AS EACH succeeding Memorial Day comes around we are brought to the realization that in a comparatively short time veterans of the Civil War will have gone to the great beyond, says the Punxsutawney Spirit. This year there will be 40,000 new graves to decorate. Each year fewer veterans are able to turn out and participate in the parades, and it will not be long before the observance of the beautiful custom of remembering the brave men who fought for the preservation of the nation will depend entirely upon the various patriotic organizations of the younger generations.

THE State Democracy reformed itself at Harrisburg last week by changing bosses and nominating a ticket, part of which has so frequently been licked at the polls as to be looked upon as a joke. Reformers Geo. W. Guthrie of Pittsburgh was placed at the head of affairs as state chairman, and William H. Berry of Chester, the standing candidate was nominated for state treasurer. Robert E. Cresswell of Johnstown was named for auditor general, and George B. Shaw, Joseph Howley, G. R. McLean and E. E. Greenawald were nominated for congress-at-large. No doubt these gentlemen will take their licking with as little grimace under Leader Flinn as they would have under the former regime.

PERSONS who receive fake newspapers through the mails should not be influenced by anything they may contain. These bastard sheets are not newspapers at all, and really have no right in the mails. They are always circulated broadcast, when elections are pending, and usually contain matter which no decent newspaper would publish. Some of them appeal to religious prejudices, endeavoring to antagonize Protestantism and Catholicism, others pose as temperance publications, temporarily, either for blackmailing purposes or lambasting one candidate in the interest of another. Their missions are many, but they are all of a vile, contaminating nature. Such publications are literary outlaws, counterfeits news dispensers, which have no more right to circulate than counterfeit money.—Oil City Blizzard.

In an opinion filed by the Supreme Court, sitting in Philadelphia, the constitutionality of the new school code was upheld by a majority of four to three. Justices Fell, Moschaker, Elkin and Porter affirming, and Justices Brown, Mestrez and Stewart filing a dissenting opinion. In the opinion of the majority of the court it is declared that act of May 18, 1911, was the product of the deliberate thought of a commission of prominent citizens of the commonwealth, who worked upon the statute for several years. After prolonged consideration it passed two legislatures before final approval by the governor, and the Supreme Court was then asked to set it aside as unconstitutional. "This," said Justice Moschaker, "we cannot do and should not do unless the alleged breaches of the fundamental law are so glaring that there is no escape. The constitution requires the legislature to provide and support a thorough and efficient system of schools for the education of the children of the commonwealth and this is what was undertaken by the code."

THAT William Flinn of Pittsburgh, furnished the money with which the Roosevelt campaign in the 28th district was carried on was brought out Friday when John L. Morrison of Greenville filed his expense account as treasurer in this district. His statement shows that he received $1,250 from Mr. Flinn, one payment of $250 and another of $1,000. All of this except $41.32 was either spent or promised. The sum of $967.23 was paid out for newspaper announcements, clerk hire, traveling expenses of Mr. Morrison, telephone and telegraph tolls, etc. The sum of $238.40 is owing to the Burns Detective Agency for "seeking election frauds," and when this is paid $44.32 will be left. This, Mr. Morrison states, will be turned over to the Roosevelt State Committee. Mr. Morrison states that he is unable to file vouchers in all of the five counties and has, therefore, filed them at Tionesta, Forest county, the geographical center of the district. It was said during the close of the campaign that Burns detectives were at work in the district, trying to ferret out election frauds, but the story was not generally credited. Mr. Morrison's report, however, shows that the statement was true.

Hulings Starts Contest.

Allegations of election frauds in the interests of Peter M. Spear at the recent primaries are contained in a petition presented to Judge Griewell today, says a Franklin dispatch to the Derrick under date of 15th inst. It is signed by 28 voters principally from Oil City. Most of the allegations contained in the petition refer to Elk county. It is contended that on a fair count General Willis J. Hulings would have been nominated by a majority of 67 in the district instead of Mr. Spear, who had 465 majority.

The petition was presented by Attorney A. B. Omer, who said it had come from Mr. Helman, meaning, presumably, H. A. Helman, of Kittanning, a son-in-law of General Hulings. Judge Griewell made no order on the petition Monday. It is signed by the following: Sam W. McCuen, W. T. Clinger, H. L. Dale, J. A. Reed, L. J. Nixon, C. B. Grove, J. A. McKelvey, J. F. McIntyre, W. H. Longwell, Willis J. Hulings, H. D. Allen, George B. DeNovelli, H. D. Brown, D. E. Byles, B. F. Gault, T. R. Hynes, Thomas Gaddess, E. B. Lewis, W. H. Corrin, George F. Lawrence, George K. Evans, S. H. Shippson, Samuel Neidig, R. B. Materno, A. T. Hoffman, C. F. Hartwell, W. B. James, George N. Fry.

The Chestnut Tree Blight.

The Chestnut tree bark disease has fully confirmed the unfavorable opinion regarding its destructiveness created at the beginning of its appearance in Pennsylvania, by reason of its gradual but certain spread over a large section of the Keystone State. There are counties in south-eastern Pennsylvania in which fully 75 per cent of the native is infected. Approaching the central and western counties, the percentage dwindles to a very small figure, only an occasional tree, here and there, being found diseased. It is in such sections that the most successful work towards its control and eradication can be done. It is at points where the infected trees are but very few in number and far apart that special effort should be made to locate and wipe out the diseased trees. By destroying where they stand all infected trees in the territory where the infection is only slight, the blight can be checked and its further spread effectively halted, if there is no relaxation of the vigilance of the state authorities and continued co-operation of timber owners. It is generally conceded that at this time the best course to pursue is to have the field agents of the Pennsylvania Chestnut Tree Blight Commission scout all portions of the state to locate the points of infection and report the result to the owners and urge prompt and vigorous action wherever the blight may be found in destroying the diseased trees. When infected trees are felled and the bark burnt and the adjacent timber kept under close surveillance, according to instructions, the remaining timber will probably be saved, since the spores that spread the disease are thus destroyed. New York and New Jersey experiences indicate very forcibly that indifference or delay will certainly occasion disastrous losses.

The field agents now traveling through the various counties of the commonwealth in search of the blight have been trained for the special work, and it will be mutually advantageous for all persons interested to co-operate in the task of controlling the disease.

The disease is caused by a fungus parasite known technically as Diaporthe parasitica. It resembles a spreading "sore", or lesion, which soon girdles a tree or branch, causing it to die. Some of the symptoms are quite prominent, but the disease itself is best recognized by the growth of many reddish-brown spots or pustules, about the size of a pin head, appearing in the cracks of old bark, small reddish blisters appear on cankers with smooth bark, suckers or water sprouts at the base of diseased trees, etc., all of which are evidences of the chestnut bark disease. If there are any doubts whatever regarding its identification or if the representatives of the commission cannot be located without delay, the commission should be addressed at 1112 Morris Building, Philadelphia, in order that the investigation can be expedited, and the proper remedial agency applied. This is the season when the blight will spread rapidly, if unchecked, and there is no class of persons who do not have a vital interest in forestry protection; consequently an awakening to the seriousness of the dilemma is of the greatest value and will result in much public good.

The Commission has extended grateful acknowledgments to the press for the invaluable service it has rendered in calling the attention of the public to the chestnut blight, and recognizes that it is an almost indispensable factor in this campaign against this new, but terribly destructive, fungus disease that threatens to exterminate all of our beautiful and valuable chestnut trees. It is a matter of serious importance, and the public generally should combine with the state authorities in combating the disease.

Mr. E. S. Dell, the local representative of the commission, who is at present in this county, will be pleased to furnish further information and assist owners and others interested in forestry in every practicable manner.

Danger of Importing Potato Disease.

State Zoologist Surface, of the Department of Agriculture, Harrisburg, is much interested in a communication which he received from a valued correspondent sending a clipping from a newspaper published at St. Etienne, France, calling attention to a potato disease which is far worse than anything else now known in America.

In view of the fact that many persons are contemplating planting seed potatoes from abroad this season, owing to the scarcity or high price of home grown seed potatoes, the Department takes this occasion to call definite attention to the importance of growers avoiding this and similar diseases not yet known in this State, and making certain that they are planting only good seed potatoes, even though they may have to pay a higher price for the home-grown product.

The article states that the parasite "burrows after the manner of the parasite of a mine, and penetrates the whole vegetable organism. Having attacked a single tuber it quickly contaminates the whole hill, and from there spreads to the neighboring plants. The infection spreads with even greater ease in cellars or wherever potatoes are kept. If a person has the misfortune to plant a single infected potato in his field the entire crop for that field is lost."

In this cold, backward spring, with a shower of hail, rain or snow about every other day, we've been wondering how Smith's Punxsutawney garden is coming on.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Whig Hill.

About all of the farmers have their oats sowed, some have their potatoes planted, and some are ready to plant corn. Everything seems to be moving quietly along, with nice little showers to moisten the ground. Makes us all feel that this might be a good year, long to be remembered.

While the fruit trees are not so full of blossoms as heretofore, yet there are plenty of the frost just holds off for a few days.

It seems quite cold and backward and while some think we have been knocked toward the north pole, we still hope for sunshine and warmer weather.

Fred Rudolph of Ross Run has moved to Newtown Mills, where he has a lumber job.

While we hated to see our good neighbors move away, thank goodness he has not gone so far away but what we can get a squirt at his good old self once in a while. This is a world of move and hustle.

Thos. Kahle, the veterinary, of Shippenville, Clarion county, was called on our hill last week by Mr. Catlin, who had a horse that had to undergo some repairs.

Mr. Kahle can do the trick.

Son.—What's that noise over the hill?

Mother.—Timber being sawed by the Miller's mill.

Son.—What's that screech so loud and shrill?

Mother.—That's the whistle on Miller's mill.

Son.—What do they do on Miller's mill?

Mother.—They saw out lumber that fills the hill.

The little mill is doing a fine business and will soon have the job completed. Mr. Miller is a hustler and don't tarry long in a place. Any one wishing a fine grade of lumber would do well to confer with Miller & Henderson, Kelleitville.

When the trout season opened up many anglers were on deck with large bait boxes but the bait was too big for their little mouths, so not many were taken. The largest catch we heard of in one day was Master Clair Price, who captured ten fine ones.

Misses Alice and Zella Decker are at home with their parents, from the Tionesta high school.

A big frost Tuesday morning. Froze the ground, and cakes of ice on the water.

Up Before Pardon Board.

Thirteen cases, nine of which are new and including two applications for commutation of the death sentence, are listed for the state board of pardons at its meeting on May 15. The case of Alphonso Plantar, Jr., of Philadelphia, which has been on the held-over list for two months, may be considered. Another case of interest to this section is that of Joseph Fischer, convicted in 1908 of an assault near Overlin and sentenced to 15 years. It has been contended that the sentence was excessive.

The North American Enables Every One to Secure the Famous Brady War Photographs.

Every American home is full of memories of the great Civil War that happened fifty years ago. The famous Brady War Pictures, lost for many years, worth a king's ransom, are now being placed within the reach of every reader of the paper. When the Philadelphia North American heard of the magnificent undertaking, it at once determined to secure the prize for its readers, regardless of expense. Our plan is to issue each week, commencing Sunday, May 12, 1912, a complete section, containing from 40 to 150 photographs, representing important scenes, such as Bull Run, Shiloh, Corinth, Fredericksburg, Appomattox. These sections are printed on heavy white coated paper, and will continue for sixteen weeks, and can be obtained by securing a coupon issued with the Sunday North American and 10 cents, 15 cents by mail.

Each section will be complete in itself. You can obtain one or all, just as you desire. In addition to the Brady photographs each section will contain one beautiful colored plate; that for Section No. 1 will be the battle of Bull Run. Don't fail to notify your newsdealer to save you a copy of the Sunday North American. There will be an extra demand for this and succeeding issues, and if you desire to secure this pictorial history of the Civil War you will have to get busy at once.

Capitol Park extension is being pushed forward by the state commission at such a rapid rate that by the end of the year the state will be in possession of dozens of properties in the proposed park area. The commission now has almost 50 options on properties, including several groups of strategic importance, and as soon as the attorney general's department finishes its search of titles, deeds will pass. The commission has been securing properties all over the district rather than in any one block and with the use of the additional money it has at its disposal over and above the $100,000 set aside for this year, it will make considerable progress this summer. The board of public grounds and buildings will report to the next legislature a tentative plan for improvement of the park and ask an appropriation to pay for landscape gardening.

Pennsylvania Apple Industry.

Pennsylvanians who have investigated the apple growing industry in Oregon are not very optimistic as to its future. One former Oregon man, who was in Harrisburg recently, said: "There are only one or two orchards in the vicinity of Grants Pass, for instance, that are paying their owners. Eastern grown fruit is far superior in flavor, and as soon as the Pennsylvania growers increase their output and adopt the business methods of the westerners they will be able to monopolize the market. Apple lands in the west are selling at such high prices that even though the yield be large the return on the investment is not great. Other disadvantages are high railroad rates, the cost of caring for the orchards and safeguards against frost." Another Pennsylvanian who has been in Wyoming will return to Pennsylvania as soon as he has disposed of real estate interests there and will grow Pennsylvania apples for a living.

Twenty-seven of the suits were for pure food violations, including sale of dried fruits containing chemicals and not labeled; decayed potatoes, decomposed grapes and ketchup containing too much benzoate; the activities of the agents having a wide range in Philadelphia, Allegheny, Huntington, McKean and Butler counties.
