

Monday, June 1st,
We Commence Our Great

JUNE WHITE SALE

Monday next will be the pleasantest, and at the same time the most important day of the Summer season.

It ushers in the rarest month of June, and it introduces to you a White Event the like of which you have never seen before.

You will find the displays wonderfully attractive—the store a bower of white goods and wear things set off by harmonious decorations.

You will find assortments the most complete in our history—our large stocks enriched by great purchases on which manufacturers have made unusual price concessions.

Best of all you will find the values more worth while than you have ever thought it possible for a store to give, in White Apparel, Under Muslins, Laces, Embroideries, Linens, Bedding, White Wash Fabrics, Table Linens, Domestic, Towelling, Millinery, White Gloves, White Hosiery, White Curtains and Draperies.

Watch For Details In The Oil City Newspapers.

Remember, we distribute no hand bills. Study our advertisements in Saturday's and Monday's papers, and plan to fill all your Summer needs in white goods and white wear while you can save so emphatically.

The sale starts Monday next. Come as early in the week as you can, before the plums are all picked. It will be well worth a special trip to town.

DO YOU WANT TO KNOW

how successful a man is? Then inquire how much he is saving, not how much he is earning. His earning capacity is for today only. In his saving ability lies his whole future. Get that truth fixed in your mind.

FOUR PER CENT. INTEREST.

Tennyson and the Hares.
Tennyson once arrived at Haverbury station carrying a parcel of books, and as his own carriage had not arrived to meet him he was glad to accept the offer of a lift home. Going up the steep hill to Blackdown, Tennyson, with his characteristic consideration for animals, suggested that they and the books were too heavy for the pony to drag. The two men therefore got out and walked for some distance in front of the trap, until they discovered that the books had dropped out. The owner of the pony asked Tennyson to stand at the animal's head while he went back for the books. These he found a hundred yards or more down the hill, and on his return he found the pony had been resting, but had quickly become quiet. Knowing that it disliked strangers, he wondered how Mr. Tennyson had kept it quiet. What was his surprise to learn that the poet had managed the affair by holding a watch close to the animal's ear.

Marthas Vineyard in 1602.
Here is what Bartholomew Gosnold wrote of his voyage to Marthas Vineyard in 1602:
"We stood awhile like men ravished at the beauty and delicacy of this sweet soil, for beside divers clear lakes of fresh water (whereof we saw no end), meadows very large and full of green grass and such an incredible number of vines that we could not do for treading in them. This is the goodliest land ever we saw, for it is replenished with faire fields and in them fragrant flowers; also meadows and hedged with stately groves."
Marthas Vineyard is still covered with the wild grape vines which gave it its name, and the farms have often a high standing for productiveness. Indeed, one of these farms once boasted the largest corn crop ever produced on an acre. The yield was 125 bushels of shelled corn. — Christian Science Monitor.

Great Poets and a Little Girl.
James Russell Lowell used to walk along the gravel paths of his beautiful garden in Cambridge, Mass., hand in hand with a bright little girl, who was his neighbor, and discoursed with her upon fairies, paper dolls, roses and other important subjects. Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, a neighbor of Lowell's and of the little girl's, who wore a velvet coat and a big tie, was also her intimate friend. He used to tell her wonderful stories of ancient heroes and many other marvelous things. It was natural that the little girl should request even then to become a writer, and first of all a poet, for it was as a poet that the novelist, Eleanor Halliwell Abbott, first achieved recognition.—Century.

Quick Decision.
"My gas meter is out of whack."
"What's the matter with it?"
"It lies. It doesn't register correctly."
"That's what they all say."
"But it doesn't register half the gas we use."
"Then it's lying on the wrong side! We'll send a man right out!"—Houston Post.

Out of Danger.
Pat, the hodcarrier to the carpenter, who is vigorously sucking his thumb, cursing at the same time—Don't you know how to drive a nail yet without smushing yer finger? Carpenter—No; you blamed fool, and neither do you, Pat—Sure, I do. Hold the hammer in both hands.—New York American.

Applying the Lesson.
Teacher—Have you looked up the meaning of the word imbibes, Fanny? Fanny—Yes, ma'am. Teacher—Well, what does it mean? Fanny—To take in. Teacher—Yes. Now give a sentence using the word. Fanny—My aunt imbibes boarders.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Snapdragon and Halloween.
Many of our Halloween customs come to us from England and Scotland, and a most popular one is called the "snapdragon," which is brought in when refreshments are served, generally at the last before leaving the table. The lights are all turned out and the platter containing the snapdragon is brought in. Why it is thus named I know not, but it is made this way: Place large table raisins quite closely and evenly on the platter, sprinkle with salt and cover with good alcohol. Just before bringing in light the alcohol and a most ghastly greenish white light will be the result. Pass it around the table, and each guest is to try to grab a raisin from the flame. Now, don't ask me why and wherefore regarding this strange custom, for I do not know; only, my earliest recollections of a Halloween party, and I regret to say that it is many years ago, we had a snapdragon, and an English lady told me how to make it. Sometimes ghost stories are told while the dragon burns on the table.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Watered Talk.
Probably there is nothing under the sun which is the basis of so large a number of figures of speech as water. A poor argument "won't hold water;" a babbling is "a leaky vessel;" a half-drunken man is "half seas over;" "fishing in troubled waters" is another name for getting into difficulty; "still waters run deep" is a hint that your quiet and demure person has more in him than the world supposes; if a man is in a bad predicament he is in "hot water;" disappointment is "a wet blanket."
Of the rejected sailor it is said that "cold water is thrown on his hopes;" the lunatic man's "mouth waters;" the straggleless are "weak as water;" sometimes it "rains blessings;" when an orator begins to be tedious we say he has "run dry;" news is always "afloat;" swimmers are often "swamped;" many people find it impossible to "keep their heads above water," and often we have to acknowledge that we are "all at sea."

Beau Brummel's Dress.
Evidently we must not believe all that we have read of Beau Brummel. There were stories that he appeared in "a dove colored coat and white satin inexpressibles;" that it took two artists to make his gloves, a special expert being assigned to the thumbs, and that he had three hairdressers who specialized, so to speak, on the different parts of his head. All these stories, it seems, are fiction, according to Leon H. Vincent's "Dandies and Men of Letters."
"Simplicity and unobtrusive elegance were his ideals. To attract notice by conspicuousness in dress was in his opinion the most mortifying experience that a gentleman could have. Byron told Leigh Hunt that there was nothing remarkable in Brummel's dress except a certain exquisite propriety. From which it may be inferred that his reforms were of a sensible sort."

Arsenic.
Excepting possibly the bichloride of mercury, few toxic substances are so common as arsenic, for the arsenates and arsenites are not only much used in medicine, but are likely to be encountered in commercial substances, wallpaper, dyestuffs, etc. Arsenic has been known since ancient times. The word means masculine or powerful. In the sixteenth century it was used for homicidal purposes in the form of aqua tofana and in literature has been the most celebrated of poisons. Although considered one of the most powerful poisons, it is less so in its ordinary forms than potassium cyanide and the alkalooids, though in combination with hydrogen it becomes one of the deadliest substances known, the slightest whiff of the gas being sufficient to insure death. In the common form, the trioxide or "white arsenic," one or two grains cause death.—Boston Herald.

Old Time Doctors' Fees.
Army doctors' fees in the seventeenth century in Europe were rather modest. During the civil war, for instance, the physician general of Cromwell's army received 10 shillings a day, the apothecary general 6 shillings and his two assistants half a crown each day. Then came the inevitable economist, whose deeds C. H. Firth summarized thus in a Cornhill article of March, 1901: "In 1651 the surgeon's pay rose to 6 shillings a day; in 1655 it was fixed at 5 shillings, and the economist cut off one of his mates. In 1657 his pay was again reduced to 4 shillings a day. Monck considered the sum so insufficient that (in 1658) he ordered the surgeons to be entered as privates on the master roll of their regiments in order to give them an additional ninepence a day."—London Standard.

Die geeignete Auswahl von Brillen.

Es sind mehr Augen durch unrichtiges Anpassen von Gläsern als durch sonst etwas ruinirt worden. Hat das Auge mangelhafte Refraction, so muß das Bild aller Gegenstände nach einem Focus auf der Netzhaut durch außergewöhnliche Tätigkeit des musculus ciliaris gebracht, oder das Bild unvollkommen sein und das Resultat verunkeltet. Sehen mit Schwäche und Schmerz um Augen und Stirn. Dies verursacht Conjestionen, welche sich durch schwere Augenschmerzen, Rötze, Jucken oder Brennen, ein Gefühl, als sei Schmutz im Auge, and häufigen Schreien, verbunden mit Empfindlichkeit gegen Licht zeigen. Je schwächer das Auge, desto fühlbarer obige Symptome. Augen mögen physisch stark und gleichwohl fehlerhaft sein und umgekehrt.

Um durch Gebrauch einer Brille die Mängel aufzuheben, wird die Tätigkeit der Muskeln geändert, und wenn die Schäden vorüber oder durch zu stark oder zu schwache Gläser nicht aufgehoben ist, so sind die Ursachen der Conjestionen eher vermehrt statt vermindert. Besten gemachte Refraction, muß irgend ein Handelsglas den Schaden vermindern. Jeder Schwachichtige sollte sich sorgfältig wissenschaftlich unteruchen um Brillen anpassen lassen, ehe er sie in Gebrauch nimmt.

In befondern Fällen werden Gläser auf Bestellung gefertigt, in jedem Falle garantiert.
