40,000 TO BE FED IN DAYTON

City Faces Big Problem in Caring For Homeless

PROPERTY LOSS $50,000,000

Everybody Must Work in Flood Wrecked City—Dead List Won't Go Over 150—Columbus and Zanesville Putting Their Flooded Sections in Order—Smallpox and Diphtheria in Zanesville; Epidemic Is Feared.

Here is the problem presented to Dayton, O., as summarized by George F. Burba, secretary to Governor Cox, and representing the latter in the flood ruined city:

Forty thousand persons must be fed, clothed and housed for a week more.

Twenty thousand persons must be cared for indefinitely. There are persons who lost their all when their household goods were swept away. They must be provided with a few necessary household articles such as bedding, pots and pans, stoves and a few dollars. A half million dollars could be used in this way by the relief committee.

Fifteen thousand houses and business buildings must be rehabilitated. Two thousand houses and other structures or what remains of them must be pulled down.

Thousands of tons of debris must be removed. Following are some of the accomplishments since the flood broke over the city last week:

The water works pumping station is in operation but the distribution of water is retarded greatly by open pipes in wrecked houses. The pressure is feeble, but growing stronger as leaks are checked.

The main sanitary sewer is in operation, although many of the laterals leading from houses are clogged with mud or backed-up water.

The flood sewers, separated from the sanitary, are in operation. These sewers carry off the rainfall from the gutters and are needed now to remove the water being pumped from basements.

Telegraph service is fast catching up with requirements, which still are enormous.

A careful summary places the total loss of life from the flood at not to exceed 150. No lives were lost in the fire.

The loss of life was almost exclusively in the parts of the city occupied by foreign laborers.

Eight hundred dead is the average estimate of seven-eighths of Dayton's undertakers called together for a conference. They reported eighty-two bodies had been recovered and now are at various places in the city. Individual estimates of the undertakers were from 500 to 1,000, but the consensus of opinion was that 800 would be a conservative figure. Exploration of several recesses of the city by newspaper men would hardly justify such an estimate.

The property loss will probably exceed $50,000,000. This includes damage to real estate and public works, to automobiles stored in two leading garages, and other personal property; to manufacturing, mercantile and jewelers' stocks, public utility plants and equipment, and includes the cost of rebuilding miles of asphalt streets and walks.

None of the public buildings was destroyed. Among the latter were the Dayton club, Victoria, National and Colonial theaters, city hall, courthouse, Beckel, Phillips, Algonquin and Atlas hotels, Masonic Temple, postoffice, Y. M. C. A. and all churches.

There is enough food and clothing for present needs, but relief will be required on a diminishing scale for another month.

Major Rhoades divided the city into sixteen sanitary sections and placed a competent man in charge of the work in each zone.

Attention was concentrated on Riverdale, where the flood was most destructive as to the loss of life and inundation of the private homes. The water has not yet left Riverdale entirely.

So far there are no more than a normal number of cases of contagious disease.

Meanwhile hundreds are at work in the central part of the city, where the greatest property loss has been experienced. There has been no exaggeration of this loss. Miles of streets present the same ruined aspect.

Big Loss of Life at Columbus. The morgues of Columbus filled up slowly as the swollen waters of the Scioto receded. The number of bodies recovered from the yellow flood reached sixty.

Word reached Columbus that several bodies had been seen floating on the current of the river at Circleville, twenty-five miles below there. The authorities believe that these were victims of the Columbus flood and many of those lost never will be recovered.

For miles along the swollen river there are great drifts of debris, the wreckage of houses swept away and demolished. The debris had formed great banks, held together by the thick mud brought down by the river.

Practically all of the bodies recovered have been taken from the edges of these drifts as the waters recede and the authorities believe that many more are buried in the mass. No attempt can be made to search these drifts until the water subsides. With this in view Coroner Benkert estimated that the dead list would reach 200.

Zanesville Wrecked. There are only four known deaths in Zanesville as a result of the flood.

The property loss in Zanesville is estimated at between $5,000,000 and $8,000,000. Water completely covered the "Y" bridge to a depth of fifteen feet. All the other bridges were washed out and it is said not another bridge remains standing between Zanesville and Marietta.

The Wheeling and Lake Erie and the Baltimore and Ohio railroad stations are gone. Hundreds of buildings have been undermined and may topple at any moment.

Twenty Dead at Hamilton. At Hamilton, O., search is being made for bodies of the flood victims. A conservative estimate places the dead at twenty. Suburbs on the north of Hamilton are in ruins. No smoking is permitted anywhere in Hamilton as the city is without fire protection. The militia is in complete control of the situation and there has been no looting.

$300,000 Loss in East Liverpool.

It is estimated that the damage done by the flood in East Liverpool will reach $300,000. The city water plant is flooded. Nearly 400 families are homeless at Smith's Ferry, Pa.; Wells-ville, O.; Congo, W. Va.; Kenilworth, W. Va., and New Cumberland, W. Va.

Fifteen in Chillicothe.

In Chillicothe it was definitely established that the total number of deaths in the flood will not exceed fifteen, including the missing. One hundred houses were washed away. The property loss is about $1,000,000.

Scores Down at Piqua.

Several score bodies have been uncovered in Piqua. It is believed there are no other victims. The property loss will be great as most of the manufacturing plants were destroyed by the flood.

Fourteen Known Dead.

There are fourteen known to be dead in Middletown as the result of the flood. The property loss is estimated at $1,500,000. Measles has broken out among the refugees.

Thirty-two Victims at Venice.

Thirty-two lives were lost at Venice, in Butler county.

WEST VIRGINIA

Parkersburg Hard Hit.

More than half the business district of Parkersburg and part of the residence section were under water. The gas, electric and water plants went out of commission and street cars stopped operations. Two lives have been lost—George Wiltshire and Samuel Whitlach, aged twenty-five—and a dozen are missing in the worst flood in the city's history.

Many houses have floated down the Ohio river past this city, presumably coming out of the Muskingum at Marietta, twelve miles above. Conditions there are reported as deplorable, with the water sixteen feet higher than ever before.

Wheeling Has Many Homeless.

Wheeling has taken up the work of caring for her thousands of destitute and homeless. The Ohio began receding after reaching a stage of 51 feet 4 inches, the highest water by one foot in thirty years. Although the district's loss will run into the millions of dollars there was little loss of life. Churches, schoolhouses, clubs, public halls and hundreds of private residences were thrown open to those driven from the lower quarters. The mayor estimates that probably 3,000 persons must be cared for. The relief fund totals more than $10,000.

Poor of Charleston Suffer.

Thirty-six feet of water covered the poorer residence section of Charleston and drove several hundred families from their homes or to second stories.

J. PIERPONT MORGAN DIES

Financial Giant Passes Away in Hotel in Rome

BRAIN EXHAUSTION AT LAST

Stock Markets Not Affected by News of Death—Country's Big Men Pay Tribute to Memory of Financier

Rome, April 1.—The body of J. Pierpont Morgan, the American financier, was embalmed this morning in the apartments in the Grand hotel where he died.

The body is to be sent to the United States on board ship from Naples. A funeral service will be held here before its departure. It is thought the body will remain at the hotel for a couple of days. Many legal formalities are necessary in Italy for the removal of bodies, but in this case they will doubtless be simplified and shortened through the influence of the American embassy.

Notwithstanding the fact that the date of the funeral has not yet been announced many floral offerings have already arrived at the hotel.

The register which was placed in the hall of the Grand hotel was filled with signatures of prominent persons who called. Messengers came bringing condolence from King Victor Emmanuel and Pope Pius X. The pope spoke of Mr. Morgan as "a great and good man." The messages were so numerous their details and the names of the senders have not been given out yet.

Mr. Morgan toward the end showed that he was suffering internally only by a movement of his right hand. Otherwise he displayed no sign of vitality except by continuous heavy breathing.

Mr. Morgan was unable to assimilate artificial nourishment administered during the last hours but his physical weakness was extreme. Heart tonics were injected, but these had no effect and for several hours before his death he was in a state of coma, unable to respond to any questions or to recognize any of those at his bedside.

A statement giving the full story of the late J. Pierpont Morgan's illness has been prepared by Professor Giuseppe Gastanelli, Dr. M. Allen Starr and Dr. George A. Dixon and cabled to his son in New York.

The statement recapitulates the symptoms of Mr. Morgan's malady since it first developed in Egypt. It qualifies his illness as nervous prostration, but says that his intelligence remained normal until Easter Sunday. Then a gradual general collapse supervened, affecting the digestion and the mental faculties until delirium ensued. The rise of temperature noted was, it is said, probably due to lesions of the brain.

Dr. M. Allen Starr of New York, called into consultation in connection with J. Pierpont Morgan's illness, attributed the financier's breakdown to emotion caused by the investigation carried out by the Pujo committee at Washington into the operations of the "money trust."

Stocks Unaffected. New York Market Prepared For Morgan's Death. New York, April 1.—The news announcing the death of J. Pierpont Morgan was received in the financial district two hours before the opening of the stock exchange and found everybody prepared for the event.

The occurrence resulted in no commotion whatever in the London market either in the American department or in any other class of securities. At the outset here prices were shaded a little bit. From the brief recession there was a vigorous rally followed in turn by a trickling decline and from then on until the end of business the market remained relatively quiet but firm and steady.

It may be truly said that the death of Mr. Morgan seemed to exercise no influence whatever upon quoted values and that a person who had not learned of the fact otherwise could have in no way gathered from the action of the market that the greatest financial genius of modern times had passed away.

MORGAN IS LAUDED. Prominent Men Pay Tribute to Memory of Financier. New York, April 1.—The announcement of the death of J. P. Morgan brought forth tributes to his memory from men distinguished in almost all vocations of life.

Financiers of the world, bankers, railroad men, industrial men, lawyers, ministers, physicians, men distinguished in belles lettres and men in public office spontaneously testified their appreciation of the commanding genius and wide unselfish public spirit of the man.

"We have lost our foremost financial magnate," was the word from Andrew Carnegie, "the man who inspired confidence and hence could gather around him the ablest and best counsellors during times of financial panics and prevent absolute ruin. More than ever since our leader is gone is an agency needed to do for our country what the Bank of England and Bank of France do for their countries before panics spread as do ours."
