SEATS FOR 84 TAFT DELEGATES

T. R. Loses Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia and Florida Contests

G. O. P. COMMITTEE IN SESSION

Twelve Delegates From Indiana, First Contests From Northern State, Also Given to Taft—Pre-Convention Talk. Seventy-two delegates from the states of Alabama, Arkansas, Florida and Georgia were added to the Taft column by action of the Republican national committee upon the Roosevelt contests from those states.

The Taft managers insisted more strongly than ever that the president will be nominated in this convention and that he will have thirty-six more votes than necessary. Most of these Taft managers also declared that Vice President Sherman is to be renominated.

Taft campaigners believe that Roosevelt is to name a candidate for temporary chairman of the convention from among La Follette's delegation in the state of Wisconsin, thereby hoping to compel La Follette to support the Wisconsin man for temporary chairman.

Senator Borah, the colonel's chief spokesman in the meetings of the national committee, declared that he was opposed to any bolt on the part of the Roosevelt men in this convention in the event of Roosevelt's defeat.

When the national committee has decided the last contest and a poll of the uninstructed delegates shall show that a majority is lacking, and lacking because of what the colonel's campaigners will hold are the unjust tactics of the committeemen, an organization will spring into activity on the floor and on the platform of the Coliseum. The delegates from the states which Roosevelt and his followers say are theirs beyond challenge will take position with the delegates rejected by the national committee and will vote with the rest to put the ticket through.

Within a few minutes after Minister Beaupre's cable had been received orders were being sent to Rear Admiral Osterhaus, commanding the first squadron at Key West, to send two ships to Havana at once. The war department at Washington has taken the final steps preparatory to making good the threat of the state department to President Gomez to intervene in Cuba in case of continued failure of his government adequately to protect life and property.

Dun's Review of Trade says this week: "The quickened movement of trade is clearly revealed by the statistics of bank clearings, railroad earnings and pig iron production. MINERS GO OUT ON STRIKE

In short, at every point, the Summer School bears evidence of the University's wish to help public school teachers. Many thousands of general and special circulars are being issued by Dr. A. Duncan Youm, the Director. Last year the attendance was seven hundred; this summer provision is being made for over a thousand students.

SCHOLARSHIPS FOR TEACHERS AT U. OF P. SUMMER SCHOOL

Term Begins July 1st—Dormitories and Swimming Pool Open to Women.

In line with the general policy recently announced by the Provost of the University of Pennsylvania to serve the people of the State in every possible way, the Summer School has added a number of features which make it more helpful and accessible than ever before for students in general and teachers in particular.

During the term beginning July 1st and ending August 10th, certain of the University Dormitories are reserved for women. The swimming pool is also open to them for an hour each day and opportunity is afforded for every form of physical education. A special booklet has been issued calling attention to the numerous places of historical interest which will be visited during the session and to the excursions arranged to Willow Grove Park, Atlantic City, League Island Navy Yard and many other recreation points, to say nothing of a moonlight ride on the Delaware. There are free lectures, receptions and dances for almost every evening of the six weeks term. Special provision is made for teachers wishing to earn the higher grades of certificates made necessary by the new Pennsylvania Code.

A great School of Observation gives elementary school teachers, principals and superintendents the opportunity to study, through daily visits to model teachers in each school grade, the work of such noted systems as Indianapolis, St. Louis, Philadelphia, Passaic, N. J.; Newton, Mass., and of the Horace Mann School, the model school for Columbia University. The school systems selected for representation are among the most noted in America. The teachers who represent them have been officially chosen. For example, the seventh grade is in charge of Miss Blach, of Indianapolis, who was recommended two years ago by Hon. Calvin S. Kendall, now Commissioner of Education of New Jersey, but then Superintendent of Indianapolis Schools. Miss Bryan has been selected to show how sixth grade work is done in St. Louis, after conference with the Board of Superintendents and the St. Louis Teachers' College authorities. Miss Lewis, who gives third grade work in the model school of Teachers' College, Columbia University, also lectures on Primary School Methods.

Students registering for observation are required to take an hour's work each morning in the grades which most interest them, and at the close of the session have a half hour of conference with model teachers and an hour of discussion of elementary school problems, participated in by teachers coming from every part of the country and representing every grade of position and every type of school.

In addition, Professor Youm and Mr. Subire offer courses which apply the most recent results of educational research to methods of teaching the common school branches. A more complete course of study from which principals and superintendents can select what they most need has rarely been offered by any institution in America.

The courses in Psychology, for which the University is famous, are attracting even more general attention than usual this year. Dr. Witmer personally conducts his clinic for defective and supervises classes for backward children in charge of teachers who regularly assist Miss Farrel, of New York. The fact that New Jersey requires the formation of special classes for defective children will cause increased attendance from that state, but experts in the teaching and supervision of backward children are registering from all over the country.

There are courses in kindergarten, drawing, manual training, the teaching and supervision of public school music, school playground teaching and supervision, medical inspection and moral hygiene, to say nothing of work in every specialty needed by high school and normal school teachers and courses for architects and applicants for admission to medical schools.

Growing interest in school libraries makes the course in Library Economy especially helpful. It will be under the direction of Miss Donnelly, head of the Library School of Drexel Institute, and includes courses in Cataloging, Classification, Reference and Bibliography, Library Economy, Children's Literature and How to Use a Library. The work in Physical Education is more than ever, and embraces school playground supervision, besides a two year course in Physical Education for teachers of gymnastics and physical education and supervisors of athletic education.
