BRANDT IS SENT BACK TO JAIL

Former Schiff Valet Goes to the Tombs in Custody of Sheriff.

ROSALSKY ACTION LAWFUL

Justices, in Opinion, Says Prisoner's Own Statements of Way He Entered Banker's Home Establish Illegal Breaking.

New York.—The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court decided that Justice Gerard should not have released Folke Engel Brandt. Brandt five years ago was sentenced to serve thirty years in prison for burglary in the home of Mortimer L. Schiff, where he had been employed as valet to the banker. The former valet was arrested and taken to the Tombs when the Appellate Division's decision was made known.

The decision was given in reversing the action of Justice Gerard in a habeas corpus proceeding.

Brandt will not go to Dannemora immediately, but will remain in the Tombs for at least thirty days, pending his appeal. The District Attorney's office thinks he cannot be bailed, but Mirabeau L. Towns, counsel to the prisoner, says he can be.

Brandt was brought from Flushing, Queens, where he has been stopping, and arraigned in General Sessions on a bench warrant. At the request of C. C. Nott, Jr., Assistant District Attorney, Judge O'Sullivan raised the $2,500 bail in which the prisoner had been held on his second indictment, which charges assault, to $5,000, thus making the total of the bail $10,000.

All five Justices of the Appellate Division concurred in the opinion, which was written by Justice Miller. A separate opinion, citing phases of the case not dealt with in the main document, was handed down, however, by Chief Justice Ingraham. After stating that, despite Brandt's statements, in which he sought to prove himself not guilty after he entered a plea of guilty, the court that originally tried him was not under obligation to order him to change his plea, the unanimous opinion makes the following comment:

"Even on the prisoner's own statements, the manner in which he entered the (Schiff) house meets the statutory definition of breaking.

CHICAGO STRIKERS LOSE.

Stereotypers' Officials Disband Union and Newspapers Issue as Usual.

Chicago.—James J. Freil, international president of the stereotypers union, began the formation of a new Chicago local to replace persistent insubordination of the strikers on Chicago newspapers in refusing to obey command to return to work. He not only revoked the charter of the recalcitrants but also cancelled their union cards and the traveling certificates issued to members recently to enable them to obtain positions in other cities.

Vice-President L. J. Sumner, said that while some of the old stereotypers would probably be taken into the new union, discrimination would be used in the new union. "We intend to have men who will stand by contracts when they are made," said Mr. Sumner.

Action against the stereotypers had the effect of improving strike conditions generally. The morning papers were issued practically as before the strike. Evening papers printed 16 to 28 pages.

DIVES TO TRACK, SAVES CHILD.

Fireman Rolls to Safety After Plunge from Speeding Engine.

Jefferson, Ga.—The people of Jefferson will ask recognition from the Carnegie Commission of the daring deed of "Soap" Lockett, a negro fireman, who risked his life to save the two-year-old daughter of John Potter.

The child strayed from home, and was seen on the tracks of the Georgia Midland Railroad as a train came rushing by. She was dazed, and remained standing between the rails. The fireman realized there was no time to stop the train, and rushing along the runningboard, he dived off the engine, carrying the child in his arms and rolling to safety.

English Ordnance Maker Tells About a Coming Monster.

London.—J. M. Gledhill of Armstrong, Whitworth & Co., speaking at the Iron and Steel Institute, referred to the increase in size of modern ordnance, and said there were now whispers concerning a gun of eighteen-inch bore, weighing between 150 and 200 tons.

FLIES TO BATTLESHIP.

Aviator Burgess Accepts a Signaled Invitation and Steps Aboard.

Marblehead, Mass.—While circling in a hydro-aeroplane over the battleships Georgia and Rhode Island in the harbor W. Starling Burgess received a signalled invitation to come aboard. He came so nice a landing that he was able to step directly from his place in the machine to the side of one of the big ships.

BURNED MSS. PHOTOGRAPHED.

When the Sheet has not Been Entirely Disintegrated, Results are Positive.

The processes of color photography have recently been applied to obtain a legible photograph of the writing on burned manuscripts which were un-readable by any other known means. As long as the sheet has not been entirely disintegrated positive results can be obtained every time.

The charred manuscript is carefully arranged, in as near its original shape as possible, on a sheet of glass, and covered with a drying varnish, after which it is backed by another sheet of glass.

By using carefully selected color greens and other chromatic plates a perfectly legible photograph of the writing may be taken, although there may be no marks on the charred remains that are visible to the eye.

This is the only known method that will give results when the writing has been made with vegetable inks. Ordinary photography can be used successfully when the ink contains aniline or its composition.—Popular Mechanics.

Fuller's Earth.

Fuller's earth is found in the Engle Jura, in the Belgian chalk formation, in Rosswald and Siebelem in Saxony and along the Oder River in a province of Silesia.

Statistics giving the volume of the production in Germany are not available, but Fuller's earth is extensively exported, especially from Florida and other parts of the United States. The volume of such import is, however, not separately given, it being included with "earths and raw materials not specially mentioned," and is entered "duty free. Its principal uses in Germany are to dissolve fats and oils used in soap and other industries, to scour and cleanse cloth, in the manufacture of colored paper and rugs, in the production of ultramarine and also in the manufacture of an article to lean out spots.—Consular and Trade Reports.

A Penguin as a Pet.

I outbid a friend for a penguin, which became an interesting pet. The friend wanted the bird for his skin. On board ship the bird soon got accustomed to its surroundings, and found that the cook was one to keep on good terms with, and it haunted the galley, getting many titbits.

It was always in attendance when the market boat came alongside in the morning, and followed the steward as he carried the day's provisions aft. Strange to say, it developed a great liking for lettuce, although its natural food is fish, and another curious trait was that it would never pick up food from the deck or out of water, but would always take it ravenously from the hand. It behaved like a child, and would make a whining sound as if begging to be lifted up, and would cuddle down and appear to be quite happy when being nursed.—Scotsman.

Old London Sunday Laws.

A seventeenth century Sunday in London was a day of trials. For one in a but to fetch or carry to break the Sabbath. Mr. MacMichael, in his "Charing Cross," notes a few items from the overseers' accounts of St. Martin's. Fines were imposed for "carrying linen," "carrying a bunch of hoes, and on a man for his wife wearing on a Sunday." And were not the Duke of Buckingham and Sir Charles Sedley fined again and again for riding in their coaches on Sunday? This strictness upon travelling was not confined to London, nor yet to riding in coaches. A seventeenth century pedestrian was caught in the act of strolling from Bristol to Bath on a Sunday and fined a sovereign.—London Chronicle.

Drifts 2,300 Miles in 203 Days.

Of the twelve globes set adrift by the Wide World magazine for the purpose of testing the currents of the Atlantic, six have been recovered. The last to be found is marked No. 11 and was thrown from the deck of the Campana.

The globe was set adrift from the captain's deck at 3 P. M., when the vessel was in lat. 41.55 N. and long. 75.25 W. It was found by J. Montgomery at Palagill, Horn Head, County Donegal, in the extreme north of Ireland. It had travelled approximately 2,300 miles in 203 days. Six globes are still adrift.

An Essay on Service Based on Actual Performance of Every Promise.

T. A. P.

We would lose our right to be termed leading clothiers if we neglected to take care of the details of our business in any way. We are not a store that caters to any particular set. But rather are we, a people's store for all the people all the time. We aspire to public prestige and public patronage, through the channels of reaching the public pulse by the roadway of best values.

We at all times carry large stocks of men's suits at $6.00 the suit, because there are many men who want $6.00 suits either for service or something else. We always have complete assortments of suits at $10.00, $12.50 and $15.00, because we have a great many customers who either cannot afford to pay more, or won't pay more.

We neglect no details that will revert to our mutual betterment. We may at times advertise high priced merchandise in all lines, but don't forget that we always carry complete stocks of lower priced goods for those who want them.

This is a big store and growing bigger every day.
