WARSHIPS BOTHER SOL JACOBS.

Frighten the Mackerel Away From His Seines Off Coast.

If you were seining for mackerel and luck was with you and just as you were about to draw in your nets with a fine catch half a dozen of Uncle Sam's battleships came along and frightened all the mackerel away, wouldn't it give you a headache? That's just what it did to Capt. Sol Jacobs of the prime little auxiliary schooner Quariette, which reached Tionesta. Sol had a grievance against the United States navy which it will take many days for him to live down. One afternoon when the sun was not about sinking in the sky and the water was as smooth as glass Sol sailed a school of mackerel. It was the largest school he had seen for weeks. Orders were given to lower the seining boats and throw out the nets. The rest was easy, for the nets sank down on the fish, and Sol stood on the deck wearing a smile and thinking of the dollars realized by that catch. But behold, just before the men in the seining dories had pulled in the nets at the bottom, imprisoning the handsome catch, along came half a dozen of the battleships that were in the manoeuvres at Provincetown and kicked up the ocean so that the mackerel were frightened away. "I was angry enough," said Sol, "to fight the whole blamed squadron."—Boston Daily Advertiser.

Oldest Man in Scotland.

James Grieve, believed to be the oldest man in Scotland, died at his dwelling, Coran-tee, Loch Eckside, recently. He was a native of Inverness-shire, where, according to his own belief, he was born in the year 1800. He fixed the date of his birth by his recollections of Waterloo. He was then a boy working in the fields, and when the news of the victory arrived he, along with his fellow laborers, participated in the general rejoicings. At that time he was 14 or 15 years of age. He maintained the use of his faculties almost up to the last, and was able to see and speak with visitors till within a few weeks of his death. Mr. Grieve had spoken with men who had seen Prince Charlie, and had heard his grandfather describe that historic personage; and his own father and his uncle had taken part in a Highland clan feud. For almost ninety-five years he worked as a shepherd, and even after he had retired from continuous labor he continued to assist in the fields, "taking a turn at the hay," as he phrased it.—Westminster Gazette.

Spurious Monks Attributed to Sterne.

The literary pirate was not the only trouble of the eighteenth century author. There were the concoctors and publishers of spurious works under his name, and Sterne suffered as heavily from these as from the pirates. The publication of the first two volumes as "Tristram Shandy" was followed as soon as it was apparent that the book was a success by a third, written by a hack writer and boldly attributed to Sterne. Several other spurious works appeared in the author's lifetime and after his death his Posthumous Works in two volumes were obligingly written for him, as were also three sets of his Original Letters.—London Chronicle.

Beranger's Fountain of Inspiration.

Beranger is best known for his Bacchanalian songs. One night he was at supper with Dumas the elder. The younger Dumas, who was present, was passing through his college course and at that period was exhibiting those characteristics which unfortunately developed in later life. Noticing that Beranger had drunk only water, he somewhat indiscreetly asked: "Where do you obtain, M. Beranger, all the wine which we find in your songs?" The poet's reply was: "From the fountain at the corner, my boy, and you would do well to make that the source of your inspiration."—London Globe.

Dredging for Coal.

Dredging the Susquehanna River for coal has been a popular and profitable industry in Columbia, Montour and Northumberland counties, but it has been practiced very little in the coal regions. The indications are that Pittston is to be a starting point of dredging work in that section. Theodore Hogan, of Pittston, who was formerly active as a mine superintendent, is laying plans to dredge the Susquehanna, between the Pittstons, in the hope of finding large quantities of good coal that has been washed into the river.

The Boy on the Farm.

He told his twelve-year-old son to milk the cows, feed the horses, stop the pigs, hunt up the eggs, feed the calves, catch the colt and put him in the stable, cut some wood, split the kindling, stir the cream, pump fresh water in the creamery after supper and be sure to study his lesson before he went to bed. Then he went to the farmers' club to discuss the question "How to Keep the Boy on the Farm."

Artificial Marble in Sicily.

They are now making artificial marble with much success in Sicily. The manufacture is in the shadow of Mount Etna and there common blocks of sandstone are put in a tank containing volcanic asphalt and coal tar and boiled for thirty-six hours. The stones are then taken out and polished and it is said that it takes an expert to tell them from black marble.

How It Was in Rome.

In the golden age of 300 peaceful years under imperial Rome crime almost ceased, Gibbon says, because no man could escape the jurisdiction of Rome, for Rome then was the whole world.

His Prospect.

Small Willie had worn his older brother's cast-off garments as long as he could remember. One day he said: "Johnny's got the measles. I s'pose I'll get 'em as soon as he out-grows 'em."

SHOOTING JAPANESE RAPIDS.

Those of the Hodzu River Afford an Exciting Experience.

The rapids on the Hodzu River near Kyoto must fill even the most blasé of tourists with excitement. A train from Kyoto climbs slowly and painfully upward until finally it deposits its passengers at a quaint little siding. From here, says the Wide World, one goes to the river bank and embarks in a rude, flat-bottomed boat, which is pushed out by four men into middle of a broad river, reed-edged and sleepy. For a few minutes one glides dreamily along; then rounding a curve, one suddenly hears the roar of water and the boat tears down a rapid, just missing the rocks on each side. The high banks race past, death appears imminent, and then, with one swirl it is all over and the boat is in the quiet, untroubled stream once more. This happens again and again for nearly an hour. At first one's whole mind is filled with the conviction that an accident must happen, but gradually comes a delicious feeling of safety as one notes the marvelous way these men show in plotting the way through the seething rapids and is able to appreciate the beauty of the scene.

What Brought on the Fight.

Bishop Woodbridge of Kentucky was discussing the Southern mountaineers, among whom he has lived and worked for many years. The question of family feuds was brought up and the Bishop related the following anecdote: "A certain family had attended a reunion which terminated in a free fight. The offenders were taken before the local justice of the peace, who questioned an old woman as to the particulars of the fight. Her description was typical of the mountaineer's attitude toward strife and bloodshed. 'Well, Judge,' she said, 'Jem Lewis got into an argument with Hank 'nids. Budd smashed Jem over the head with a stick of cordwood, busting his head open. Then Jem's brother lashed Hank up with a butcher knife and Lou Barry shot him through the leg. Larry Stover went at Lou with an axe and then, Judge, we just naturally got to fighting.' Philadelphia Times.

Students Suppress Hazing.

The students have been successful in suppressing all forms of hazing here this year as a result of the agreement entered into last year to discontinue all such practices. For a number of years hazing has been kept in check with a fair degree of efficiency by the student conference committee, the self-government organization. In consequence there have been few serious cases of hazing in recent years. Last fall, as a result of the fact that one of the football men whom the students desired to have remain on the team was involved in hazing, the student conference committee entered into an agreement with the faculty to abolish all hazing thereafter. This agreement has been successfully carried out.—Madison correspondence Chicago Post.

Golf in Paris.

Golf and tennis flourish on the periphery of Paris. Each day the royal and ancient game gains fresh patrons among the French. La Boule worthy fills, of course, the place of St. Andrews among the golfing societies. Though not the oldest, the distinction belonging to Pau, which has existed for more than half a century, it is the most authoritative of the organizations, especially since the formation of the federation. But Fontainebleau, Chantilly and Compiègne, are now well equipped with golf grounds, without speaking of Le Pecq, in the neighborhood of St. Germain-en-Laye, and of one or two projects for new grounds within a cab ride of the centre of Paris.—Pall Mall Gazette.

London Tube Receipts.

The five tube railway systems of London showed total gross receipts of $4,574,043 for last year, the net receipts being $2,306,448. After meeting prior charges one line continued its dividend of 3 per cent, another its 1 1/2 per cent, another again skipped a dividend, a fourth paid three-fourths of 1 per cent, against none for 1909, and a fifth line, which paid nothing for 1909, paid 3 1/2 per cent, for 1910. The total dividends aggregated $1,132,336.

Trains Kill Birds.

A German locomotive engineer says that the trains are doing much to destroy the birds. He had picked numbers of various kinds from an engine which runs about dawn, when the birds first seek food, and he estimates that this one engine kills several hundreds every month.

Some Bad Examples.

We have all heard of the butcher who was a vegetarian, of the barber who never shaved, of the shoemaker who let his children go barefoot, but here is a new one: A delegate to the late convention of the laundresses at Lawrence wore a celluloid collar.—Lawrence Gazette.

Boy Hunter's Blind.

A Clark county boy who killed two wild geese at one shot has a trick of leading a gentle cow so it hides him from his prospective game until he gets a close shot.—Kansas City Star.

Youthful Benefaction.

A little boy came home with his fist full of those small choke cherries and a pucker at his stained mouth. "Give those cherries to my baby sister," he said to his mother; "they're no cherries for a boy like me."

Saxon Forests Large.

Though Saxony has been a center of civilization for long ages, one-fourth of the area of the kingdom is still covered with forests.

LUXURY OF ANCIENT EGGS.

A chef, discussing the evils of cold storage, said with a smile: "And yet the Chinese, who are great gourmets, adore eggs three or four years old, eggs that have turned quite green." "Don't think they are ordinary bad eggs, these green chaps, though. If you've eaten Chinese food—gelish y mahn, yok amey, sea slugs, birds' nest soup—you'll know better than that. The Chinese are gourmets, and their ancient eggs are ripened like fine cheese." "It is a science. The eggs, I believe, spend nine months in a hot temperature, buried in sawdust, another nine months in a cool temperature, buried in chalk. And so forth and so on." "They are green in the end, and they have an unpleasant, putrid odor. But Roquefort cheese is green, and its odor, too, is putrid and unpleasant." "Mr. Wu, when he last dined here, told me that green eggs of the 1905 vintage cost $2 to $3 apiece in Canton."—Washington Post.

Glimmering Possibility.
"Professor," said the reporter, "you have read, I presume, what Edison or somebody else says about the feasibility of extracting gold in paying quantities from the dirt in the streets." "Yes." "May I ask what you think of the idea?" "Well," said the professor, "it seems to me highly probable that it can be done. Speaking as a tax payer, I know to a dead certainty that we sink all kinds of money in our streets."

Grim Consolation.
"John, old boy," said the sick man to the attendant, "I want you to go out and fetch me another minister." "Why, you're had a preacher with you all the mornin'." "That's just it," gasped the man. "He thought he was cheerin' me up and he told me I'd meet my three wives in heaven!"

A Risky Business.
"A reporter in a western town has been ordered to count all the joints there." "Is he making any progress?" "Yes, I understand he has already counted 600 elbows." "Hub! When he starts to counting knees he'll get into trouble."
