eturned him a report sent in by Miss Latimer, in which there was a $500 discrepancy. "When I received the report back from the department," said Mr. Thomas, "I made out one myself and sent This one was also returned. Then I called Miss Latimer's attention to it. She made up another report. The next thing I knew along came an Inspector with all three reports and an investigation was begun.

When she came down on request, she assisted Inspector Thomas in going over the books. With one exception she recognized at first glance every money order which she said she had reduced when entering it upon the stubs. She also got out a set of books in which she had kept account of the money order business as it should have been kept. Her extra set of books showed practically all she had taken.

"After the inspector had concluded his examination of the books he questioned her. 'How ong have been carrying this . . . he asked her. and she said, 'For more than three years.' She was asked if she had taken any money when her father was postmas.er. She said she had. She was a very shrewd girl and if she hadn't made that s'ip-up in her report last November, I doubt if they would ever have caught her.' Postmaster Thomas also declared that when he broke into Miss Latimer's privte locker, he found a quantity of mail addressed to him. sent by the posoffice department.

Miss Latimer, who is 23 years old. had been an employe of the postoffice for more than six years. It is stat that her father was under the impre sion that the salary paid her daughte was $1,000 a year.
