U. S. Senator—Boies Penrose. Governor—Martin G. Brumbaugh. Lieut. Governor—Frank B. McClain. Sec'y Internal Affairs—Henry Honck. Congress-at-Large—T. S. Crago, M. H. Garland, D. F. Lafawn, J. R. E. Trexler, James E. Clark.

WHEN revenues under a miserable pretense of a Democratic tariff are falling fast, how handy it is to resort to an internal revenue tax and lay it to a European war!

PRESIDENT WILSON is telling big business men whom he has been calling in to see him that business is "looking up." "Of course it is," said an Indiana man in Washington the other day. "It's flat on its back and it can't look any other way."

FINDING that the income tax is not going to meet the $100,000,000 falling off in revenues, brought about by adopting a free trade policy, the Wilson administration is going to resort to the obnoxious stamp act to make up the deficiency. That ought to be a vote getter.

IN the meantime why doesn't this Democratic administration bring down the high cost of living as was loudly insisted it would do? Instead, the cost is going higher and higher, and work is getting scarcer and scarcer. Do you imagine there's going to be any "falling over one another" to vote for Democrats this fall?

THE people are watching with a grim smile while the Democrats are vainly trying to transform the old ship of State into a merchant marine, now that the war in Europe has brought home to this country at last the great necessity for the upbuilding of American shipping along lines advocated by the Republican party for more than forty years.

AFTER fighting the American merchant marine, as well as a protective tariff, for more than sixty years, the Democratic party has all of a sudden taken a notion to buy a few worn-out German vessels, costing fifty millions or more, instead of building them in the United States. And yet you'll run across a fellow now and then who has the gall to ask you to vote the Democratic ticket.

IF this country had been enjoying the benefits of a Republican protective tariff for the past year and a half, instead of being under the Underwood Democratic makeshift, it would not now be confronted with the necessity for imposing the always hated internal revenue war tax in order to meet the expenses of government, and that, too, all because of a war in which we have no part.

FOR the first time in thirty years, there will be no Labor Day parade in New York City this fall. The labor unions have decided to take the money the parade would cost and use it to relieve unemployed union men. This instance of practical charity on the part of Union organizations is attracting wide attention over the country and has caused considerable comment, especially in view of President Wilson's statement that the hard times are purely "psychological". One good-natured workingman says he is "sure getting psychological pay checks". He also says he is buying "psychological shoes" and probably will soon be eating out of a "psychological dinner pail".

THE first step has been taken in restoring the American merchant marine allowed to get away from us in fifty years of Republican domination. There should be no limping in finishing the task—Democratic Vindictor.

UNDER Republican rule the United States built the greatest canal in the world and in order to aid in the upbuilding of the American merchant marine and at the same time cheaper freight rates to the American consumer, a Republican administration made that canal toll-free to American owned ships. One of the first and foulest acts of the Wilson administration was to repeal the free toll act because England demanded it. Now, that same administration is buying—instead of building—a merchant marine at a cost of millions upon millions. Who will say, then, that it will not go the way of the Panama canal if it ever amounts to anything worth while? Surely, if England asks it, Wilson can not refuse it, can he?

The Republican State Platform and Local Option.

There has been comment that the state committee referred without discussion, and in this manner kept out of the platform, a plank on local option. This is ascribable to the fact that in the May primaries aspirants for the legislature took their position on local option. In some instances advocates of this legislation were nominated, while in others the opponents were successful. It was not considered proper to attempt to bind a candidate for a principle to which he was opposed—and in the matter of nominees who are supporting local option further declaration was deemed unnecessary. At any rate as far as Dr. Martin G. Brumbaugh, the candidate for governor, is concerned, there is no doubt, for the platform in its penultimate paragraph, after endorsing his nomination and that of others at the May primaries, commends "the declaration of principles they then made to the favorable consideration of the voters of Pennsylvania." Dr. Brumbaugh's declaration thus commended is as follows:

The problem of the liquor traffic is a vital one facing the people and the legislature today. In harmony with many thoughtful persons I submit that local option is a practical solution. Any legislative measures looking to an improvement of the conditions regulating this traffic will receive my approval.—Pittsburgh Gazette Times.

PENROSE NAILS DESPICABLE LIE.

Philadelphia, Aug. 31.—Senator Penrose's open and straightforward way of meeting the Archbold contribution lie has thrown havoc into the camps of his political enemies. They find themselves left without a single thread of argument that might reflect upon the personal character of the Republican candidate for United States senator.

During the entire thirty years that Senator Penrose has been in public life those opposed to him have gone to every extreme in an effort to find something that might besmirch his reputation for honesty and fair dealing. Failure met every such attempt because the career of the man is an open book containing nothing that should be concealed, explained or defended.

Two years ago the Penrose haters decided that something would have to be done to at least put a dent into the splendid reputation for honor and honesty possessed by the senior senator from Pennsylvania. They went back over all the campaigns he participated in for the past twenty years, investigated all his movements and found nothing on which to launch their campaign of defamation but a check which passed from John D. Archbold to Senator Penrose as a contribution to the Republican campaign of 1904, when Senator Penrose was state chairman.

This was eagerly seized upon and the transaction so twisted as to give the impression that Senator Penrose committed a wrong in accepting this money for the election of President Roosevelt. The strange part of this despicable conspiracy against Senator Penrose is the part played in it by members of the Washington party who are followers of Colonel Roosevelt, the only beneficiary of the Archbold contribution.

Instead of treating the falsehood with silence, as his enemies expected he would, Senator Penrose has never hesitated to explain the transaction from beginning to end, with the result that the wicked movement has fallen flat. That reputable newspapers have no sympathy with this underhand scheme to injure Senator Penrose is seen from the following clear and concise editorial from the Philadelphia Inquirer of Aug. 24:

An Ugly Falsehood.

"In 1904 John D. Archbold sent a check for $25,000 to Boies Penrose. A magazine without a conscience and a yellow newspaper or two deliberately manufactured, eight years later, out of that incident a base libel. Without the slightest regard for truth they labored in season and out to induce the people to believe that there was an underhand transaction between a United States senator and one of the leading minds of the Standard Oil company.

"That ugly falsehood was maliciously forged for political purposes in 1912. It is now in use in various parts of Pennsylvania in the anti-Penrose campaign.

"With the remark that the man who debases himself to the level where he can bring himself to resort to this sort of campaigning gives a most striking example of the depth of political depravity to which it is possible for a reckless partisan to sink, we shall pass on to the rapid annihilation of the lie.

"It is an easy task. For particulars and full corroboration of what we are about to say, see the testimony submitted in 1912 before a sub-committee of the United States senate committee on privileges and elections. The subject under inquiry was that of political contributions in general.

"In 1904 Theodore Roosevelt was the candidate of the Republican party for president. In that campaign the Republican national committee collected huge sums of money by way of political contributions. Corporation after corporation gave thousands upon thousands. The late E. H. Harriman raised a very large amount—"My dear Harriman," as Roosevelt used to write to him, John D. Archbold, for the Standard, gave $125,000 in all.

"It had been the custom for national committees to help state committees. The chairman of the Republican state committee was Boies Penrose, then high in favor with Roosevelt. Chairman Penrose applied to the national committee for funds. It was agreed with Mr. Archbold that out of the $125,000 he was to contribute $25,000 should go to Pennsylvania for the Roosevelt campaign in this state.

"Now you have the whole story briefly told. Mr. Archbold sent his $25,000 to Chairman Penrose, it was accepted for by Penrose as chairman, and the money was used strictly for campaign purposes—for the benefit of Theodore Roosevelt.

"We have no good word to say for the custom under which corporations used to swell the treasuries of political committees. Suffice it to say that it was the custom of years. What is more, contributions were not as a rule confined to a single political party. They were made to the Democratic organization as well as to the Republican. In those days nothing much was thought of this easy method of raising campaign funds, for it had had the sanction of many a year.

"We have advanced since 1904, when the campaign chests of Mr. Roosevelt were largely filled with corporation money. Now such contributions are prohibited by law. But there was no law on the subject in the Roosevelt campaign, and the $25,000 sent by Mr. Archbold to the Roosevelt canvass in Pennsylvania had no special significance. It was the custom of the day, that was all.

"The attempt to connect Senator Penrose with any shady transaction through this campaign contribution is iniquitous in the extreme, for if there is a member of the senate of the United States whose record has been free from every suspicion of "graft" or personal financial gain that member is Boies Penrose. His enemies have raked over the ground covered by his nearly eighteen years in the senate, and this political contribution is the one thing that they have been able to twist into an unfavorable light. Unfortunately for them, sworn testimony before the senate committee stamps with black letters of falsehood the output of their disreputable distortions.

protection of Pennsylvania industries and the necessity for keeping the mills open and men employed at good and growing wages, but not one of them can truthfully say that strict honesty has not marked every year of his long and conspicuous service.

"And by the way, 'lest we forget,' Chairman Penrose rolled up a majority of upwards of 500,000 in Pennsylvania in that year of 1904, and among the letters commending him for the great work was the following:

"My dear Senator Penrose: Upon my word! Of all phenomenal returns, the Pennsylvania returns are most phenomenal. I congratulate and cordially thank you. Faithfully yours, "THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

The Opening Gun Fired. The Republican campaign in Pennsylvania has been formally opened and from the date of the opening until the date of the November election the fires of enthusiasm and confidence will burn vigorously in every section of this great state.

The opening of the campaign at Pittsburgh on Wednesday last proclaimed to every voter the determination of the Republican party to restore to Pennsylvania and the nation the policies and principles of Republicanism and to do away forever with the blighting incompetence of Democracy and the ridiculous theories from which the entire country has been suffering since Democracy was elevated to power.

There were no hide-and-seek performances at the Pittsburgh meeting of the Republican state committee at which the campaign was opened. Republican leaders and workers from every part of the state were present and had a part in planning for an overwhelming victory in the fall. The party platform, unanimously adopted and upon which the party's candidates will stand, is sensible, practicable and promises relief from the blight put upon the state by the Democrats. It deals directly and with encouraging force upon the vital question of the tariff and pledges relief not only to the wage earners but to the wage payer, both classes having been distressed and disturbed by the free trade policy of the Democratic party in this state and the nation.

The party's candidates were received with unbounded enthusiasm at the meeting of the state committee at which the party's platform was adopted. Senator Penrose discussed national issues and charmed his hearers, while Dr. Martin G. Brumbaugh, the noted educator and Republican candidate for governor, devoted his speech to conditions in his state. His past performances were again declared to be his platform and he was convinced every one within the reach of his voice of his sincerity and his confidence in the people.

Frank B. McClain, the candidate for lieutenant governor, raised Democratic insincerity and incompetency and provoked much enthusiasm.

The Republicans of Pennsylvania never entered upon a campaign with more enthusiasm and with higher hopes of an overwhelming victory at the polls.

We venture the prediction that at the approaching fall elections the people will make it clear that they are not against, but for, business—big and little. We venture the future prediction that as soon as this verdict shall have been rendered there will be an awakening of business and a general revival of prosperity. The workshop, the store, the bank, the railway, the factory, all welcome the change. So will the pay envelope and the dinner pail.—Leslie's

These are busy days for the Cabinet Man, Secretary McCall, of New York City, whom the President put at the head of the Department of Commerce, is having a hard time reconciling his "boom" statements with the cold figures in his reports. Official statements of his department show an astonishing falling off in the amount of goods we sell to foreign countries and an equally astonishing increase in the goods foreign countries are selling to us. So, Mr. McCall's figures are keeping him very busy. And all this, too, before the European war was thought of.

—James Johnson, aged 23, who pleaded guilty in the Venango county court last week to breaking into two section houses at Eagle Rock, was sentenced to four months in jail by Judge Criswell. He said his home was in West Virginia and that he had been working for a week or so in a lumber camp in Forest county. When he lost his job he became dispondent and started to drink. He was drunk when put off a train at Eagle Rock. He committed the burglaries in daylight and no person was around. Johnson said his parents were still alive when he heard from them eight months ago and he resented the Court's insinuation that he was a hobo.—Franklin News.

—The Presbyterian Sunday school and church picnic Wednesday afternoon proved a most gratifying success from start to finish, and the weather man provided a most perfect day for the occasion. In the ball game on the island grounds Rev. Mr. Bailey's class against all comers won out in a spirited game of seven innings, 5-2. The only marvellous feature of the day occurred at this game when Jay Bankhead was hit in the face by a pitched ball, several of his teeth being knocked loose. The picnic was held on the lawn to the rear of the court house where long tables were loaded with delicious viands which were stewed away with great zest by the nearly two hundred guests present. Numerous prize contests were put on, affording no end of fun for the crowd, among which were a nail-driving contest for ladies only, fashionable walking contest, running races by old and young, and a strenuous "tug-of-war" by the men-folk. In all of these the lady contestants seemed to excel. The whole affair was well managed and could scarcely have been improved upon.
