WILSON NAMED AS LOBBYIST

Senator Townsend Says President's Club Is "Insidious"

REPLY STARTLES PROBERS

Charge by Republican Senator Cause: Resolution to Be Adopted Recalling All Democratic Senators to Stand.

Senator Townsend, a Republican, touched off a real bomb in the hearing room of the lobby investigators when he made the specific charge that President Wilson's use of patronage as a club to force Democratic senators to accept without question the Underwood bill just as it passed the house constituted in itself lobbying of an insidious character.

The result is that the Democrats are confronted with a demand to investigate the president's activities in pushing the Underwood bill.

Senator Townsend's charge came when the following question was propounded: "Do you know or have you any information of the use of money to keep a lobby here or elsewhere in connection with your answer state what you mean by the words lobby and lobbyist."

He said: "The nearest approach to undue influence which would come upon him in connection with the tariff, was a great many Pittsburgh manufacturers had visited him, but none of these was a lobbyist. They were all honorable gentlemen seeking to impress convictions they believed honest on national legislation," was the way because of the fear of antagonizing what is known as the power and influence of the administration.

"Do you mean to say that he is lobbying?" snapped Acting Chairman Reed, while Senators Cummins and Nelson set back in their chairs with a look of pleased surprise on their faces.

"I am giving my definition," said Senator Townsend.

Turning to Acting Chairman Reed, Senator Walsh made the following formal motion: "In view of the serious statement of the witness on the stand touching executive coercion, I move, Mr. Chairman, that upon request of any member of the commission that any witness may be recalled to the stand."

The motion was adopted unanimously. Its effect will be to force the recall to the stand of all the Democratic senators.

"I have $1,500,000 invested in two Pittsburgh papers," said Senator Oliver of Pennsylvania on the stand.

"To supply the print paper I use I have a paper mill worth $100,000. I own 1,000 shares of United States Steel preferred, 50 shares of the Pittsburgh Coal company."

All told the senator recited a list of holdings worth in the aggregate about $7,500,000.

Because copper is not included in the new tariff bill Senator Oliver could not be induced to tell of his holdings.

Asked what interest, if any, he had in the tariff, witness said that a reduction of $2 a ton on print paper would greatly benefit him. Mr. Oliver was then asked about those who had called upon him in connection with the tariff.

He said a great many Pittsburgh manufacturers had visited him, but none of these was a lobbyist. They were all honorable gentlemen seeking to impress convictions they believed honest on national legislation," was the way

Oliver characterized them. Iron and steel men composed the majority of his callers, he declared, and added that the question of ferro manganese duties formed the principal subject of their arguments.

Senator Penrose testified that in his sixteen years' experience in Washington he never had known of any attempts to influence members of congress improperly. He gave the names of 175 persons who had called on him since Jan. 1 on the tariff but declared that none was a "lobbyist," in the general acceptance of the term. The list was made up of manufacturers, labor leaders, attorneys, importers and others who feared they would be affected by tariff changes.

"It's well known that certain interests have agents here," the senator said, "and I suppose they are paid salaries. They evidently get information for their organizations. This work is perfectly legitimate. I have seen Mr. Burgess for the pottery interests here for years and Mr. Brown for the cotton people. Their work is perfectly legitimate as far as I know. My own opinion is that the lobbyist is principally a thing of the past."

The steel industry and coal interests of Pennsylvania have had no permanent representatives in Washington for many years, Senator Penrose said. Their custom of keeping representatives in Washington had "died out ten or twelve years ago."

He estimated that not more than 40 per cent as many persons had come to Washington on tariff business this year as compared with four years ago, but reiterated that the persons here now were here at previous tariff revisions.

Labor Men Charged With Murder. "Jack" Murphy, Lawrence Narin and Frank Kelly, former miners union organizers, were indicted for the murder of Samuel Bellman, Jr., at Nantux, Pa., Feb. 13, 1912.

BETTER THAN LAST YEAR

Dun's Review of Trade Finds Trade More Active.

Dun's Review of Trade says this week: "More reasonable weather has had a favorable effect on retail distribution throughout the country and while a slight recession in wholesale business is apparent in some sections of the west reports from several centers show trade to be more active than a year ago."

"New business in iron and steel still falls short of production, but the mills have plenty of orders on hand and it is expected that active buying will be resumed before these become exhausted."

TIPPED OFF UNDERTAKER

Man Then Goes Home and Shoots Himself Through Temple.

Seated in a chair in the back yard of his home in Muncial, Pa., Steve Phillips, aged thirty-nine, shot himself to death while two of his children were playing near him. The body fell from the chair and the children ran screaming into the house to tell their mother.

Earlier Phillips met Michael Caszar, an undertaker of Homestead, and bade him goodbye, saying he would be getting his body in a short time. Caszar laughed at him, thinking he was joking. When the body was taken to the undertaking rooms Caszar was almost overcome.

EARLY HEARING FOR UNION MEN

Alleged Miners' Heads Would Ruin W. Va. Coal Market

GOVERNMENT THE PROSECUTOR

That United Mineworkers is in Conspiracy to Restrain Trade is Charge Contained in Startling Indictment.

John P. White, president of the international organization of the United Mineworkers of America; Vice President Frank J. Hayes and seventeen officials and subordinate officers of District No. 17, the miners' union at Charleston, W. Va., indicted by the federal grand jury charged with violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, will be summoned to appear before Judge Benjamin F. Keller early this week. The government, it is said, will ask that the trial proceed at once.

The indictments and allegations that there is a conspiracy in restraint of trade and commerce between the United Mineworkers of America and coal operators of western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois against the West Virginia coal operators have caused a profound sensation. While the names of the witnesses who appeared before the federal grand jury in the case have not been divulged, it is known that coal operators of Paint and Cabin creeks, where labor troubles have been abundant, and former officials of the miners' organization assisted in gathering information.

It is charged that the defendants, as agents and members of the union, unlawfully conspired to unionize the coal mines of West Virginia, with the object of fixing through the wages to be paid miners prices at which the coal mined in the state of West Virginia could not compete with coal mined in western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

It is averred in the indictment that the coal now produced in West Virginia is shipped in competition with that mined in the four states named above to the markets known as the lake trade, and to cities in the middle west, and that the contemplated organizations of the West Virginia miners is to restrict the sale of West Virginia coal in these markets.

The second count cites that not more than 15 per cent of the coal mined in this state is consumed within its borders and that the rest is shipped to other states. It charges that the purpose of the United Mineworkers of America is to fix wages paid to laborers and to refuse to allow laborers to work unless the wages fixed by the organization are received; that that organization fixes the wages in the four competitive states and that by so fixing the wages the organization can and intends to make the cost of mining coal in this state so great that it cannot compete with that of the other states.

The third count charges that the coal producers of western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois have entered into a combination with the United Mineworkers of America and the defendants wherein the alleged conspirators have agreed to prohibit the coal mined in West Virginia from entering the lake markets and by unionizing the West Virginia miners, exclude the West Virginia coal from those markets, giving the coal producers of the four states a monopoly of those markets and the United Mineworkers of America a monopoly of all labor employed at the mines.

In pursuance of this alleged conspiracy the indictment recites that there was such violence and lawlessness in and about the mines on Paint and Cabin creeks with such loss of life and property that the governor was required to call out the armed forces of the state to maintain peace and order.

The fourth count charges a monopoly of labor to prevent operators from securing labor in the open market and on a competitive basis.

HEETER DECLARED GUILTY

Made Improper Advances to Three Women, Say Probers.

Superintendent S. L. Heeter of the Pittsburg public schools was determined guilty of making improper advances and taking unwarranted liberties with a former woman stenographer in his employ, a woman servant in his home and a young woman teacher in the public schools by the citizens' committee of six appointed by the board of public education to inquire into the charges against the school official.

The committee found no evidence of wrongdoing on the part of the superintendent in regard to the charges of the three young women, but all members concurred in the conclusion that he had been guilty of indiscreet conduct.

Heeter was removed from office by the board of public education.

SLAYER KEEPS TRACKS COVERED

All Trace of Pittsburg Depot Murderer Lost

W. E. Sage, a clerk employed in the Pennsylvania railroad ticket office in Union station, Pittsburg, is still at large after killing James A. McNair, ticket agent, and seriously wounding Ralph Pauley, assistant to McNair, in their office in the depot.

Railroad, county and local detectives combed the downtown section of the city and that part of the county lying between the city and Cheswick, Sage's home, in an endeavor to effect his capture. At a late hour none of the clues followed by the sleuths was of any consequence.

Dissatisfaction over the failure of an expected increase in salary is said to have been the cause of the shooting. Sage fired three shots, all taking effect. One struck Pauley in the head near the right ear while the other two struck McNair, one of which entered the left cheek and came out of his mouth, the other striking McNair almost in the center of the head.

This bullet took a downward course, plowed through the brain and came out of the head about one inch in the rear of the place where it entered.

May 1 there was a reorganization in the office at Union station and several of the employes were given increases in salary. Sage was not increased.

After the shooting Sage apparently seemed satisfied and, walking briskly, strode into a small corridor and out the main entrance by way of the baggage room door. He then entered the drug store corridor of the station, ran in a northerly direction until he came to the north side of the station, and passed down east through the inner corridor, past the elevators in the west end of the building to a stairway leading down to the street level in Liberty avenue.

Employees of the station all knew Sage and thought he was hurrying to a restaurant for his dinner. No attempt was made to stop him.

ONE YEAR FOR JOHNSON

Black Also Fined $1,000 on White Slavery Conviction.

Jack Johnson, negro pugilist, was sentenced to one year and one day in the Joliet (Ill.) penitentiary and fined $1,000 for white slavery.

Sentence was pronounced by Judge Carpenter in Chicago after the negro's motion for a new trial was overruled.

Benjamin Baeherech, attorney for Johnson, served notice of carrying the case to the appellate court on a writ of error and Judge Carpenter suspended execution of the sentence for two weeks pending the preparation of the necessary papers. Johnson was given his freedom on the $10,000 bail furnished at the time of indictment.

THOUGHT MULE WAS WOMAN

Texas Fined $33 For Kissing Animal in Public.

Because he kissed a mule a laborer named Kelley was fined $33 in the city police court in Fort Worth, Tex. Policeman Stanley explained to the court that he found Kelley on the street fondly caressing a big brunette mule, kissing it on the nose and the animal refused to reciprocate.

Kelley declares he was intoxicated and thought the animal was a young woman. He pleaded leniency promising that he would never kiss a mule again, but the judge stoutly turned him down and imposed the highest fine the law allowed him.
